Off-campus university system proposed for state

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — California should establish a new off-campus university to encourage "delivering education to the learner wherever he or she may be," a joint legislative committee recommended Saturday.

The proposal, to add the "California Cooperative University" to the higher education systems which currently consist of the University of California, the California State University and Colleges, and the California community colleges, was one of 49 recommendations included in a report prepared by the Joint Committee on the Master Plan for Higher Education.

Some of the recommendations, most of which were contained in a preliminary report made public last Feb. 18, have already been implemented, and others will be before the Legislature when it returns to work Jan. 7.

Assemblyman John Vasconcellos, D-San Jose, chairman of the committee, said the final report culminated two years of intensive study by the bipartisan 11-member group.

The report released Saturday closely parallels the preliminary report, Vasconcellos said, although some changes were made.

Among the February recommendations deleted from the final report after five public hearings and additional committee discussion was one to give constitutional recognition to the state university and college system.

That recommendation was not included in the report released Saturday. Instead, it stated that "the joint committee does not wish to alter the fundamental relationship between the state and the two statewide and state-supported systems of higher education," with one exception.

"We do not believe the (University of California board of) regents should be the agency to determine whether or not students shall be charged for instruction and instructional facilities and the amount of any such charges," the report stated.

Also dropped was a February recommendation that "a community college be located within reasonable commuting distance of any concentration of potential students."

The proposal to establish a fourth segment of higher education was included in the February report, but expanded in the report released Saturday.

"In the foreseeable future, conventional campuses will continue to play a most important role in providing higher education," the report stated. "However, they must be complemented by new approaches.

"We are particularly concerned with the development of off-campus programs which attempt to bring postsecondary education to the student. If properly developed, these can enhance access and choice for the people of California."

Although both the University of California and the state college and university system have already developed extended learning programs, the report contended, "we have concluded that a statewide integrated effort is likely to be

All-year plan for daylight saving hailed

Move sheds light on energy crisis

By LOU GODFREY
Staff Writer

Of all the drastic energy-conserving measures ordered or proposed by President Nixon last week, only one promises to quickly brighten an otherwise gloomy situation — year-round daylight savings time.

Already under consideration by Congress, the clocks could be turned forward next month if the nation's legislators heed the President's request for an Emergency Energy Act before they recess in mid-December.

Hearings begin Tuesday in the House on a bill by Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Long Beach, a perennial advocate of year-round daylight savings time. A Hosmer spokesman said the bill has almost 200 cosponsors and passage is almost assured. Hearings on an almost identical bill have been concluded in the Senate, the spokesman said.

The chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., said the committee will approve the upper house version of the bill Tuesday or Wednesday.

By simply moving up the clock hands one hour, the nation will "gain" a theoretical hour of daylight — and set into motion one of man's most effective energy-conserving devices.

The idea is attributed to Ben Franklin who, as U.S. ambassador to France in 1784, watched the sun rise over Paris while the city slept. He decided the first light of day could be better used at the end of the day. Not only that, Franklin reasoned, but candles would be saved if darkness came later.

The idea was put into widespread use during World War I, and was increasingly adopted during the following decade.

Even Russia, not known for picking up Western ideas, went to summer daylight savings in 1920. According to one report, however, something went wrong in 1930 and the order was never given to return to standard time in the fall of that year. The mistake wasn't discovered until 1969 and by that time the nation's industrial complex balked at setting the clocks back again.

TWISTED WRECKAGE REMAINS AFTER TRAIN RAMS CARS, KILLING GIRL

1 dead, 2 hurt in Lawndale derailment of freight train

A teen-age girl was killed and two other persons injured Saturday when a freight train, sidetracked by a switch, which may have been vandalized, smashed into a parked box car and derailed, sending rail cars hurtling into a Lawndale intersection where they crushed two autos.

Lennox sheriff's deputies said five members of the Wilmington-bound freight's crew escaped injury when all four diesel engines and nine tank cars were sent tumbling into the intersection at 5:10 p.m.

The victims, said deputies, were motorists waiting for the train to pass the crossing at Manhattan Beach Boulevard near Condon Avenue. Deputies and paramedics, called to the scene, pried victims loose from the wreckage.

The dead teen-ager was not immediately identified. Rescue workers said she was alive when they reached her and mumbling about a companion still in the wrecked auto. Deputies were unable to find anyone who might have been in her car.

The girl was rushed to Gardena Memorial Hospital where she later died.

A man and his wife were injured seriously in the second auto crushed by the rail cars. They were identified as Eugene Smith, 42, and Eileen Smith, 36, of Redondo Beach. Both were admitted to Hawthorne Community Hospital.

The train's engineer, James G. Kerr, told deputies his 47-car train, with a cargo of liquid argon gas, was moving at 25 to 30 miles an hour when crewmen were caught by surprise as it swung off the main track onto a spur line.

Kerr later said that deputies told him the switch at the spur line's head appeared to have been tampered with. A lock on the switch had been broken, Kerr said.

Kerr, fireman K.L. Mayle and one of the Santa Fe freight's brakemen were found trapped but unhurt in an engine amid the jumble of rail cars by two deputies who had rushed to the intersection afoot from a nearby street after hearing the train's brakes screeching.

The deputies Harvey Cantor and Carter Laurie, found rail cars and the four engines strewn over a long section of the track and piled over the railway crossing.

Two other train crewmen were riding in a caboose, said deputies, and were uninjured as that car jolted to a halt, far down the line from the wreckage.

Authorities said they blocked off Manhattan Beach Boulevard to traffic as rescue operations and passing motorists were hampered by the flooding from a fire hydrant, sheared off by the train.

A small fire broke out in one of the overturned engines, firemen reported, but despite a quantity of spilled diesel fuel, the blaze was quickly extinguished.

The diesel fuel, deputies said, added to the problem as it was carried into storm drains by the swirling water from the broken hydrant.

Comet visible Wednesday

The great comet Kohoutek now rushing toward the sun will be visible to the unaided eye in the Southland's east-southeast morning sky Wednesday.

Growing brighter daily as it nears the sun, the comet already is clearly visible with ordinary binoculars.

The National Aviation and Space Agency estimates Kohoutek may be seen by the unaided eye in the Long Beach - Los Angeles area at 3:09 a.m. Wednesday. Dawn that day will occur at 4:56 a.m. and sunrise at 6:24 a.m.

Astronomers say the comet, which will rise in the east-southeast, tail first, also will be visible to the naked eye in the Southland at 3:20 a.m. on Nov. 22 and 3:42 a.m. on Nov. 30.

Kissinger, Chou conferring

PEKING (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, dubbed "the Middle East cyclone" by a smiling Premier Chou En-lai, said Saturday the United States was determined to complete the process of normalizing relations with China as quickly as possible.

Kissinger's remark, made during a banquet toast at the great hall of the people shortly after his arrival at dusk for a three-day visit, immediately stirred speculation the two countries were on the verge of exchanging full diplomatic recognition.

American officials traveling with Kissinger on his sixth trip to Peking quickly discounted the possibility. "I think we'll leave here with relations as they are — amicable but in the same state," one official said.

Kissinger, who had just spent six grueling days of travel through the Middle East arranging an Israeli-Egyptian cease-fire agreement, exchanged joking banter with Chou at the evening banquet. Afterwards, the two began the first of a series of meetings which were expected to continue today.

Kissinger and Chou were believed exploring ways to expand diplomatic and cultural contacts set into motion during President Nixon's historic China visit in February, 1972. During Kissinger's last trip to Peking one year later, the United States and China agreed to establish diplomatic "liaison offices" in each other's capitals.

Another possible subject for discussion this time was the lingering conflict in Indochina, including the war in Cambodia.

Bundled in a topcoat against the chill wind, Kissinger smiled ebulliently and showed no signs of fatigue from his whirlwind Middle East peace mission when he stepped off his blue-and-white Boeing 707 jetliner after a 2,500-mile flight across the Himalayas from Pakistan.

Israel, Egypt to sign truce today

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Premier Golda Meir, after hesitating for a day to clear up Israeli misgivings, accepted U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's truce plan Saturday. She said Israel will sign it today in the hope the plan will lead to permanent peace in the Middle East.

With Egyptian acceptance already disclosed in Cairo's semiofficial press, Mrs. Meir's final okay lowered the last apparent barrier to a formal signing ceremony by Israeli and Egyptian representatives.

Syria, the third major combatant in the war that started Oct. 6, had not accepted the plan, which goes farther than U.N. cease-fire resolutions.

Despite the agreement, the Israeli military command accused the Egyptians of five truce violations during the day, none of them considered major. The command also said the Syrians in the north committed two, involving an artillery barrage that was answered with small arms fire.

A U.N. spokesman in Cairo said the signing ceremony was scheduled for 3 p.m. today — 5 a.m. PST — on the Cairo-Suez highway about 60 miles from the Egyptian capital. Mrs. Meir said Israel will be represented by Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv, one of her top aides.

The Egyptian representative was not immediately announced.

THE PLACE where the plan is to be signed is along a war-scorched swath of desert on the road to Cairo, an area of miles of brown, gravelly sand and rolls of barbed wire across the shell-pocked road. There are a few Egyptian military police and troops there, two or three U.N. officers and a cluster of unshaven Israeli soldiers strolling in the sand or perched behind machineguns of their halftracks.

There are two dusty little tents — Egyptian and Israeli — separated by a few yards of no-man's land. The backdrop of the historic spot for halting the fourth Arab-Israeli war in 25 years is littered with battle wreckage.

The Israeli military command said Saturday that a Liberian oil tanker hit a mine in the Gulf of Suez, slightly damaging the ship, and that Syrian forces directed artillery fire at an Israeli patrol and that the Israelis returned small-arms fire.

But a command spokesman in Tel Aviv, Col. Nahman Karni, emphasized "the incidents were not very catastrophic and they have to be kept in perspective."

Mrs. Meir said she hoped there would be no shooting after the cease-fire is signed.

"AFTER this takes place, I hope that not much time will pass before Syria will travel the same road as Egypt," Mrs. Meir told reporters in Tel Aviv.

"There is a prayer at the bottom of the heart, not only with me, but with each and every person in the state, that the agreement will hold and that this will be the first step toward a true peace between us and all our neighbors."

Bombs raze PW hospital, Cong charge

SAIGON (UPI) — Dozens of South Vietnamese Air Force jet fighters bombed and strafed a hospital for released war prisoners Saturday, the Viet Cong charged. Thousands of former POWs were killed or injured, the Communists said.

South Vietnamese government spokesmen were not immediately available for comment.

Capt. Phuong Nam, press officer for the provisional revolutionary government (Viet Cong) said the planes dropped nearly 100 high-explosive bombs along with "gasoline bombs," probably napalm, and strafed a half-mile area surrounding the hospital.

Nam said the alleged raids "killed or injured thousands of our compatriots" and devastated a hospital for released prisoners.

"This is a frantic criminal act,"

Taco stand murder case reward offered

A passerby walking through the parking lot behind a Lynwood taco stand at 10337 Long Beach Blvd. on the night of June 3 thought there was something strange about the man slumped over the wheel of a car.

When he approached and saw bloodstains spreading over the front seat of the car, he called police, who found Richard V. Roehl Jr., 30, of Huntington Park, had been shot in the temple with a small caliber revolver.

Investigators said the victim, who had been married in February, had returned that day from a delayed honeymoon trip to Canada. He did not appear to have been robbed and employes of the taco stand heard no shot. Detectives have been unable to uncover a motive or a possible suspect in the slaying.

Secret Witness will pay $2,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Roehl.

Bartenders mix it up at cocktail olympics

Mixing Up a Winner

Bjarne Eriksen of Norway took the prize for the best cocktail, and Bobby Batugo of the United States won for the best long drink. But they were cheered probably less than world champions in any other sport.

The fans were too busy drinking.

"These men are professionals," said Leonard Casteel, president of the U.S. Barmen's Guild, which hosted the bartenders' convention. "These men are the very finest mixologists in the world. Mixing is an art form."

The competition, which ended this weekend, was serious. Of the 400 bartenders in competition from 27 countries, many were national champions.

Among the concoctions: an Opal Splendour from Australia, a Sunflower from Japan, a Fireproof from Iceland, and Old California from Italy, a Fourth Degree from Great Britain and a Golden Volcano from Canada.

The simplest drinks appeared to be favorites of the judges, who were chosen at random from the audience. One woman judged five contests during the two days of competition.

Disbarment?

The Baltimore News American reported Saturday that the Maryland State Bar Association may file disbarment proceedings next week against former Vice President Spiro Agnew.

Quoting a source within the bar association, the newspaper said "the matter is now in the hands of counsel and proceedings will be filed very promptly."

Agnew resigned the vice presidency last month after pleading no contest to a negotiated federal income-tax evasion charge stemming from a probe of political corruption in Maryland. A statement of evidence introduced in U.S. District Court said Agnew accepted payoffs from contractors and consultants in return for public contracts throughout his political career, including his years as vice president.

Wrong man

The FBI in Portland, Ore., is questioning Arvid Julius Kiperts, 41, about 16 bank robberies. But they've decided he's not the man who hijacked an airliner two years ago, collected $200,000 in ransom money and escaped by parachute.

The name D.B. Cooper was involved in one of the bank robberies about which Kiperts is being questioned. And D.B. Cooper was the name the hijacker used to board the Northwest Airlines plane on Thanksgiving Eve 1971.

Kiperts, of Vancouver, Wash., was arrested in San Diego Monday and was charged with holding up the King City Savings and Loan Co. in Oregon. The FBI said he is being questioned about 15 other bank robberies since 1970.

"D.B. Cooper" was the first American airline hijacker to escape by parachute. He jumped with the ransom money strapped to his chest.

The leader of America's Reform Jews died Friday night of an apparent heart seizure just minutes before he was to deliver his retirement speech in New York.

The scheduled speech contained material severly chastizing Jews for remaining silent on Watergate ostensibly to gain favor for Israel from President Nixon.

Rabbi Maurice Eisendrath, 71, leader of America's 1-million Reform Jews, died in his hotel room shortly before he was to speak to about 3,500 members of the Union of American Hebrew Oraganizations.

Eisendrath's speech, delivered by a friend, criticized the "immoral cesspool" of the Nixon administration and those Jews who have "remained shamefully silent" throughout the "obscene dishonesty" of the Watergate scandal to gain favor for Israel from the President.

A veteran of six wars wants to see the rest of the nation join Idaho and other states that have returned to the traditional Nov. 11 observance of Veterans Day.

C.G. "Jack" Latimer doesn't like the idea of designating the fourth Monday in October for the celebration just to provide another three-day weekend for the working man.

"There's a lot of people in this country who don't know what a veteran is," the 91-year-old ex-warrior said.

Latimer first saw military service with the Army in the Spanish-American war. Later, he served in the Boxer Rebellion in China, the Philippine insurrection, on the Mexican border with "Black Jack" Pershing in 1916, in World War I and World War II.

This time, however, the 33-year-old homemaker was there to give birth to quadruplets — two boys and two girls. The babies weighed about four pounds each and were four weeks premature.

Anne fifth Windsor to wed commoner in 13 years

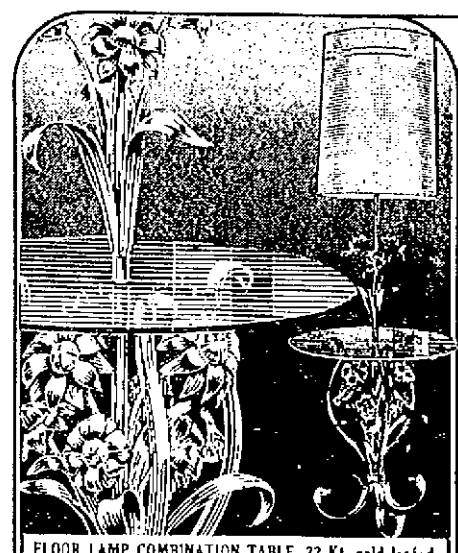

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Anne, only daughter of Queen Elizabeth, proves once again that they marry for love in the British royal family when she promises to serve and obey an army captain in a wedding that will set the capital echoing with fanfares and churchbells next Wednesday.

The 23-year-old princess, fourth in succession to the throne, will take as her husband Capt. Mark Phillips, 25, who won her heart while coaching her in the equestrian skills that earned him an Olympic gold medal last year and made her the first British royal family member to win a European championship.

The dashing dragoon — 6 feet, 1½, dark and handsome — is the fifth commoner to cross the social tracks into the house of Windsor in the past 13 years.

The mighty house of Windsor, with blood alliances to 81 royal princely and noble families, invited the royal and official guests, such as Prince Rainier and Princess Grace of Monaco, King Constantine and Queen Anne-Marie of Greece, Crown Princess Beatrix and Prince Claus of Holland, Crown Prince and Crown Princess Harald of Norway, Prime Minister Edward Heath and Representatives of the Commonwealth.

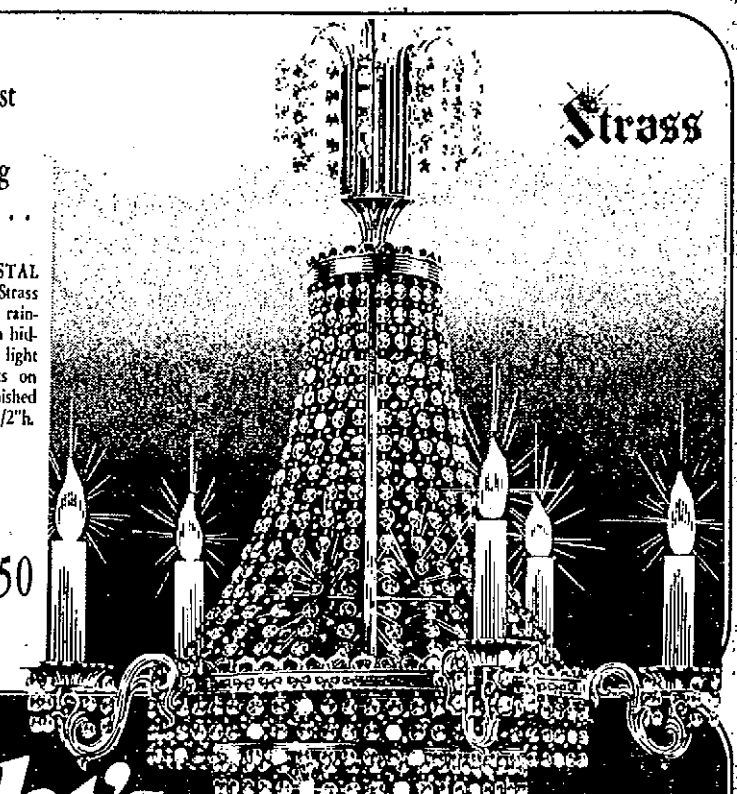

The Phillips' list was not that grand. Peter M. Phillips, father of Mark, is a middle-grade executive with a food complex whose best known products are pork sausages and ice cream. He is of solid middle-class stock. His wife, Anne,is a member of the Tiarks family, which has banking and church connections. One of her ancestors invented the water closet.

Douglas jet engineers eye fuel crisis

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Design engineering of four new versions of the wide-cabin DC10 jumbo jet at Douglas Aircraft Co. in Long Beach coincides with airline efforts to cope with the twin problems of increasing demand for service and restrictions on jet fuel supplies.

Among the high-capacity DC10 variants proposed as replacements for less efficient transports are a "Super" trijet, with the fuselage extended as much as 40 feet to accommodate a maximum of 433 passengers, an all-freighter model, an ultra long-range three-engine version and a twin-engine short-to-medium range model.

James McDonnell, chairman of the parent McDonnell Douglas Corp., said details are being discussed with interested carriers in an effort to obtain firm orders in sufficient quantity to justify production.

"We are offering them at this time because of the growing number of air routes where traffic volume indicates a need for DC10 capabilities and economies," McDonnell said.

The announcement came on the same day that the president of the first airline customer of Douglas Aircraft Co. addressed a Los Angeles business group on the fuel crisis and its effects on air transportation.

Arthur F. Kelly of Western Airlines pointed out that as of Nov. 1, all U.S. air carriers were in effect operating under a form of fuel rationing. He said new federal regulations require the airlines to roll back their jet fuel demands to the 1972 level on a city-by-city and route-by-route basis, forcing cancellation of plans to expand services in 1974.

Western, which became the first Douglas commercial customer with the purchase of open cockpit M2 air mail planes in 1926, now flies a mixture of wide-body DC10s and Boeing standard fuselage models.

"We have made comparative studies of the DC10 and the 707, and find the efficiency of the larger aircraft is much better," Kelly disclosed. "This is certainly an encouragement to buy more wide-body aircraft.

"We are now equipping ourselves with the third generation of jets which will have made it possible for us to absorb a 400 per cent increase in passenger traffic with only 25 per cent more aircraft and a 39 per cent increase in scheduled departures."

Kelly said Western will determine in December what wide-cabin models will be added to its present fleet of four DC10s, plus two more on order. The airline also will decide which types will be grounded.

John C. Brizendine, Douglas president, said the new DC10 versions will be built on the Long Beach assembly line where the current four models are produced.

He said deliveries could be made as early as 1975 for the extended-range model, early 1976 for the freighter, early 1977 for the big "super" DC10, and about 25 months from decision to produce the Twin Ten.

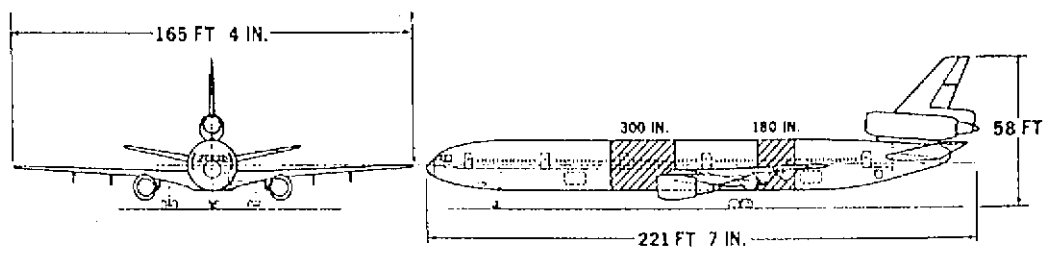

The stretched-fuselage model is being designed in a flexible range of extensions from 25 to 40 feet, according to airline requirements. The full extension would bring the total length of the DC10 to 222 feet, only 10 feet shorter than the four-engine Boeing 747.

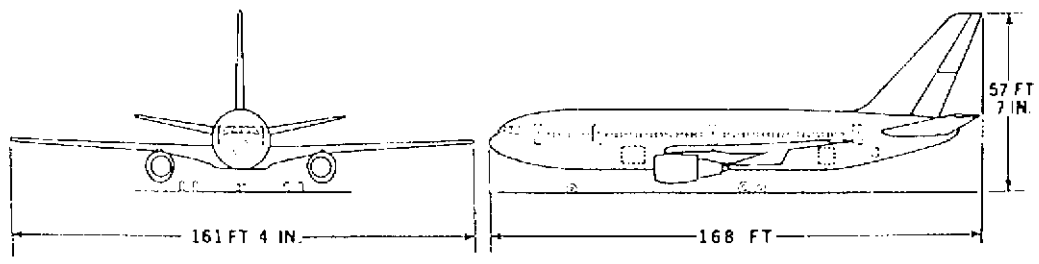

Brizendine said the "Super" DC10 will have an increase in capacity of 28 to 40 per cent, depending on the dimension of the fuselage extension. It will have more powerful fanjet engines for intercontinental range.

The proposed freighter, also powered by uprated engines, will be aimed at the transatlantic-range market. It will carry more than 90 tons of cargo on intercontinental routes, and will have special equipment for quick loading and unloading.

The DC10 Twin would be 168 feet long, about 14 feet shorter than the current three-engine model, and seat from 239 passengers in a typical first class and tourist arrangement to 320 in an all-coach pattern. Normal operating range with a typical passenger load would be 2,300 miles, giving it transcontinental capability.

The ultra long range trijet would carry 255 passengers more than 6,500 miles. All of the new versions of the DC10 will have identical cabin width with present models, and about 90 per cent of parts commonality.

TWO OF A proposed four new verions of the wide-cabin DC10 jumbo jet built by Douglas Aircraft Co. At top is the proposed "extended" model which would add up to 40 feet to the plane's overall length and accommodate as many as 433 passengers. Below is the DC10 Twin which would eliminate the tail engine and be used for passenger service with a transcontinental range. It would carry 239.

Mother gets year in tot's killing

An unwed mother who told Orange police last April 13 that her son was missing, then admitted helping plan his murder, must serve a year in the Orange County Jail.

Sandy Rockwood, then 17, was ordered to prison to a five year term by Santa Ana Superior Court Judge James F. Judge, who suspended the prison term in favor of a jail sentence and three years of probation.

She had admitted being an accessory to the slaying of Michael Todd Rockwood, three years old, whose battered body was found April 18 in a water line trench in the Anaheim hills.

Larry Wayne Cobb, 23, her common law husband, was arrested on a murder charge and is awaiting trial Jan. 7 in Santa Ana Superior Court. Miss Rockwood is scheduled to be a key witness against him.

Gets pistol, loot

Fast-talking barber nabs gunmen

A gutsy barber talked two hapless holdup men out of their loot and gun Saturday when their getaway car wouldn't start, Costa Mesa police reported.

This is the account Officer Ray Sanders gave of the abortive stickup: Two robbers hit a car rental agency at 2759 Harbor Blvd. Saturday afternoon.

While one waited outside in a 1969 Pontiac, the other walked into the agency and held clerk Alvin Jacobson at gunpoint.

The gunman took $102 from Jacobson, then ordered him into a back room and told him not to leave it. A couple of minutes later, Jacobson walked to a neighboring barber shop and asked barber Thomas Oberst to call police.

Then Jacobson noticed the holdup men were still outside, frantically trying to start their car. He told Oberst, who then went outside and struck up a conversation with the men.

Finally, Oberst said he knew they'd held up the agency, that police were on the way and the men might as well make things easy for themselves by turning over the money.

They did. He then convinced them to turn over the gun, seconds before Sanders and other officers arrived. Booked for suspicion of armed robbery were Michael Riccardo, 28, identified as the driver, and James Keith Delaney, 20, both of New Jersey.

Officers said the revolver used in the holdup attempt was unloaded.

Police probe gang link in 2 L.A. murders

Two murders in different parts of Los Angeles were being investigated Saturday as possibly gang-related, authorities said.

Two juveniles were sought in the slaying of Henry Broaden, 43, of Los Angeles, who was shot to death just before midnight Friday, police said.

The two youths were chasing Broaden's son following an argument when they ran up to Broaden and shot him, police said.

In another incident two youths were attacked Saturday in front of an East Los Angeles home by a group of other youths. George Olivo, 16, was stabbed to death and Dicky Rodriguez, 19, was in critical condition with numerous stab wounds, authorities said. The motive for the attack was unknown.

Farm labor plight told by Chavez

Unless the public helps the farm laborers, their families will face difficult times, union leaders agreed Saturday in Santa Ana in a meeting with Cesar Chavez, who organized the first union for the field hands.

They agreed that they will seek to muster support for the United Farm Workers, and they mapped a countywide campaign to collect toys and other gifts for the children of the field workers who "are having difficult times."

Chavez, who engineered a series of labor contracts, the nation's first in the farm labor field, currently is battling the Teamsters' Union which moved in to take gver major pacts with the growers.

He told Orange County labor leaders Saturday that the lot of the field hands is dim indeed, and that they are facing a bleak Christmas for their families, according to Pete Remmel, the council's executive secretary.

Chavez and his supporters then moved to picket a Safeway Store in Santa Ana to protest its handling of table grapes and Gallo wines. Chavez spoke Saturday night in West Los Angeles at a public rally.

Murder suspects reveal new victims

STOCKTON (UPI) — Two accused executioners of nine persons near here have admitted killing four other men and have pinpointed their graves, investigators disclosed Saturday night.

Maricopa County sheriff's deputies said in Phoenix, Ariz., that they found the body of an unidentified man in a sleeping bag in the Superstition Mountains foothills after detectives interviewed the suspects in county jail here.

They said they would resume the search for the body of another man in the same area today. The suspects, Willie L. Steelman, 28, and Douglas E. Gretzler, 22, had been linked to the disappearance of two men in Phoenix.

The body was found near a trailer park where the bodies of a young man annd women were found last month. Murder warrants had been issued against Steelman and Gretzler in connection with the couple's death.

Officers in Phoenix said the body found in the sleeping bag was badly decomposed. The site was near Apache Junction.

Meanwhile, Arizona authorities here said the suspects admitted killing two men and burying them in the Sierra foothills near the tiny community of Knights Ferry in Stanislaus County. An afternoon search failed to find their graves but deputies will resume their efforts today.

Steelman and Gretzler, according to detectives, said they kidnaped the two men in Phoenix and brought them to Knights Ferry. The suspects said they stripped their hostages and one tried to run, according to the investigators.

One man was killed by having his throat cut while the other was beaten to death with a rock, the investigators said.

In all, the two suspects may have killed 16 persons in a two-state crime wave which began last month. They were arraigned here on nine counts of murder.

Sonoma County Sheriff Don Striepeke said deputies in Stockton had told him two bodies might be near a road or in weeds between the coast towns of Bodega Bay and Jenner.

The search was conducted in an area where a van used by two missing Arizona men was found Oct. 21. Ken Unrein and Mike Adshade, both 21, were believed kidnaped by Steelman and Gretzler in Phoenix Oct. 16. The van belonged to Adshade.

Detective Jack Zietan of the Stanislaus County sheriff's department said his office was informed by Arizona investigators the bodies were near Knights Ferry. The Arizona investigators, he added, had talked with Steelman and Gretzler in the San Joaquin County jail.

The mass killing suspects forced the two men to point out a mobile home near Mesa, Ariz., where bodies of a young couple were later found trussed and shot, Arizona police said.

Steelman and Gretzler were arraigned Friday on charges of shooting to death Walter Parkin, 33, a grocer in tiny Victor, Calif., near here; his wife, their two children and five friends in Parkin's country ranchhouse Tuesday night or Wednesday morning.

San Joaquin County deputies said Parkin apparently had been forced to open the safe of his store a mile away by the killers. About $3,000 was taken.

Steelman and Gretzler, before their arrest for the mass killings at the farmhouse, and been sought for the trailer house killing in Arizona.

Friday, the bodies of a man and a woman were found in Tucson following a tip from Stockton authorities. The victims' car had been driven here by Steelman and Gretzler and the victims' identification papers were found in the suspects' pockets, deputies said.

Quentin inmate strangled

SAN QUENTIN (UPI) — A San Quentin Prison inmate was strangled and two others stabbed Saturday in violence which forced guards to impose a general lockup.

The slain convict was identified as Pat Duran, 28, serving a five-year term for car theft and escape in San Bernardino county. He was killed in the exercise yard of the north block segregation unit.

Edward Nava, 28, and Edward Santos, also 28, were knifed in separate incidents in the main yard.

Nava suffered minor wounds on the head and neck. He refused hospitalization. Santos was taken to the medical unit with a knife wound in the back. His condition was not regarded as serious.

Officer of the day Jim Smith said Duran was mingling with 11 other inmates. When they left the yard, he said, Duran was noticed on the ground.

Smith said all 11 inmates were suspects and were being questioned "heavily." He added the reason for the killing was not known.

There were no suspects in the Nava assault, but two were placed in isolation for the attack on Santos. A tower guard fired a warning shot when Santos was stabbed.

In Compton shootout

Guard, teen assailant killed

A security guard at a Compton department store and his teen-age assailant were both killed when they exchanged gunfire in a parking lot behind the store Saturday evening, Compton police reported.

Investigators, who said they had not immediately determined what touched off the gunfight, said the incident occurred at 6:55 p.m. in an employe parking lot at the Sears department store, 2100 Long Beach Blvd.

An off-duty Los Angeles County Sheriff's deputy, who witnessed the gun battle from across the lot, told police a young man approached the guard, Leroy Toupin of Compton, as Toupin was checking on employes' cars.

Without apparent reason, police said, the teenager pulled a gun and shot the guard. Toupin, 59, managed to pull his gun and shoot the youth, officers added.

The assailant, who police only identified as a 17-year-old, was killed instantly, officers said. Toupin was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital in Lynwood, authorities said.

Indians fight over trees

BURNEY (AP) — Authorities have seized some 250 Christmas trees cut down on U.S. Forest Service land by Pit River Indians who claim the land actually belongs to them.

About 200 of the small fir trees were seized by Lee Bunnell, district manager for the U.S. Forest Service. He was aided by four Shasta County sheriff's deputies.

Arlene Wilson of Hat Creek, one of the two dozen Indians present when the trees were confiscated Friday, grabbed Bunnell's arm, and attempted to make a citizen's arrest, saying Bunnell was illegally seizing the trees.

But deputies told her the Shasta County district attorney would have to concur in such an arrest.

"We're trying to get into court to prove ownership of this land," she said. "We believe these trees are our trees, that's why we cut them down."

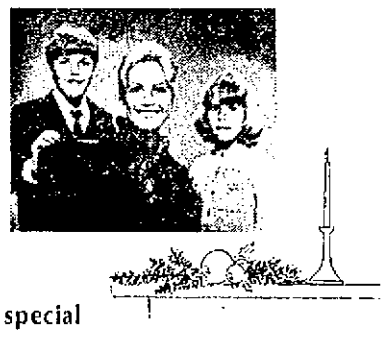

The trees, cut down in the Lassen National Forest, were taken from an Indian wholesale Christmas tree lot in the Four Corners area.

Bunnell said they would be taken to forest service headquarters in Susanville to be used as evidence.

Another 51 trees were seized while they were being transported to Four Corners Friday. Deputies cited George Montogmery and Kathleen Wilson of Hat Creek for investigation of transporting trees without proof of ownership. Montgomery is a brother of Pit River Indian leader Ross Montgomery.

U.S. Atty. William Shubb in Sacramento had said Friday he had conferred with Shasta County officials and agreed that any action against the Indians would be taken by federal authorities. Shubb said he was awaiting more information before deciding what, if anything, would be done.

The Indians claim the Northern California land on grounds it was illegally taken from their ancestors.

Hiring of political favorites

Patronage at HUD probed

WASHINGTON — A federal investigation has begun into charges that high officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development violated the law by appointing political favorites to career civil service jobs.

Two teams of investigators, one from the Civil Service Commission and the other from within HUD have been interrogating employes across the country and scouring the files for incriminating memorandums and letters for the last five weeks.

Employes of the department have charged that departmental officials, including W. Stanley Armstrong, special assistant to the secretary, have secured high salared and influential jobs in local housing agency offices for political favorites of the Nixon administration.

"We weren't aware of any such acts before the civil service came in," said James A. Wilderotter, executive assistant to Secretary James T. Lynn. "These charges are very serious," he added.

One apparent victim of the actions under investigation was transferred out of his regional post last year to make room for a new man named by the Nixon administration. "In my 35 years of federal service," he said, "I've never seen anything to equal" this changeover.

Armstrong, who refused to comment on the charges, and other unidentified officials of the department are being investigated for possible violations of the Pendleton Act, which established the system of nonpolitical appointments to career civil service jobs.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

Most of the 16,000 employes of HUD are career civil servants, including 86 area directors. Department employes say that most of the area directors are now persons appointed in this administration.

Wilderooter said that the department had undergone four reorganizations in the last four years and that many vacancies had thereby been created in field offices.

In response to rumors in the department that some persons involved in the program had been dismissed, Wilderooter said that Secretary Lynn, who is out of the country, had not yet dismissed anyone.

"When the civil service came in, Secretary Lynn ordered out our inspector general, Charles G. Haynes, to begin his own investigation immediately," said Wilderooter. "When the inspector general completes his investigation, the secretary will take the appropriate action."

Wilderooter said, "the secretary has been trying to get the best people in these incredibly important positions. He doesn't care if they are Democrats, Republicans, Tories or Whigs."

"This ting is diverting us from our work on the Better Communities Act and the housing study," Wilderooter said. "It takes so much time and gives our opponents a chance to inject criticism."

At one local HUD office in the South recently a visitor found secretaries chatting about new hair styles for lack of work. The director explained that since the investigation began little direction had come from Washington and work was at a standstill.

Political patronage jobs are not new to the housing department or any other agency. As Donald Fielding, a former director of department's Tampa office, explained in a telephone interview.

"I knew I was politically obnoxious" when the new administration came in. I was a Democratic appointee. When I get a call telling me to report to Atlanta, that I was through in Tampa, back in 1970, I recognized it as a political fact of life."

"They expected me to resign," said Fielding, who was a career civil servant for more than 10 years. "But even though I was a Democrat I thought they could use my knowledge and expertise."

"I pushed paper clips in Chicago for 22 months where I got a new title, special assistant for program coordination," Fielding said. "I never could find out what I was supposed to be doing. They just pulled the job out of thin air."

Fielding resigned in the spring of 1972 when he concluded that he would never be offered another important position. "I was disappointed, but it wasn't unusual. There were a lot of us."

Fielding has not been questioned by investigators, however, since the investigation has focused on changes made since last spring.

Armstrong, the special assistant to Secretary Lynn, replaced C. March Miller II, who handled personnel reform for the department. Miller, now the director of the office of unsubsidized insured housing programs, refused to answer any questions about the investigation.

Some employes said that since Armstrong joined HUD repeated attempts had been made to place temporary consultants who contributed to a massive six-month study on housing into permanent jobs. The employes added, however, that most of these attempts had failed.

Investigators could, however, find violations of the Pendleton Act if they found that attempts had been made to fill jobs on the basis of political alliances.

Plane but no pilot

Police found light plane, which crashed in Salem, Ore., Saturday, demolished, but the cockpit empty. Two Willamette College students later were charged with theft of the plane. Kevin Smith, 20, and David Anderson, 23, were hospitalized and in serious condition. Smith with internal injuries and Anderson with head injuries. They told police they had walked five blocks from scene of the crash to the university, and fraternity brothers took them to Smith's home. — UPI

First super-destroyer launched

New York Times Service

PASCAGOULA, Miss. — Litton Industries' new shipyard here, a pioneer in automation and a target of harsh criticism, launched its first warship Saturday — the lead ship in a multi-billion-dollar fleet of super-destroyers.

The launching, an innovative updating of an old maritime ritual, came several months ahead of the contract schedule.

But the total program was reported lagging slightly because of a persisting labor shortage. Litton officials expressed hope that the highly encouraging initial trend of the 30-ship destroyer program would start muffling the controversy that has soured the yard's early years.

The main cause of that controversy — a giant amphibious-assault ship that is two years behind schedule and far above even her contractual "ceiling" costs — stood silently near the launching site, ready to follow the destroyer into the water on Dec. 1.

The DD-963 class destroyer set afloat Saturday was the U.S.S. Spruance, named for the late Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, who had been given major credit for World War II victories at Midway and the Philippine Sea.

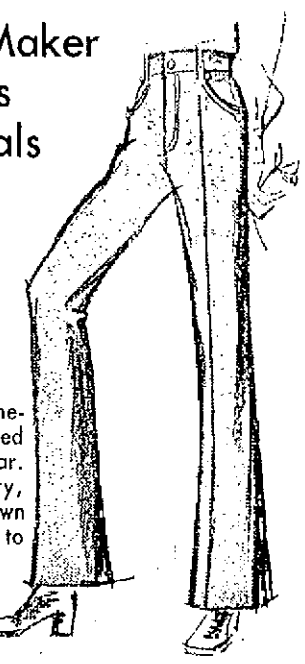

At 7,800 tons the Spruance is almost twice the size of the Navy's latest destroyers — the Forrest Sherman class built between 1955 and 1969. She is also the first major U.S. warship to be powered by gas-turbine engines borrowed from the world of jet aviation.

The Spruance, only 50 per cent complete although her basic structure is finished, will be delivered to the Navy in about a year.

The most familiar element of the launching was the breaking of the standard bottle of champagne, a role performed by Admiral Spruance's widow.

FOR YOUR HEART'S SAKE?

Drinkers' heart attack rate said lower

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Drinkers had fewer heart attacks than teetotalers in a large California study, the American Heart Association was told Saturday.

"The explanation for the happy finding is not clear," said researchers from the Kaiser Permanente Medical Care Program.

The finding emerged from a study of the possible role of tobacco, coffee, aspirin and alcohol as predictors of heart attacks, the Oakland researchers reported to the heart association's 1973 scientific sessions.

The researchers at Kaiser Permanente, the country's largest prepaid medical care program, compared 464 persons who suffered attacks to control groups of people who had not suffered a heart attack.

Two control groups, each of 464 persons, were selected by computer from 250,000 medical records. One group included cigarette smokers.

The researchers found there were slightly fewer teetotalers among those who had suffered a heart attack than in the control groups.

They also found that the non-heart attack groups included more people who reported drinking more than three drinks a day, or more than six drinks a day.

"Most previous studies," the researchers aid, "have shown no relationship between usage or non-usage of alcohol in coronary disease. The explanation for the apparent slightly decreased risk of heart attack among users of alcohol in this study is not clear.

"The investigators feel that the results do not yet warrant the conclusion that drinking alcohol has a protective effect."

The study also found that cigarette smoking was strongly associated with heart attacks, that there was a "weakly positive" association for heavy aspirin usage and no association for coffee drinking.

In the alcohol segment of the study, a questionnaire revealed "a substantial proportion" of future heart attack victims who answered "yes" to this question: "Do you sometimes drink in the mornings?" The questionnaires were completed before the individuals had their heart attacks.

However, there were no differences between the heart attack group and control groups in their responses to these questions: "Do you sometimss get drunk on workdays?" and "Before one year ago, at some time in the past, were you a heavy drinker?"

"It is of interest," the researchers said, "that fewer persons in the heart attack group stated that they had a family history of alcoholism. Heavy drinking may be, in part, an environmentally inherited social habit. This, in turn, may be related to genetic factors which protect against the development of coronary heart disease."

Hypertension in 1 of 3

By AL ROSSITER JR.
UPI Science Editor

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — The first mass blood pressure tests carried out in a major metropolitan area, New Orleans, found that one out of every three persons checked was afflicted with high blood pressure, it was reported Saturday.

"If the New Orleans blood pressure screening program is representative of our population, then 200,000 New Orleanians have high blood pressure and roughly 124,000 are not yet aware of it," two New Orleans doctors said.

They also reported at the annual meeting of the American Heart Association that the two-day screening effort carried out last April showed as have earlier, more limited surveys, that males and blacks were most likely to have high blood pressure.

High blood pressure is a major cause of heart attack, stroke and kidney disease. Dr. Theodore Cooper, director of the National Heart and Lung Institute, said at a news conference that high blood pressure "is the largest chronic disease problem in this country at the present time."

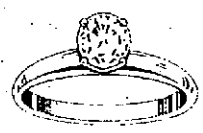

One of the major problems in treating the disease, doctors say, is that half of those who have high blood pressure are not aware of it.

Repair jobs may delay launching

New York Times Service

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Work to replace defective tail fins on the Saturn rocket continued to run behind schedule Saturday, but the space agency remained hopeful that the Skylab 3 mission would be launched next Thursday.

Only two of the eight cracked stabilizing fins have been replaced. High winds slowed the work during the night, increasing concern that a further delay in the lift-off may be unavoidable.

Launching officials have said they must have four new fins in place by this afternoon if they are to avoid further delays in the start of the planned 85-day manned space mission. All eight must be replaced by Tuesday when the countdown is scheduled to be resumed.

Engineers of the Chrysler corporation, the rocket's builder, believe they can meet the schedule, particularly if no further problems are uncovered and if, as they become more familiar with the procedures, they are able to begin replacing two fins at a time.

Skylab officials are expected to decide today if the Thursday launching deadline is still realistic or if an additional five-day delay must be ordered. Lift-off is now scheduled for 9:37 a.m. Thursday.

Lt. Col. Gerald P. Carr of the marines, Lt. Col. William R. Pogue of the Air Force and Dr. Edward G. Gibson, a scientist-astronaut, were to have begun their mission Saturday morning. They are the third and final crew of astronauts scheduled to live and work in the nation's giant space station, which is orbiting 270 miles above the earth.

Year-round daylight savings plan hailed

Daylight savings was put into effect during World War II, and in the 20 years following that war more and more states adopted it as a summer convenience.

In 1966 President Johnson signed a daylight savings time bill. It established the months of May through October as daylight savings months, but it allowed exemption for for states that did not want to participate.

Since 1969 all but four states — Alaska, Hawaii, Arizona and Michigan — have been rolling the blocks forward in the spring and moving them back in late October.

With all if its appeal, daylight savings was never seriously considered as an environmental measure until early in this decade.

One of the first to recognize its potential was a Riverside County supervisor, who called for clocks to be turned forward. This would cause the morning rush hour to come during a drier part of the day, he said, cutting down on air pollutants.

ANOTHER reason was suggested by Hosmer, who in 1969 proposed year-round daylight savings because, among other things, it would save electricity.

It is the potential for saving electricity that now makes daylight savings time all year long more than a convenience. It now appears to be a necessity.

The demand for light creates a demand for electricity. The demand for electricity creates a demand for fuel oil, coal, natural gas, nuclear — to turn the generators.

While the electric companies obviously are not solely responsible for the shortage of fuels (energy) they are major users and as such they certainly play a part in the energy crisis. If the demand for electricity goes down — via daylight savings — the use of critical fuels also goes down.

What kind of impact will daylight savings time have in Long Beach?

GEORGE Hanawalt, district manager for Southern California Edison Co. in Long Beach, put it this way:

"It will have a definite impact, no question about that. We have stimated a deficiency of six to 12 million barrels of oil for 1974. If we go on daylight savings, we estimate we would save 550,000 barrels a year just in this area."

That becomes even more significant when viewed from another angle. Edison has an increasing dependency on oil. In 1968 Edison used 86 per cent natural gas; in 1973 it was only 28 per cent, Hanwalt said.

In other areas the return to daylight savings will be less dramatic but nonetheless significant.

Bob Creighton, Long Beach assistant city manager, said the city has a special energy commission which is studying all aspects of energy use and shortages. The commission is studying daylight savings time as it applys to energy use.

"WE HAVE no statistics at the city level, but the state says a return to daylight savings time would save one day of energy per year. I presume that would apply to the local level," said Creighton.

He added there might be a minimal savings on city buildings by decreasing the use of light and heat, but there would be no savings on street lights, which operate during hours of darkness no matter what the time.

That may not appear to be a significant savings, but the city's electricity bilp is about $2.5 million per year. Not only is an energy use reduction necessary, it's economical. On a nationwide basis the savings in dollars and energy would be considerable, even at a savings rate of one-third of one per cent.

THE impact of daylight savings on the use of natural gas is more difficult to assess. Gerald Herman, spokesman for the Long Beach Gas Department, said there would be no way to calculate the effect because of variable factors.

Among those factors would be the severity of the winter; whether homeowners turned down their thermostats as the President asked; the fact that this daylight savings time would begin in winter; the possibility that evening savings in gas would be offset by heavier morning use, and the demand for electricity produced by gas generators.

"We really don't think it will have much bearing on the use of gas," said Herman. But gas and its connection to the production of electricity is an integral part of the energy chain.

There appears to be no direct effect on the use of water, at least not the quantity of water.

"A check of the consumption records indicates there was no change in the volume of use at the time of the last change from daylight savings time," said Blaine Vernon, administrative aide for the Long Beach Water Department.

"We don't anticipate there would be an adverse change in the water supply with a return to daylight savings," he said. "There might be a change in the time of consumption, but over the day or week there wouldn't be any sifnificant change in the amount used."

And while the President's energy crisis message made no reference to water conservation, it is connected to energy use. Water is pumped by electric pumps and heated by natural gas and electricity.

An extra hour of light at the end of the day will have an effect on areas of law enforcement.

"From all aspects, a return to daylight savings would be welcomed," said Maurice Wishon, assistant chief of the Long Beach Police Department.

"We know we have less traffic accidents and less serious accidents because people are riding home in the daylight," he said. For that reason alone daylight savings would be welcome, he said. And while Wishon doesn't necessarily agree that nighttime crime goes down, that argument has been made forcefully by daylight savings advocates.

THE California Highway Patrol said it does not anticipate any problems in returning to daylight savings time, and a spokesman in Los Angeles disagreed with Wishon's assessment of the traffic accident problem, saying that "most accidents happen between 3 and 6 p.m. whether it's daylight or dark."

A spokesman for the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department supported Wishon's position, saying that National Safety Council statistics show that more accidents occur during twilight hours. Under daylight savings time, most commuters would be home before the twilight hours.

Studies of energy use are under way in many large institutions and corporations such as Long Beach State University, Long Beach City College, Douglas Aircraft Co. and others.

The shifts to daylight savings will have little impact on many of the large employers.

CAPT. Anthony W. Duacsek, commander of the Long Beach Naval Shipyard which employs 6,850 persons, said "We put in our hours and whether we have an extra hour of daylight really wouldn't make any difference."

Merv Jencks, community relations officer for Procter & Gamble Mfg., Co., which employs about 600, said he couldn't see it having an adverse effect or making any improvement, since the company operates around the clock.

"The corporation hasn't had time to assess the overall impact but the first view is, a return to daylight savings time will not have a recognizable effect on production. The only inconvenience will be setting back the clocks," he said.

Most of the 61,765 students in the Long Beach Unified School District would not be affected by the change because it is already light when classes start and classes end while it is still light, a district spokesman said.

Night classes at LBSU and City College could be expected to require lighting since most classrooms do not have enough windows to provide natural light even in early evening. Studies at those schools may indicate lighting can be reduced or extinguished, depending on the circumstances.

ONE person who would be willing to turn off classroom lights if necessary is Lakewood Mayor Mark Hannaford, an instructor at City College.

Hannaford said that while he always felt it would be wise to go to year-round daylight savings, he thought savings realized in Lakewood city buildings would "not be a substantial matter."

He added that it would conform better to the city's working hours of 8 a.m. to 5:15 p.m., "Count me a vote in favor," he said.

Another area that could be affected by severe shortages would be the school athletic programs, particularly night games held where lighting is necessary. games schedules could shift to Saturday afternoon if necessary, but problems with attendance could be bothersome. There is no indication at this time that this will happen, but the problem will have to be considered.

Finally, General telephone Co. expects no problems with a shift to daylight savings time, other than resetting certain time machines that log the length of calls.

There may be some consolation in knowing the phones can be used to call some New York artists who are worried about the comfort of their nude models. Every crisis has its bright spots and in the case of the poor artists, maybe daylight savings time is a blessing in disguise.

New York cuts Speed limits

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller imposed a maximum speed limit of 50 miles an hour on all interstate roads, state highways and parkways in New York Saturday, and ordered a study to determine whether public school classes can be rescheduled to save energy.

Damages cut in IBM suit

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A federal judge Saturday chopped $93 million from a mammoth antitrust judgment against International Business Machines, leaving damages awarded Telex Corp. at $259.5 million.

U.S. District Judge A. Sherman Christensen then denied IBM a stay of execution on a portion of his final decree ordering the computer giant to comply strictly with the Sherman Antitrust Act in the pricing and leasing of peripheral computer products.

IBM attorneys argued the order was already implicit in other parts of the decree and making it specific would allow Telex, a Tulsa, Okla., computer firm, to ask for a contempt citation whenever it disagreed with an IBM business policy.

IBM asked for a stay pending the outcome of an appeal to the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver, Colo.

TELEX attorneys argued the stay would "take the guts out" of the injunctive relief they had been awarded.

Christensen agreed, saying he had already modified the rest of his final judgment and that made the specific prohibition of antitrust violations all the more important.

However, he did grant IBM a brief delay to allow the appeal to the circuit court.

The judge originally awarded Telex $352.5 million in treble damages in a suit by Telex charging IBM with violating the antitrust act through its computer marketing methods.

He also awarded IBM a counterclaim of $21.9 million, which Telex was ordered to pay for conducting industrial espionage.

The judge later announced he had made "substantial errors" in calculating the damages to IBM.

CHRISTENSEN said the amount was reduced "to reflect additional factors which I concluded had not been adequately taken into account in my initial determination of damages."

These included $17.5 million in damages representing items in the counterclaim judgment against Telex, $7.5 million for additional trade secret misappropriation advantages not covered in the counterclaim, and $6 million for the corrective effects of his orders directing IBM to change its sales practices.

The judge said the three changes reduced the actual damages against IBM from $117.5 million to $86.5 million. The amount was then tripled under antitrust damage procedures.

The $259.5 million damage award was Christensen's final ruling in the complex case, which is expected to spend several years in federal appellate courts.

IN ADDITION to cutting the award to Telex, Christensen modified the changes he had ordered IBM to make in its computer marketing practices.

He ordered IBM to market peripheral computer products separately rather than as part of a package with its mainline computers, a practice Telex contended prevented competitors from selling peripheral equipment.

An IBM spokesman said the company was essentially doing what the judge had ordered now, and the only part of the judgment the firm disagreed with was the interpretation of the Sherman Antitrust Act.

Public will hear tapes: Aiken

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — President Nixon intends to make public the contents of White House tapes and documents related to the Watergate scandal after they are submitted to the courts, Sen. George D. Aiken said Saturday.

"The President will apparently be glad to confide with the public," said Aiken, the senior Senate Republican who was among top GOP Congress members who discussed with Nixon on Friday how Watergate is affecting the government.

"My impression is very strong that he is willing to release everything relating to the Watergate without being in contempt of court," he added.

HE SAID it is his understanding that it will be about five weeks before the President could make the documents available because of the court proceedings. He said he did not know whether original documents or transcripts would be released.

The White House had promised on Friday absolute cooperation with Watergate prosecutors and the courts, and said new material will be given to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to fill the gaps left by two conversations that the White House says went unrecorded.

Meanwhile, the President was working and relaxing at his Camp David, Md., mountain retreat. Mrs. Nixon and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Eisenhower, were with him.

Nixon left for Camp David Friday after meeting with congressional GOP leaders without the customary notification to newsmen. A reporter also was barred by security personnel from his usual task of watching his helicopter land inside the mountaintop complex.

PRESS Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen Nixon worked during the day on both the energy program and Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts to nail down a solid peace in the Middle East.

He said the President will breakfast at the White House Monday with 50 members of the Republican Coordinating Committee — which includes certain GOP congressmen, governors, and members of the Republican National Committee — and was considering several meetings with congressmen next week where the Watergate problems would be a topic of discussion.

In front of the White House, meanwhile, nearly 75 persons, braving a 39-degree chill and occasional jeers from passing motorists and pedestrians, held a "Support Nixon" rally Saturday.

The predominantly youthful demonstrators waved flags, carried signs and chanted as they marched in a circle alongside Pennsylvania Avenue, just beyond the White House fence.

CHANTING "Three more years" and "Impeach the Washington Post," the demonstrators were as enthusiastic in their criticism of the news media as in their support for Nixon.

The marchers carried banners reading, "Impeach Sam Ervin" and "Don't let the press destroy American." Organizers said they were "delighted" with the turnout and planned similar demonstrations in the future.

Meanwhile, letters are pouring into the offices of the House Judiciary Committee at the rate of 5,000 to 6,000 a day and running better than 35 to 1 in favor of the impeachment of Nixon.

Pound foolish

My problem is that I can't handle a dime let alone my monthly salary. I don't know what to do with all my debts. I'm a divorced woman with a 6-year-old daughter and I really need some help! N.M., Long Beach.

The Consumer Credit Counselors of Los Angeles, 945 S. Western Ave., Room 203, Los Angeles, Calif. 90006, may be able to help you. This nonprofit agency analyzes individuals' financial problems and helps them set up a budget, free of charge. For a small fee, a counselor will make arrangements to receive a certain amount of money from you each month to distribute to your creditors. To make an appointment, call the office at 737-3130. You will be sent an application form on which you list your creditors, cost of living and total net income. Then a day or evening appointment will be made for you. First aid

In June I ordered five emergency leather medical kits from Paramount Surgical Supply Corp. of Northwale, N.J. I sent a check for $80 but I still have not received my order. I sent a telegram and a certified letter requesting a refund but with no results. Could ACTION LINE please help me? M. R., Long Beach.

ACTION LINE contacted the company and by now you have received a refund. A company spokesman said that the medical kits were on back order and they misinterpreted your telegram and certified letter to mean that you still wanted your order sent.

Mailers

What are the guidelines concerning California Senate and Assembly mailing privileges? Are legislators allowed to campaign for or against ballot propositions using postage paid for by the taxpayers, as some seem to do? D. D., Long Beach, and C. H., Norwalk.

Legislators are not supposed to send information of a "partisan or political" nature at taxpayer's expense, but these terms are not clearly defined. All literature sent through the state government printing office first must be approved by either the Senate or the Assembly Rules Committee. An assemblyman is permitted three free mailings per year for every registered household in his district. A senator is annually allocated 15 cents per voter in his district, which amounts to about two mailings a year to each household. Legislators cannot use their mailing privileges to endorse candidates, but they can discuss propositions. They can give their personal views on a particular measure, but they're not supposed to tell the voters which way to vote.

Street sport

Can ACTION LINE find out if there is a street hockey league in this area? T. D., Huntington Beach.

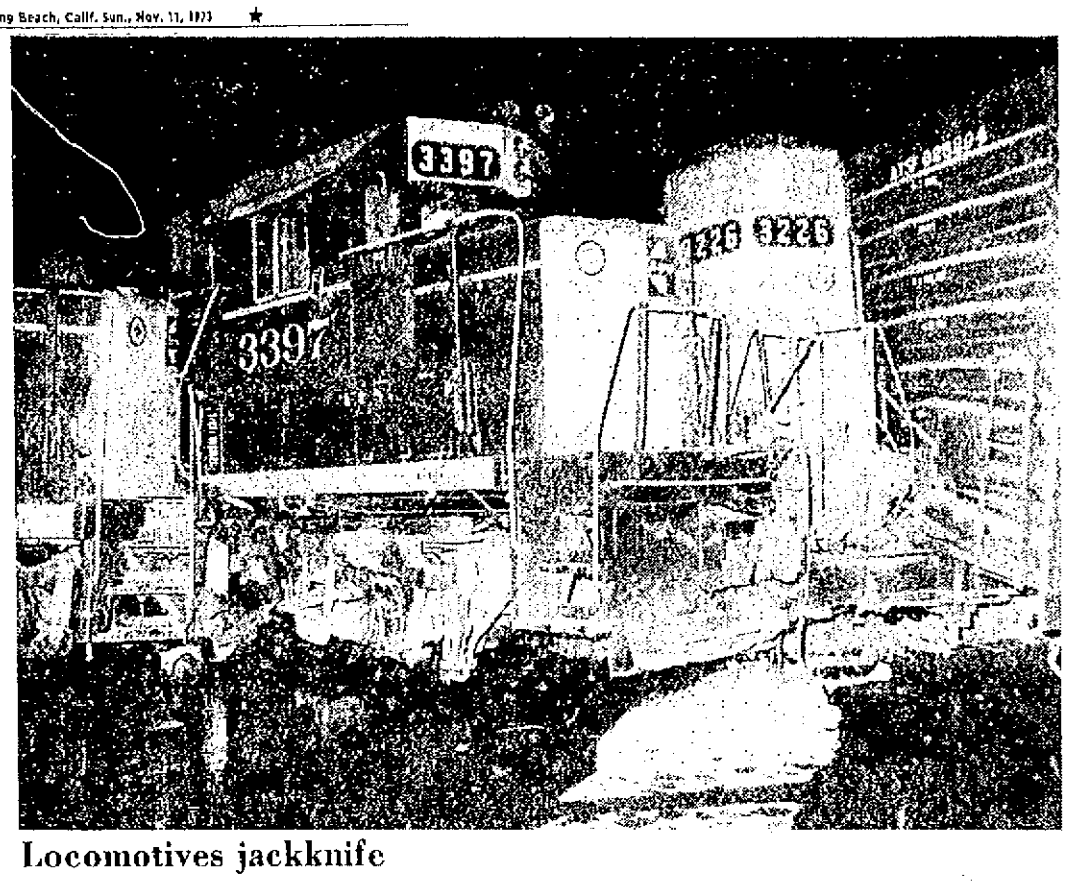

We could find no local organized street hockey activity. From the information ACTION LINE gathered, the game, like stick ball, a street variation of baseball appears to be indigenous to New York City and played nowhere else. The game, which is a makeshift form of field hockey, is played on city streets, often with the members of one neighborhood pitted against the residents of another block. The participants often play on roller skates.

Mild fall weather slated to continue

Mild fall weather will continue through Monday in the Long Beach area, the National Weather Service predicted Saturday.

Overcast mornings today and Monday will be followed by hazy afternoon sunshine, forecasters said. Nights will be damp, they added, with low clouds and possibly with some patchy fog in coastal regions.

In Long Beach, where Saturday's high was 77, the high today will remain in the upper 70s, dipping into the low 70s Monday. Nightly low temperatures will drop into the middle 50s, the weather service said.

Israel, Egypt set to sign truce today capitals last week is designed to strengthen the Oct. 24 United Nations cease-fire and open the way for a Middle East peace conference aimed at settling the 25-year-old Arab-Israeli conflict that has led to four wars.

"Only one thing is more important than a cease fire — peace," Mrs. Meir said as she boarded a plane for a meeting of the Socialist International in London.

The peace plan provides that daily supplies of food, water and medicine will be allowed through Israeli lines in Egypt into Suez city, at the southern end of the Suez Canal, and that wounded Egyptian civilians will be evacuated from the town.

It calls for free passage of nonmilitary supplies to the east bank of the Suez Canal, where the Israelis say they have Egyptian 3rd Army of about 20,000 soliders encircled.

The pact says Israeli checkpoints on the eastern end of the Cairo-Suez road will be taken over by the United Nations. But it authorizes Israeli officers to participate in supervising the delivery of supplies.

Sources said Mrs. Meir's government hesitated in accepting Kissinger's deal at first because of doubts about cease-fire lines, control of the corridor into Suez City, the sequence of events and the failure of the agreement to mention the Egyptian blockade ability at Bab el-Mandeb Strait on the entrance to the Red Sea.

MRS. MEIR conferred with U.S. Ambassador Kenneth B. Keating on Saturday for the second time since Washington announced the terms of Kissinger's six-point package. Sources at the State Department in Washington described the Israeli objections as technical.

There was no word on what assurances Keating gave Mrs. Meir. But they apparently were enough to win her final approval, which she had been withholding despite an earlier declaration of acceptance in principle.

Mrs. Meir described two of the most essential Israel objections: "There should be a cease-fire on the sea, in the air and on the ground," she said. "For it is impossible to have a cease-fire in only one place and have shooting in another.

"Secondly, there is a strong basis for hope that not much time will pass — can say not many days — when we will see our men — prisoners — returning from Egypt."

The return of Israeli prisoners has been a key Israeli demand during all the talk of new accords to solidify the cease-fire and get a peace conference started.

ISRAEL says Egypt holds about 320 Israeli prisoners and Syria about 155. They are pushing for a general POW exchange, claiming to hold about 6,900 Egyptians and another 100 Syrians, Jordanians, Iraqis and Moroccans.

The Israeli prisoners held by Syria are not covered in the pact, which Syria has ignored. In New York, Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban asked U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to take vigorous international action to make sure these prisoners are not neglected.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat originally had refused to accept any prisoner exchange unless Israeli invasion forces pulled back to the cease-fire lines as they stood Oct. 22.

That was the date of the first U.N. Security Council cease-fire, which was never respected. Egypt says the Israelis grabbed a large chunk of Egyptian land west of the canal between then and Oct. 24, when the second cease-fire took hold.

Kissinger's flair for diplomacy apparently won a softening of that position.

Off-campus education proposed more effective than a fragmented effort with each segment defining its own goals and interests."

The proposed California Cooperative University, committee members said, "should have the primary responsibility for planning and coordinating off-campus programs and should be authorized to offer its own programs and award credits and degrees."

Vasconcellos, in an accompanying statement, said the Legislature had already moved toward implementation of the recommendation by directing the joint committee to oversee a feasibility study on the proposal.

The report stressed the need for diversity and flexibility in higher education, and criticized the reliance on doctorates, published research, rigid college preparatory requirements in high school, and an overemphasis on the "certification and credentialing functions in our societies" by higher education.

"Learning, not credentialing, is the primary purpose of higher education," the report stated.

The report repeated February's charge that "the most telling criticism of the California system is its fragmentation of responsibility which has led to a critical absence of statewide coordination, planning, and policy development."

The report charged that "at our committee hearings leaders of California higher education seemed more interested in institutional and segmental self-sufficiency than in coordination of educational services to benefit the people of California."

Such "institutional isolation and self-sufficiency is neither educationally nor economically sound," the report continued. "California's system of higher education must be viewed as a total resource to the state as a whole, and to each area in the state."

ALTHOUGH all members of the committee signed the 126-page report, four members wrote partial dissents, including Sen. Dennis E. Carpenter, R-Newport Beach.

Sen. Carpenter objected to a proposal that gubernatorial appointments to the Board of Regents and Board of Trustees must be made from a list prepared by a nominating committee.

The proposal, made for the purpose of removing politics from board appointments, would only increase the amount of politicking by persons desiring appointments, he said.

The report recommended that regents, like trustees, should serve single eight-year terms. Regents now serve terms of 16 years.

Committee members urged a continuing review and updating of the functions and objectives of public higher education in California. This should include frequent lay analyses of assumptions made by leaders in higher education, the report concluded.

Ear, reported to be Getty heir's, mailed

ROME (UPI) — A human ear sent to a Rome newspaper along with a renewed ransom from the purported kidnapers of J. Paul Getty III Saturday was tentatively identified by his mother as that of the missing grandson of the American oil billionaire, police sources said.

The sources said that the boy's mother made tentative idenfication of the ear and lock of hair, although police said they could not be sure until Monday, when a medical examination should tell whether the ear was taken from a live person or a corpse.

The ear and hair wrapped in adhesive tape and bandages were mailed in a carton postmarked Oct. 22, according to the newspaper which received them.

Nam said.

He listed the site of the bombing as Lo Go, in Tan Bien district of Tay Ninh Province. Neither the town nor the district appear on maps of South Vietnam or of Tay Ninh Province. However, Viet Cong place names sometimes differ from those in use by international mapping agencies. Tay Ninh Province is about 50 miles northwest of Saigon.

However, Nam said Lo Go was 21 miles northwest of the provincial capital of Tay Ninh City, which would place it in area along the Cambodian border in extreme northwestern Tay Ninh Province, about 75 Miles northwest of Saigon.

In other action, rockets and mortars struck the area surrounding the fallen outposts of Bu Prang, Bu Bong and Dak Song near the Cambodian border and Communist gunners pounded a Mekong Delta naval base, a South Vietnamese government spokesman said.

A government infantry unit operating four miles south of the border post of Bu Prang, 110 miles north of Saigon, was hit by 50 rounds of 82mm mortar shells along with rockets and small arms fire Saturday morning. The infantry returned the fire, killing six Communists, a government communique said.

In the U Minh Forest near the Gulf of Thailand in the Mekong Delta, 125 miles southwest of Saigon, a predawn, 100-round mortar barrage hit the Xeo Ro naval base Saturday, government spokesmen said. A soldier was killed, 16 others wounded and three river patrol boats damaged.

A North Vietnamese military newspaper charged that American reconnaissance planes have violated North Vietnam's air space 10 times in the last four months.

The Communists said some of the reconnaissance missions were made by the SR71—successor to the U2 spy planes — as late as last Thursday over the north's two major cities of Hanoi and Haiphong.

Demos begin work on national charter

ATLANTA, Ga. (UPI — The Democratic Party Charter Commission began a three-day session Saturday to lay the groundwork for drafting of the party's first proposed national charter.

The commission established six major areas of study to gather ideas that will be passed later to a drafting committee, a party official said.

One subject was discussion of guidelines for delegate selection, but members steered clear of recommending specific procedures for the controversial delegate process.

"We are certainly not going to write eternal rules for delegate selection," said Mrs. Lesley Israel of Bethesda, Md., moderator of the non-discrimination and delegate selection policy panel.

But she said the charter document would include broad antidiscrimination language for all levels of the party.

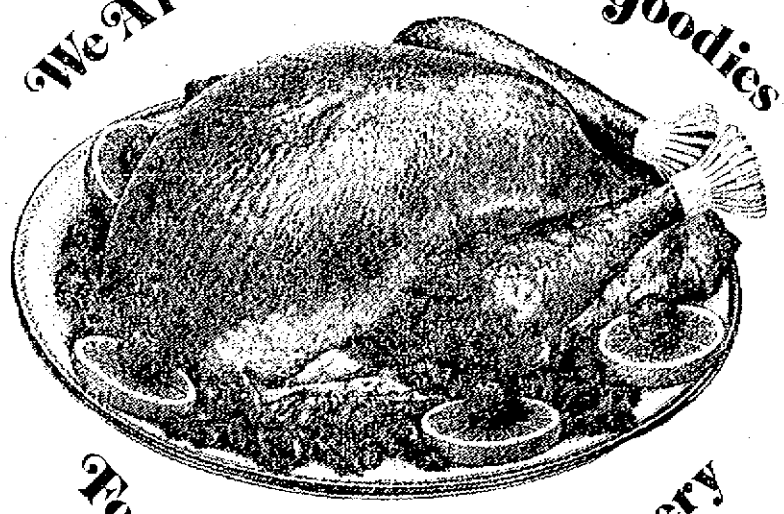

"What's beginning to emerge is the sense that a charter is a document of principles and obligations, but not a mechanical manual for implementation of them," said Mrs. Israel. "The methods of implementation will change as circumstances change."

Panel member Ben Brown of Atlanta recommended that the Democratic National Committee be given power to certify state parties based on compliance with principles set forth in the charter, which is intended to serve as a general policy document.

Mack Easeley of Hobbs, N.M., recommended that delegates to the national convention be certified before arriving at the convention to avoid divisive public fights.

The 160-member commission was created by the 1972 national convention and instructed to write a charter proposal that could be considered by a special national party conference in mid-1974.

Dallas to Watergate: 10 years of turmoil

By ROBERT D. PARMET
Written for UPI

Ten difficult years have passed since the assassination of John F. Kennedy. When it occurred many of us were certain it would be as traumatic a national disaster as we would ever experience. As people still recall where they were when Pearl Harbor was attacked or Franklin Roosevelt died, many of us sensed immediately that we could not conceivably forget our whereabouts at the time of this tragedy of comparable consequence.

Our grief was overwhelming. Our loss was of a 46-year old president of extraordinary intellect and personal magnetism who had injected vitality and style into an office seemingly tired and directionless in the waning years of the Eisenhower administration. However, while we mourned and feared for the future, we had no expectation that the events of the next decade would at times be so nightmarish that JFK's death could today be viewed as a distant beginning of a long spiritual depression.

Cynicism and doubt set in almost immediately in the hours and days following Nov. 22, 1963. The millions of families that clustered, as mine did, before Television sets that Friday and through the next Monday were witnesses to the incredible. The arrest of Lee Harvey Oswald, the alleged but not confessed assassin, his Sunday morning slaying by Jack Ruby, and then, finally, the president laid to rest before a dispirited and confused nation.

Nobody, it seemed, was quite certain how it had all happened, and before people wiped away their tears they embraced unsubstantiated but inventive theories. Not even the report of a presidential commission headed by U.S. Chief Justice Earl Warren, issued the next fall, could convince many that there had been no conspiracy. Subsequent critiques of the report and conflicting interpretations of the tragedy revealed an already present but growing public distrust of official pronouncements and those who made them.

The "Kennedy style," combining youthful vigor, intellectual sophistication, compassion for the poor, aged and oppressed, and foreign policy boldness had been exciting. Ignoring substantive failures, many people were won over by the activism and attractiveness of the "New Frontier." There was little focus, at that time, on the American presence in Indochina, where "advisement" was sustaining the government of South Vietnam against Communist guerrilla forces.

COMING to the presidency under the most trying of circumstances, Lyndon B. Johnson first made strenuous and successful moves to continue Kennedy policies. As he began in office, the public's goodwill was clearly his, especially when he quickly reaffirmed his commitment to the Kennedy legislative program. However, as much as he would pledge himself to labor for "all the people," Johnson could not capture the popular imagination. He struggled to convince the public that his liberalism was sincere. Furthermore, he had to transcend mutual hostility between himself and the Kennedys, in particular, brother Robert, the attorney general. Finally, there were his press relations, which were never warm, and television image, which was never comfortable. The new president's credibility soon came into question. After 1965, when he sharply increased America's involvement in Vietnam, it was virtually destroyed.

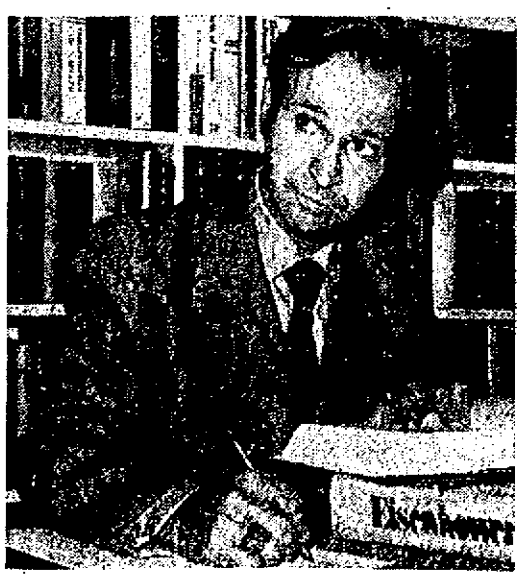

BUT ON the wave of the public's post-assassination sympathy, Johnson applied political muscle and broke the logjam that had bedeviled his predecessor. Nineteen sixty four was the year of a tax reduction stimulating to the economy and benefitting primarily the middle and lower classes, a Civil Rights Act dealing with public accommodations, a Job Corps to combat poverty, and a forestry conservation program. With these domestic achievements and assurances of nonescalation in Vietnam, he was a landslide re-election victor in November over Arizona's Barry Goldwater.

With a mass of legislation reminiscent of the New Deal, the president attempted to overwhelm his critics and establish his place in history. Legislation in 1965 ranged from Medicare to voting rights to immigration reform. An impressive list, but overshadowed by Vietnam. Fearing a Communist victory, with its obvious domestic as well as international implications, Johnson ordered the bombing of North Vietnam and a sharp increase in the American troops commitment. Citing the August 1964 Gulf of Tonkin Resolution, which authorized presidential action "to repel" attacks against American forces and "to prevent further aggression," he claimed to have a legal basis for his action. This escalation stunned the nation, and President Johnson also now faced the task of properly funding his "Great Society" programs despite an expanding military budget.

HISTORY PROF. ROBERT D. PARMET
Reviews Difficult Kennedy to Nixon Era

About the author:

On Nov. 22, 1963, Robert D. Parmet was a 24-year-old graduate student in history at Columbia University and Lecturer at the City College of New York. On his way to a class that day a student stopped him to tell him President Kennedy had been shot in Dallas, it was not known how seriously.

"During the next hour," he recalls, "I and my students, worried but not yet aware of the President's death, discussed the troubled state of American civilization."

Subsequently, Parmet obtained a Doctorate at Columbia and taught at Newark (N.J.) State College before going to the City University of New York, where he presently he is an associate professor and chairman of the history and philosophy department at York College. In 1971 he co-authored the book "American Nativism, 1830-1860."

college campuses and in minority ghettos, malaise was evident. First the loss of Kennedy, and then the prospect of unwanted military service in Indochina. The mood was on the one hand antiauthoritarian and on the other antiwhite. The student rebellion, beginning at the University of California at Berkeley, became national in scope. Antiwar "teach-ins," demands for "student power" and curricular reform, and occasional violence soon appeared at almost every major university. Leading the war were the radicals on the "New Left" and Students for a Democratic Society.

Others among the young found different outlets for their fears and frustrations. Some drifted into the self-destructive, drug-ridden "hippy" environment of places such as San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury section or New York City's East Village. Some chose political action, as in Minnesota where Sen. Eugene McCarthy's "Children's Crusade" for the presidency originated. Those seeking to avoid the draft did so either through shrewd counseling, graduate school enrollment, or desperate flight to Canada.

AMERICAN blacks were the group hardest hit by the new despair. The old realities of poverty and prejudice were in evidence as the civil rights movement of the '50s and early '60s seemed to run out of energy. Slogans, marches and laws had not fundamentally improved ghetto life. If anything, things were worsening, with drugs, crime and the draft taking the young and unemployment and welfare continuing to erode family structure. With a new black extremism arising, the once militant Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. seemed tame and the articulate Malcolm X was assassinated by fellow blacks in 1965.

Decade of declining White House credibility

When the ghettos erupted in 1964, the "long, hot summer" became commonplace in American cities. New York, the Watts section of Los Angeles, Chicago, Newark, Detroit — virtually every major city suffered rioting and devastation through 1968. "Black Power!" was the cry. The final wave was touched off in April 1968 by the Memphis assassination of Dr. King.

FROM THE buoyant self-confidence of the Kennedy years, the nation in 1968 was plunged into a morass of self-doubt. Dr. King's murder was the first of a series of shocks that year. On March 31 came Lyndon Johnson's announcement that he would not seek or accept renomination. With Johnson retiring, Robert Kennedy stepped forward to challenge front-runner Hubert Humphrey. In June, on his night of triumph in the California primary, he became the second Kennedy to be assassinated. Two months later Vice President Humphrey's nomination by the Democrats came amidst unbelievable chaos outside their Chicago convention hall. Thousands of peace demonstrators, most of them young, clashed with police and troops. Then came the challenge of Alabama's George C. Wallace. And surviving all was Republican Richard M. Nixon, calling for a restoration of "law and order" at home and pledging to end the war in Vietnam.

Swinging the political pendulum to the right, President Nixon spoke to the "silent majority" resentful of dissidents and supportive of the anti-Communist venture in Vietnam. Through gradual replacement of American troops with South Vietnamese, a process he called "Vietnamization," Nixon sought to end American ground combat even if there should be no peace settlement.

In May of 1970, when Nixon announced a troop "incursion" into Cambodia, American campuses again rose in protest culminating in the Kent State killings. However, in mid-1971, by Nixon reversing his economic stance to check persistent inflation with federal controls, and announcing periodic troop withdrawals and increasingly lower draft calls, criticism of the administration subsided. The Vietnam issue was at least partly defused though the war continued.

Now definitely on the upswing, Nixon made another reversal. Deciding after two decades of animosity that he could live with Communists, at least those who ruled the Soviet Union and the People's Republic of China, he moved toward detente with them. By February 1972 he and special assistant (now secretary of state) Henry Kissinger received a gracious Peking reception which was followed in May by an equally successful visit to Moscow. Most Americans applauded the apparent thawing of the cold war, and the President's chances for re-election improved sharply over what they had been in 1970.

Though even a strong candidate probably could not have beaten him, the opposition he faced was weak. The Democratic nominee, South Dakota's dovish senator, George McGovern, was no match for Richard Nixon. Labeled "radical" for his views on the war, draft evaders, drugs and the economy, as well as for the coalition of young and minority people behind him, he had no chance. Moreover.

Despite the June 17 arrest of Republican operatives during a break-in at Democratic National Headquarters in Washington's Watergate apartments, the President remained unthreatened. The full scope of this and other sordid affairs would not be exposed until after the election.

With the advent of 1973, and following heavy "Christmas bombing" of North Vietnam, a peace agreement finally was reached. The Indochina war, at least in Vietnam, appeared ended and prisoners were exchanged. However, through the summer and into the fall the Watergate affair jumped back into the headlines to plague and even immobilize the administration. Through civil and criminal litigation and public hearings of a special U.S. Senate committee chaired by North Carolina's Sam Ervin, the nation learned of officials obsessed with power and contemptuous of the Constitution.

Then came the shocks of the charges against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, his initial defiance and, finally his admission of guilt of income tax evasion, and his resignation.

Once again there were serious questions concerning the quality and credibility of America's leaders. Once again democracy seemed debased. From the spiritual depresssion following Dallas to the bitter discord over Vietnam, the disillusionment of Watergate and the Agnew debacle, the nation was at a moral nadir. The Camelot aura of the New Frontier seemed in the distant past.

Library holds key to Kennedy years

By JAMES R. DORSEY

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI) — The building is red brick, low slung and ugly, an example of nondescript functionalism that is basic to government architecture. The government owns it and the General Accounting Office runs it.

Most of the windowless bulk of the government records center in this Boston suburb is used to store income tax return forms.

Paradoxically, however, tucked away amid rows of bureaucratic red tape and endless 1040 forms are 20 million pages of the brief history of John F. Kennedy's presidency.

The documents include the late President's personal papers, White House files, government agency records, papers of those central to his administration, and oral histories recorded and transcribed after he was assassinated on Nov. 22, 1963.

THE DOCUMENTS, the responsibility of library director and onetime Kennedy staff assistant Dan Fenn, are the reality of the Kennedy years: Bay of Pigs, Berlin, Vienna, Cuban missile crisis, and Vietnam.

The images of the Kennedy years — the tragic but beautiful family, young John peeking out from beneath the desk, a crayon greeting card from Caroline, the rocking chair, the man of the sea — these things are there, too. They are crowded into a smaller room, run by Kennedy's former aide-de-camp, friend and baseball statistician, David Powers.

Eventually — the family hopes by May 29, 1976, when Kennedy would have been 59 years old — the documents and more than 10,000 mementos will be moved into a $27 million library complex in Cambridge, Mass.

"WE WANT to make this an educational center in politics and the political process," Fenn said. "Then it becomes a living library and the better people understand the process, the less they are going to believe in the cesspool myth — that all important decisions are made in smoky barrooms.

Documents, tapes may be 'incredible'

"We have an obligation to handle that material, to package it, to make it useful on a broader basis that includes more than formal scholars."

Even when the library is opened in its new location, most of the significant documents still will be closed. Those papers could give researchers a behind-the-scenes look at Kennedy's foreign and domestic policies.

In addition to the documents, the library also has filed approximately 120 tape recordings, most of them made during important White House think sessions. The tapes, like many of the documents, remain classified "top secret."

"IN 30 or 40 years, when some of those tapes are finally declassified, people are going to get some incredible revelations, especially in Kennedy's foreign policy," said one library staff member, who asked not to be identified.

Not all of the documents are closed to public

Some files closed into next century scrutiny for national security reasons, Fenn said. Because of the volume of material, some of it has not yet been read and catalogued. And some of the things were donated by persons who specified that some or all not be made public until after the donor or a person mentioned in the document has died.

But the files of the Central Intelligence Agency, National Security Council, Pentagon departments and other key agencies are closed, and probably will be into the 21st century.

However, the library contains a wealth of oral history, most of it from the middle-management bureaucrats in Kennedy's administration. The oral histories are vital in that they give an inside view of how the government functions, of what's really going on.

FOR EXAMPLE, Roger Hilsman, who was in charge of intelligence for the State Department, said the Bay of Pigs debacle, which occurred just weeks after Kennedy's inauguration in 1961, was the turning point in the President's conception of America's foreign policy.

"Up to the Bay of Pigs, he's a hawk," Hilsman said of Kennedy. "As a result of the Bay of Pigs, Kennedy decided to reject the recommendation of sending troops."

Dean Acheson, a carryover from the Truman administration and Kennedy's roving foreign policy adviser, said Kennedy consulted him about the Cuban invasion idea after it was developed, and Acheson told him the scheme was "disastrous."

"I was very much alarmed about the thing and said I hoped he wasn't serious about it," Acheson said. "He said, 'I don't know if I'm serious or not, but this is the proposal and I've been thinking about it and it is serious — in that sense. I've not made up my mind but I'm giving it very serious thought."

Kennedy decided not to cancel the operation because of public opinion, according to Robert Amory, former deputy director of the CIA.

"Ike, he felt, had much more prestige and he (Ike) would have gone in and driven them (Castro) out," Armory said of Kennedy. "So he didn't stop what Ike began."

"After the Bay of Pigs, he (Kennedy) came to distrust (Secretary of State Dean) Rusk," Hilsman said. In December, 1961, Hilsman said, "the President sends for me, and he explains to me that he's unhappy with Rusk, but there isn't much he can do about it except to do what he's doing, that is, to act as his own secretary of state."

Contrary to those who argue that Kennedy set the stage for massive American involvement in Vitnam, several JFK aides said he would not have allowed the buildup in ground forces ordered by President Johnson.

Again, the Bay of Pigs lesson seemed to have had an affect on Kennedy's policymaking, according to Hilsman.

"In Vietnam, if Kennedy had lived, it would look quite different from the way it looks today," Hilsman said. "The way it would have ended up would have been like Laos — with a negotiated settlement and a coalition government."

Different ending seen in Vietnam

Dave Powers said that "shortly before he died, he (Kennedy) met with Defense Secretary (Robert) McNamara and Gen. Maxwell Taylor and afterwards said, 'as of 1965 we will have no foot soldiers left in Vietnam."

Hilsman denied that Kennedy or members of his administration manipulated the coup which ended in November, 1963 with the overthrow and deaths of South Vietnamese President Ngo Dinh Diem and his brother and head of the national police, Ngo Dinh Nhu.

But Hilsman said Kennedy's public statements critical of Diem's persecution of the Buddhists and threats to cut off aid unless the prosecution stopped "encouraged coup plotters."

"The Vietnamese generals came to us in August (1963) and said, 'We have information that Nhu is plotting our assassinations and is in contact with the north ... the guy's smoking opium,' which he was, 'and we're scared. We may have to move.'"

They were then told the United States would not intervene, Hilsman said.

Test case held threat to dual banking

By ED ZUCKERMAN
Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Savings and loan associations have come under a dual assault from the commercial banking industry which could lead to greater competition among financial institutions or result in the eventual destruction of the savings and loan industry.

The assault is being waged on administrative and legislative levels at the Federal Reserve Board and in Congress.

Now pending before the Federal Reserve Board is a major case to decide whether savings and loan operations are a proper activity for bank holding companies. The test case was brought by an Indianapolis bank holding company seeking permission to acquire a Phoenix savings and loan association.

After months of deliberation, the Nixon administration recently sent Congress a series of legislative recommendations to restructure the dual banking system. Basically, the proposals would remove most barriers which have separated savings and loans from commercial banks.

White some of the nation's largest savings and loan associations are eager to make the conversion to full-service banking and compete directly against their big banking brothers for depositors and borrowers, Capitol Hill experts who have been watching the developments unfold say they are uncertain whether the breaking down of barriers will reward or penalize the pubic in the long run.

ON ONE Hand, they admit that a welding together of financial services competition which is always beneficial to the public interest.

In the same breath, though, they question the ability of smaller savings and loan associations to withstand the initial pressures of competition immediately after the barriers are removed. If unable to meet new burders, they say, many of the smaller savings and loan associations would become increasingly unprofitable and the goal of achieving greater competition could never be realized.

Savings and loan associations are the backbone of the home mortgage market, a financial sector that multi service banks often find unattractive in comparison to other kinds of investment available to them. In the interest of promoting capital for home mortgage investments, savings and loan are permitted by law to pay higher rates of interest on deposits than can commercial banks. And, unlike commercial banks, savings and loans may also accept corporate savings deposits.

Although handicapped in the competition for depositors, commercial banks may make business and consumer loans and offer checking account services. Under the 1970 bank holding company amendments, commercial banks have also entered a wide array of other ventures — such as insurance underwriting, property management, leasing, bookeeping and data processing, travel agency and credit card services (notably Bankamericard and Master Charge).

AMONG the various Nixon administration proposals which Congress isn't expected to give serious thought" (until early 1975) are provisions to eliminate the interest rate differential between the two banking systems, allowing savings and loans to offer checking and credit card services, allowing commercial banks to accept corporate savings deposits, permit savings and loans to make consumer loans (automobiles and appliances) and eliminate the bad debt tax deduction permitted to savings and loans.

Missing from the barrier-breaking list, though, is the one that prohibits savings and loans from making business and corporate loans — a major and highly profitable commercial banking activity.

"Banks would be permitted to do what savings andloans can do, but the reverse is not entirely true," says one top advisor to the House Banking and Currency Committee which has jurisdiction over many of the recommendations. "The savings and loans will lose their edge on attracting deposits and making mortgage loans, and savings and loans cannot get into business loans.

"If barriers must come downin the interest of promoting competition, then they must come down equally," he added.

The most common fears against the proposals are that they will destroy the dual banking system; create a cut throat interest rate war and send home mortgage interest rates soaring.

But those fears, Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon told the Senate Banking Committee last week, "are predictable reactions from various interested groups ... each criticism is deisgned not in the hope of designing a more efficient financial system, but rather with a hope of preserving a particular, exclusive franchise that one group has versus another."

Energy crisis hurting market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices closed out an erratic and often frantic week with a loss, amid what analysts described as concern that the nation's energy problems might have a severe impact on the economy.

The week began with two days of heavy losses, followed by a two-day rally, and then culminated Friday in the biggest single session loss for the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials in 11½ years.

The blue chip indicator dropped 24.24 points Friday, its biggest single session loss since a drop of 34.94 on Blue Monday, May 28, 1962, during a confrontation between President Kennedy and the steel industry over price increases.

For the week, the Dow blue chip indicator was down 26.87 at 908.41, wiping out a valiant attempt at a recovery on Wednesday and Thursday. It has dropped more than 75 points in two weeks, virtually wiping out strong gains since mid-September.

Analysts said the severe up and down swings of the market were accentuated by institutional domination and its accompanying large block trades.

Smith losses, suits may hit $300 million

By EVERETT R. HOLLES
New York Times Service

SAN DIEGO — A large part of C. Arnholt Smith's multimillion - dollar fortune, from which he gave bountifully to send an obscure young Richard M. Nixon to Congress and later to the presidency, may be wiped out by the recent collapse on his United States National Bank.

Primary responsibility for the largest bank failure in American history has been placed by federal banking authorities on the 74-year-old San Diego financier himself.

C. ARNHOLT SMITH

WHEN U.S. National was declared insolvent on Oct. 18 by the controller of the currency, Smith was disclosed to have depleted its cash reserves by the distribution — often without knowledge of the directors, bank officials have said — of at least $398.6 million in questionable loans to promote deals set up by him and close associates.

The bank's "good assets" and $940 million in deposits were purchased by Crocker National Bank of San Francisco, which refused, however, to assume any outstanding loans linked to Smith, the maze of companies he controlled or any of his business partners.

An attorney of Smith's said the personal losses of the one-time grocery clerk and members of his family, resulting from the bank failure and its repercussions on his Westgate-California Corporation, as well as other interests, probably would amount to at least $50 million.

ANOTHER OF the financier's lawyers estimated the Smith losses at "perhaps $35 million to $38 million" on the basis of a preliminary inventory by government liquidators.

Neither estimate includes further heavy penalties that may be imposed on Smith as a result of an Internal Revenue Service action seeking $22.8 million in 1969 personal income taxes and penalties, a criminal investigation under way before a federal grand jury here at which Smith recently pleaded the Fifth Amendment, or a spate of stockholders' class-action law-suits in which he is the principal defendant.

What with lawsuits and liens, possible penalties for Smith have reached a staggering near-$300 million.

THE SIZE of Smith's personal fortune, variously estimated in the past at anywhere from $30 million to $50 million, is difficult to determine because much of it is in the names of other members of his family or, according to government prosecutors, is held by "straw men" set up to camouflage important holdings.

Five government agencies are engaged in a search here and abroad for the Smith assets — the controller of the currency, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Justice Department, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the IRS.

One of the Smith attorneys said there was "a very real danger" that the financier would be driven into bankruptcy by what he termed "a conspiracy by vicious and arrogant Washington bureaucrats to ruin this man" because of his long-term friendship and financial support of Nixon.

THE SPECTER of pauperism for the man once acclaimed as "Mr. San Diego of the Century," whose wealth and influence made him a dominant figure for years in California business and political affairs, was scoffed at by government officials and most San Diego businessmen.

"There are substantial Smith holdings in other enterprises as well as assets that are so well concealed in the names of nominees they probably never will be brought to light," an SEC official said, citing evidence of a rent shifting of Smith wealth.

On Oct. 31, Smith surrendered control of his $190 million Westgate-California conglomerate and resigned from its board to avoid going to trial on SEC civil charges that he engineered "massive frauds" with the help of several associates and bilked stockholders of both U.S. National Bank and Westgate of millions of dollars.

ON MAY 30, the day before the SEC filed its fraud suit seeking a receivership for Westgate-California, Smith was said to have withdrawn $478,366 from his personal account at U.S. National. According to evidence submitted to Federal District Judge Leland C. Nielsen by the SEC, the money was transferred to the United California Bank in a joint account with his daughter, Mrs. Carole Smith Shannon.

A member of Westgate-California's court-approved board of directors, Mrs. Shannon has been a partner in many of her father's business dealings. She too faces an IRS lien, amounting to $2.6 million, on 1969 income taxes.

On the morning of Aug. 3, the IRS filed its $22.8 million jeopardy assessment against Smith and proceeded to tie up the bulk of his known assets. That afternoon, the SEC said, Mrs. Shannon withdrew the entire $478,366 in the joint account in three certified checks. About $300,000 of the withdrawn funds have not yet been traced.

Roughly two-thirds of U.S. National's portfolio of $595 million in loans was to persons and properties deeply involved with Smith, including Philip A. Toft, forced to resign as Westgate-California president at the time of the court-ordered removal of Smith as chairman, as well as Michael J. Coen of Kansas City and Hollis B. Roberts of McFarland, Calif.

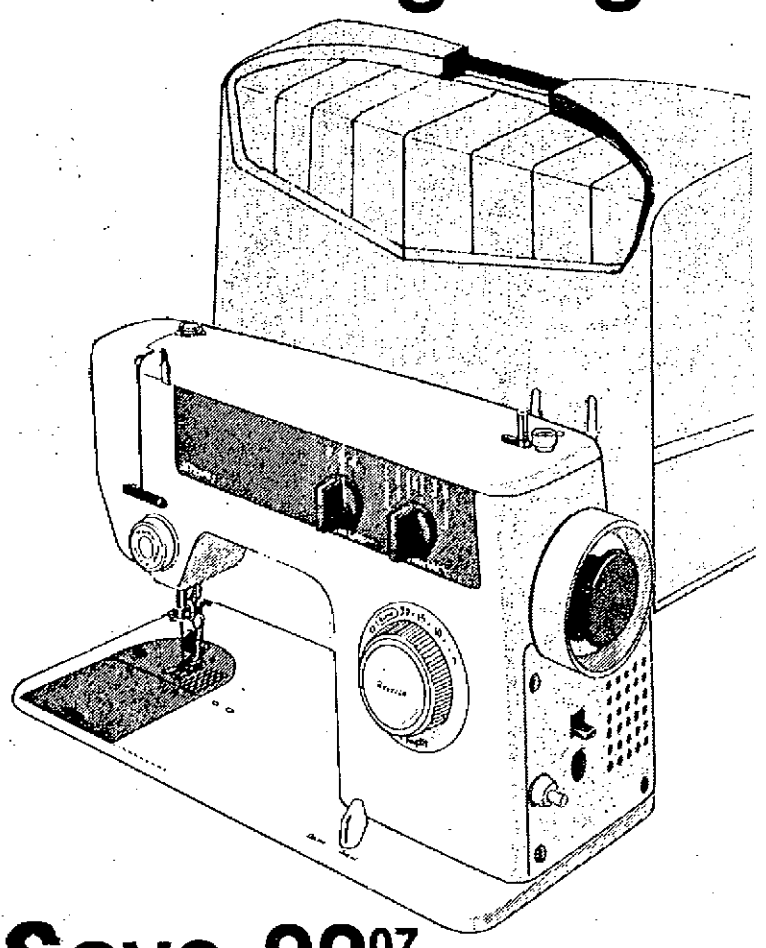

Coen and Roberts are long-time Smith associates and partners in a skein of complicated deals with him.

Justin Watson, deputy controller of the currency, said $45.5 million of U.S. National's loans, principally to interests with which Smith is or was involved, already have been classfied as "outright losses" and $98 million more are probably worthless or near worthless.

Officials of Crocker National Bank and the FDIC have stated that "no equity capital exists" at U.S. National Bank, that 2,050,000 outstanding shares of stock held by 4,226 persons appear to be "a total or near total loss."

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information directly through Secret Witness, either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the special Secret Witness post office box.

The summaries follow:

Young Maginnis left home on the previous day to hitchhike to a friend's house, and was found by two fishermen on a path near the east bank of Harbor Lake Park.

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of 21-year-old Joyce King, of Lynwood, slain in the early hours of Jan. 1, 1972. Her partially clothed body, slashed with 40 to 50 knife wounds, was found in an alley behind the 11609 block of Louise Avenue in Lynwood, near her home.

— Rewards totaling $3,000, including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $1,000 pledged by a Long Beach family member, will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of Irving E. Watson, shot to death at about 10 a.m. last June 10 in his Inglewood home. Detectives said the mystery gunman left the victim's wallet containing a sizeable amount of currency intact and nothing was taken from the home.

Fund bungling forced refund, Brown charges

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Reagan administration bungling has forced California to refund $4.5 million in federal law enforcement funds, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown said Saturday.

He said the $4.5 million was part of a $33 million grant to the California Council on Criminal Justice, which channels federal anticrime money to local jurisdictions.

"The federal funds were earmarked for use by local law enforcement agencies, but the Criminal Justice Council failed to adequately monitor use of the money and many local agencies were unable to develop effective ways to use the funds. As a result, the state was forced to return $4.5 million to the federal government and law enforcement agencies in California have lost urgently needed funds," Brown said.

Brown did not say how a failure by local agencies to use the federal funds was tied to the Reagan administration.

Diesel fuel rationing crippling bus service

By ROBERT LINDSEY
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — Transit systems across the country say that federal rationing of diesel bus fuel is threatening to curtail their operations just as many have begun to halt their loss of riders to the automobile.

A survey of transit operators in 20 cities by the New York Times this week indicated that most were developing contingency plans to reduce service on a selective basis unless their present fuel allocations are increased. Several cities already have obtained special "hardship" allowances after warning the federal Office of Oil and Gas that some of their buses would have to stop rolling.

In Los Angeles, air conditioners were turned off on transit buses this week to save 2,000 gallons of diesel oil a day. The Southern California Rapid Transit District said tha unless it receives an emergency allocation of fuel by Friday, it will have to suspend all Sunday bus service and stop operating 80 to 100 of the 1,600 buses it runs weekdays.

Air conditioners also have been turned off in transit buses in Miami. And the Metro Transit Authority there canceled all charter bus runs and 1973 plans for its Miami Christmas lights tour, held annually so residents can view outdoor holiday decorations.

Bus operators in Memphis and Chattanooga announced this week that they might have to suspend all service some time next week. But on Friday they arranged for an emergency fuel allotment from the Interior Department.

The New York Transit Authority says it is assured of enough fuel to keep its buses running — but without significantly increasing service — at least through Nov. 1, 1974, because of a settlement reached this week with suppliers.

Transit operators are seeking a special exemption from the federal mandatory allocation program. While most report that they are managing to keep running — often by obtaining special hardship allowances — they assert there is widespread confusion over the allocation program and are worried about the future.

"We just don't know what's going to happen," said Kent Mitchell, president of Louisiana Transit Company, which serves a rapidly growing suburb of New Orleans.

"I may be running out of fuel two or three days after Christmas," he continued. "Unless I get some sort of adjustment, I'm going to have to make a hard decision and cut serve at night or cut serve on day. You can't run without fuel."

An executive of Boston's Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority told an interview this week:

"We think it is insane that we are under an allocation. We think we in mass transportation are part of the solution, not part of the problem."

IRONICALLY, one reason that mass transportation has been adversely affected by the fuel rationing is that it is getting better in many places.

In many cities, bus service has been improved over the last year or so through the takeover of ailing private bus operators by city and regional governments, the infusion of public subsidies and the delivery of new buses, purchased with federal grants. In many cases, new lines and more frequent schedules have been added.

During the first nine months of 1973, transit ridership decreased only 0.8 per cent from the year-ago period, according to the American Transit Association. This compares with a drop of 4.3 per cent during the like period last year, and the average annual decrease over the last 25 years of 3 to 6 per cent.

Under the federal allocation program, transit operators are apportioned the amount of diesel oil they purchased during the same month of a year ago. Some transit operators have said that in many cities they cannot be sure of obtaining even this amount.

But they contend that 1972 levels of consumption often are not adequate at a time when there is a resurgence of transit ridership.

Despite their complaints, many transit operators say they see a silver lining in the nation's fuel shortage; they expect gasoline shortages to sendmore and more people to their buses.

In Denver this summer, for example, where gasoline shortages were among the most severe in the nation, the volume of bus ridership soared by up to 30 per cent. Many appear still to be using the bus even though gasoline is now more plentiful.

Energy crisis puts two-way squeeze on auto industry

New York Times Service

DETROIT — The energy crisis is squeezing the automobile industry from two directions — shortages of power for making cars and shortages of gasoline for driving them.

Auto executives argue in interviews that the impact of the crisis will be felt not only this year but also for the foreseeable future.

Roy D. Chapin Jr., chairman of American Motors Corporation, who was among business leaders briefed by President Nixon before the President's speech on energy Wednesday, said that the President was "more specific" in the briefing than on television.

The President, Chapin said, had stressed to the businessmen that a reduction in plant operating time was "one of the things which could be done most to meet the very critical question of availability of fuel."

The petroleum crisis has given fresh impetus to the industry's — and the buyer's — interest in small cars. Weight reduction in cars is getting increasing study, as is instrumentation to indicate whether the car is being driven at its most economical speed.

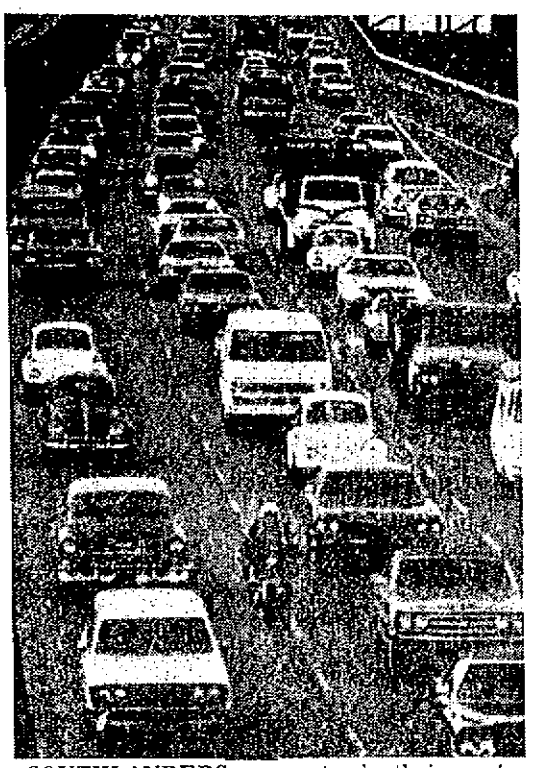

Other ways in which the crisis is affecting the industry.

— A Ford Motor company executive asked the U.S. Interior Department for help in obtaining gas so it can open a new plant in Ohio — a Cleveland area factory where production has been held up by lack of fuel for paint ovens.

—Buyers are putting priority on gasoline consumption. "The thing people ask about when they look for cars these days is how many miles per gallon it will give them," a vice president of American Motors said.

Chapin spoke in an interview about "dislocations that may be coming in the next four to six months — about how many hours you can run a plant, and so on.

"There are certain definite prospects of constraints on industry as to how many shifts they can work and how many days a week they can work," he said. "If this gets back to the basic steel industry we are not too far away from having problems in terms of steel availability."

SOUTHLANDERS, eager to do their part to conserve energy, rushed onto the Long Beach Freeway and began bumper-to-bumper driving at 50 miles per hour, the speed limit suggested by the government to save fuel and which soon may become law. —AP Wirephoto

As for gasoline rationing, Chapin said: "We've already seen the impact of the threat of rationing. People are trying to get rid of high-horsepower, big cars because they anticipate there's going to be some kind of restraint on gasoline." Chaplin noted that AMC would have a new small model in 1975.

Small cars are expected to account for 45 per cent of 1974 sales and American automakers are trying to increase production of smaller engines.

Two vice-presidents for design, William Mitchell of GM and Gene Bordinat of Ford, predict more aerodynamic styling on cars in an effort to improve economy. Mitchell also said the next time GM's standard and intermediate models are redesigned they would be made smaller.

"We are learning to take the weight out of cars and the challenge must also be to bet more economy and efficiency out of them," Mitchell said. "This eight to 10 miles per gallon is not going to continue."

Stuart Perkins, president of Volkswagen of America, said "one of these days, they are going to cut a foot out of each end of the Lincoln and Cadillac cars."

Steve Malone, chief engineer for Pontiac, said the economy of any car could be improved overnight with careful driving. To help out, he disclosed, Pontiac is working on an optional fuel metering gauge that it hopes to offer on 1975 models.

Like other auto executives, Malone is trying to save energy in plants and offices, but, he said, it is "hard because engineers never feel that they are working unless they have all the lights on."

GM, experimenting with alternate energy sources, has factories in Flint and Pontiac, Mich., planning to use industrial refuse, such as cardboard and paper boxes and wood pallets to help fire plant boilers. A Chevrolet plant outside Cleveland is working on a test program to remove sulfur dioxide from coal gases, and thus making coal palatable.

William A. McNamee, manager of energy planning for Ford, says more than a dozen Ford assembly and manufacturing plants have not assured supply of fuel this winter and he fears that some may have to close at one time or another. He is also trying to convert some plants to coal.

Instead of rationing

Heavy tax on gasoline eyed

By EILEEN SHANAHAN
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Top officials of the Nixon administration are seriously discussing the possibility of asking Congress to enact a large tax on gasoline as an alternative to rationing, according to informed sources.

A tax of from 5 cents to 40 cents a gallon is being considered, they said.

The possibility of such a tax to discourage gasoline consumption arose as congressional committees pushed to complete a bill that would give President Nixon emergency powers to deal with the energy crisis.

NIXON asked for the emergency powers in a nationwide address Wednesday night. He sought, among other things, the power to reduce business hours, cut highway speeds, ease antipollution regulations temporarily and adjust air and other transportation schedules. He also asked for standby authority to impose fuel rationing.

The tax under discussion would definitely discourage the use of gasoline, in the opinion of government economists. However, officials who are considering the tax are aware it would give rise to these other problems that must be solved:

— Relatively low-income individuals would be forced to cut back their purchases of gasoline the most.

— The tax would take so much money from consumers and put it into the treasury — roughly $1-billion for each penny of gasoline tax — that some means would have to be found to replace the purchasing power withdrawn from the economy.

Under consideration, therefore, is the idea of making the gasoline tax rebateable as a credit against income taxes.

The idea involves many problems, including the fact that unless changes were made in withholding taxes to reflect the rebate of the gasoline tax paid in 1974, the consumers would be out-of-pocket the amount of the gasoline tax until they filed their annual tax return in April, 1975.

ANOTHER problem to be solved is how individuals whose net incomes are so low that they owe no federal income tax would receive their rebates.

Also under discussion has been the possibility that persons using their automobiles to commute to work and for other essential purposes would be exempted from the tax. But officials see extreme difficulty in administering any such plan.

Not answer to crime, test shows

Police prowl cars overrated

By DAVID BURNHAM
New York Times Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The basic crime-fighting tactic of all American police departments — the regular patrol of the streets by uniformed men in marked cars — does not appear to prevent crime, according to the preliminary findings of an elaborate year-long experiment here.

This startling conclusion appears to challenge a fundamental tenet of most police officials and politicians that more policemen patrolling the streets is the answer to a city's crime problem.

Law enforcement experts estimate that half of the $4.5 billion a year spent for police protection by the cities, towns and counties of the United States is allocated to preventive patrol.

The experiment testing the effectiveness of preventive patrol was conducted in a 35-square-mile area of Kansas City from Oct. 1, 1972, until Sept. 30, 1973. It was designed by that city's police department but monitored by an outside team of evaluators financed by a $461,244 grant from the Police Foundation, a nonprofit law enforcement research group.

The key finding to emerge so far is that in matched areas of Kansas City with no regular patrol cars, one patrol car and four or five patrol cars there were virtually no changes in levels of reported crime during the one-year test period.

JAMES NEWMAN, the assistant chief of the Kansas City Police Department, said, "We just went out and proved that the liberal cliche is correct: Crime is caused by social conditions which very frequently are beyond the control of the police."

Police statistics show that at least 54 per cent of all serious crimes occur in houses, apartments and stores and are not visible to the officers in their patrol car.

George Kelling, the head of the 10-man Kansas City evaluation team, said, "In terms of reported crime the experiment seems to prove that it was not higher in the beats with no regular cars and it was not lower in the beats with four or five cars.

"But reported crime is only one measure of police activity and effectiveness," Kelling continued.

Using the staff of the Midwest Research Institute, for example, the evaluators questioned 1,200 families in the test area before the experiment was initiated about whether they had been the victim of a crime, whether they had reported it to the police, what this crime was and what their attitudes toward the police were.

A similar victimization survey of 600 families was conducted at midpoint in the experiment, and another study of 1,800 families was made after the experiment was completed.

IN ADDITION, Kelling said, a victimization study was conducted of businessmen in the test areas. Other attempts to measure the impeact of the experiment included monitoring traffic, assigning observers to patrol cars, separately questioning both the citizen and the policemen about their views of hundreds of different encounter and analyzing patterns of police response time.

The results from these supporting surveys and observations are still being analyzed and will be included in a final report on the experiment now tentatively scheduled for completion early next year.

There was a considerable variety in the sectors selected for the Kansas City experiment. Median family income ranged from a high of $11,927 in one sector to a low of $7,320 in another. Rates of reported serious crime ranged from 682.1 to 293 for every 100,000 residents. In one sector only 0.13 per cent of the population was black; in another 78 per cent were black.

NEWMAN noted, however, that the experiment was not conducted in a highly congested slum environment and that its findings thus may not be applicable to areas such as central Harlem in New York and the Woodlawn area in Chicago.

Maj. Sidney Harlow, who commands the area of Kansas City in which the experiment took place, said that although there were indications that some criminal elements had become aware of the test, "over-all crime levels remained remarkably stable in the different areas."

LESS EMPHASIS may be put on the use of police prowl cars for fighting crime as the result of a study indicating that they have limited effectiveness.

Harbor Dept. employes fight to keep own union

THE WATERFRONT

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley wants all Harbor Department employes to be put into the same 22 bargaining units as the 42,000 employes of City Council-controlled departments, but the 501 Harbor Department employes want no part of the mayor's plan.

Neither do several thousand workers in the Department of Water and Power.

Harbor Department workers want to be represented by groups and unions of their own choosing.

They cite several reasons for not wanting to be gobbled up by the much larger groups of uptown workers.

Alan B. Stauch, personnel director, told the Board of Harbor Commissioners this week, that the voting power of the relatively few Harbor Department employes would be nil if the workers were put into city wide bargaining units.

"For example, there are 12,000 workers in the Department of Water and Power. They (the department) have 102 men in the carpenter's unit. The Harbor Department has only 15 carpenters. And there are hundreds more carpenters in other city departments," Stauch points out.

Lawrence L. Whiteneck, chief harbor engineer, notes that Harbor Department carpenters perform entirely different type of work than carpenters in other city departments.

"Our carpenters handle pilings that have been creosoted. The chemical can burn the skin if not handled properly. On occasion they work out over water and must wear life jackets," he said.

Machinists and welders are frequently called upon to make repairs on the department's towering container crane and the Commodore Heim Bridge while working more than 100 feet above ground and the water.

Under the mayor's plan a piledriverman would be classified as a carpenter, according to Whiteneck.

"The Harbor Department has many jobs which are unique to the department and for which there are no similar jobs in other city departments. For instance, we have a railroad engineer, an oil gauger, a gunite nozzleman, marine diesel mechanics, 15 port pilots, four ship's carpenters, and six deckhands, and other jobs peculiar to port operation and maintenance," he said.

On Aug. 8, John Y. Chu, president of the Board of Harbor Commissioners, wrote Bradley asking for a meeting so that he might describe the Harbor Department's position. So far the mayor has not responded to Chu's request.

During Wednesday's board meeting, Commissioner Nate DiBiase said he favored making one more attempt to talk with the mayor before acting on a resolution opposing absorbtion of Harbor Department employes into citywide bargaining units.

Stauch pointed out that the employes of the Harbor Department, the Department of Water and Power, and the Department of Airports are unique in that they are not payed out of taxpayer revenues. Those three departments are the only money-making, self-supporting departments within the city and have separate autonomy under the City Charter. They are not controlled by the City Council as are other departments.

The mayor's desires and his failure to respond to a request for a meeting tendered three months ago, has left the five members of the Harbor Commission in a quandry. They were appointed to the commission by Bradley. They would like to do as he wishes. But to agree to do so would cause them to violate the conditions of the City Charter which states these three departments will have the individual ability to set salaries and otherwise operate the departments independent of action by the City Council.

The matter is scheduled for more discussion Wednesday, hopefully after a meeting with Bradley.

New port map

A new free map of the Long Beach-Los Angeles port complex detailing recent harbor improvements and changes is now available from the Long Beach Harbor Department.

Copies may be obtained by phoning the public relations division or by writing to Harbor Map, Public Relations, Long Beach Harbor Department, Box 570, Long Beach 90801.

Port people

Slyvia Zanich, who according to her own guess has spent 40 to 50 years on the San Pedro waterfront aiding seamen and bailing them out when they got in trouble, is retiring.

The former honorary mayor of San Pedro (1967-68) was one of few individuals to serve on two Los Angeles city commissions at the same time. She served on the Social Service Commission for five years and for two years on the Consumer Affairs Commission under Mayor Sam Yorty's regime.

She opened Slyvia's Bail Bonds in San Pedro in 1960 and recently sold a portion of the business to Joey Milligan, a former partner in a bail bond business in Long Beach.

She intends to remain in the San Pedro area and continue to serve as an "Angeleno," a group of women serving as official hostesses for the City of Los Angeles and as an active volunteer in consumer affairs for the city.

Mrs. Zanich is an ardent supporter of the Maritime Industries Luncheons organization. Theorganization helps support two clubs in the harbor area used by visiting merchant seamen.

Among her other civic endeavors is an effort to restore passenger ferry service for cannery workers traveling between the mainland and Terminal Island.

Cleanup ahead

Recently the Long Beach Harbor Department was named as the first recipient of a special annual award for "Environmental Improvement and Protection" presented by the American Association of Port Authorities.

Besides a plaque the department received a living award, a tree. The tree was planted in front of the deparment's administration building.

But some arborists wonder who selected a Brazilian Pepper tree as an award for the department's antipollution efforts.

The tree creates a mess when it sheds its pea-sized berries and leaves each fall.

VINCENT THOMAS
'His' Bridge

Thomas, bridge to be feted

The Vincent Thomas Bridge, through whose turnstiles have passed 53 million vehicles, will be 10 years old Thursday.

To mark the event, a dinner-dance will be held Saturday evening in the Catalina passenger terminal, directly beneath the 6,060-foot above-ground span. The event will recognize the man who led the fight to get the bridge built, the veteran Democratic assemblyman from San Pedro, Vincent Thomas.

Before the bridge opened Nov. 15, 1963 it was predicted that by mid-1973 approximately 9,500 vehicles daily would pass across the four-lane channel span. Today the vehicle count is in excess of 20,000 vehicles a day.

Tickets for the dinner-dance are available at the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce, 390 W. Seventh St. The $10 admission fee includes dinner, dancing and entertainment. A no host social hour will begin at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

Coast panel to get part plan

Coastal commissioners Monday are scheduled to reconsider a State Department of Parks and Recreation proposal to add 234 campsites to Doheny Beach State Park in Capistrano Beach.

Though the project was initially turned down by the 12-member commission on a 6-4 vote (seven affirmative votes were necessary for approval) last Monday, commissioners later agreed to a reconsideration of the matter. They did so on the basis that two commissioners were not present when the vote was taken.

That reconsideration, along with permit applications for six Long Beach area projects, highlight the agenda for Monday's commission meeting, which is scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. in the sixth floor board room of the Long Beach Harbor Administration Building, 925 Harbor Plaza Drive.

THE DOHENY Beach project, planned at a cost of $865,033, calls for additional beach park facilities in the day use area, construction of an amphitheater and the expansion of overnight campsites.

Long Beach area developments on the agenda include the construction of a 46-unit condominium and recreational facilities at 1050 E. Ocean Blvd., Long Beach, by Queen's View Development Ltd.; construction of a 28-unit condominium at 2131 E. First St., Long Beach, by Ocean Park View Co.; and construction of a building for office, warehouse and light manufacturing at 600 N. Pacific Ave., San Pedro, by Trampoline, Inc.

Also scheduled for commission consideration are three Huntington Beach projects — construction of a 2-story, 4-unit apartment building at 405 18th St. and construction of another 4-unit building at 401 18th St. by Joseph N. Shaffer; construction of a 4-unit apartment building at 215 18th St., by El-Don Development, In.; and the second story addition of bedroom and bath to an existing single family dwelling at 16526 Cotuit Circle, by James Stephen Filipan.

The regional coastal commission, which was created last November by the passage of Proposition 20 — the California Coastal Conservation Act — has jurisdiction over all new development within 1,000 yards of the coastline in Los Angeles and Orange counties.

"I concentrate on new dentures at prices you can afford"

What you can't afford is to be without them. Dr. F. E. Campbell

Why I can offer new dentures at such reasonable prices: Of all our services, the basic and most important one is making new dentures. We do all our own work in our own modern laboratories. With the popularity of my INSTANT CREDIT PLAN — I can deliver new dentures at prices you can afford.

Instant Credit Makes it Easy. Older people often face a different kind of credit problem than younger ones. I understand your credit problems. I carry my own credit, so I can make my own decision on your credit INSTANTLY. No waiting for an answer. No banks or finance companies to deal with. Many of my patients work part time, are on Social Security, a small pension or retired. Whatever your circumstances, I tailor the terms to fit them — on approval of your credit—even if you earn UNDER $200 a month, even if you've never had credit before.

Extra work? No extra charge. Even though we never know in advance how much time and work your new dentures may take — you always know in advance how much they'll cost. Exactly. We never charge extra for difficult cases. All work in our labs by union technicians.

One Day Service. Usually, if you come in to our downtown L.A. office by 9:30 A.M. — your dentures can be ready the same day — a real advantage for out-of-towners.

CONSUMER NOTES

Human predators periling lobsters

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

Going to seed

Due to consumers' sprouting interest in organic food, the Department of Agriculture has issued a warning to indoor gardeners who sprout their own vegetables.

Sprouting is defined as growing your own alfalfa, barley, mung bean or soybean sprouts in a jar or dish in a warm, dark location indoors.

The Department of Agriculture asked consumers to take precaution in selecting seeds for sprouting. Avoid using seeds treated with any fungicide. Seeds intended for field use are treated with chemicals to ward off plant diseases and can cause serious illness or death if swallowed in seed form, or if eaten as sprouted seeds.

The Federal Seed Act and laws of each state require treated seeds to be labeled with a warning: "Treated With Poison" or "Do Not Use for Food, Feed or Oil Purposes." In addition to a warning label, treated seeds are usually identifiable because of their color — they're dyed red, dark pink or any "nonseed" color.

The Agriculture Marketing Services suggests four ways to avoid using treated seed for sprouting.

1. Look for a warning label on every seed package.
2. Do not use seeds intended for field use.
3. Do not buy seeds sold by bulk unless the bulk container clearly has no warning or clearly indicates the seeds are untreated.
4. Consider buying seeds for sprouting only from a health, organic or Chinese food store or food department. These stores usually only stock untreated seeds.

Aching feet department

Aching feet may get some help from a pamphlet of advice on foot care for adults, children and the elderly. "Light on Your Feet" is published by the Public Affairs Committee, 381 Park Ave. South, New York City 10016 and costs 35 cents.

The booklet explains causes and treatment of some common problems and provides exercises to keep feet in shape.

According to the booklet, women should shun boots that bind their calves, children shouldn't wear sneakers for long periods and everyone should avoid wearing worn out shoes around the house.

Whatever happened to being as "comfortable as an old shoe?"

Sour sugar substitutes

Researchers at the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences in North Carolina have raised a question whether long-time saccharin use might have ill effects in humans — including bladder cancer.

In an article published in the National Observer quoting the study, it was suggested that saccharin users might consider occasionally substituting something for the sugar substitute.

The current issue of the Journal of Agriculture and Food Chemistry reports rat studies show that "saccharin accummulates in the bladder with prolonged administration of normal doses." The same tests show, the article continues, that when saccharin is removed from the diet, its residue disappears from rat bladders.

"These findings indicate that it might be beneficial if regular users of saccharin would occasionally discontinue its use for several days and allow for tissue clearance," investigators reported.

Mechanics vote to strike PSA

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Pacific Southwest Airlines will be struck by 600 mechanics and maintenance workers unless a new contract offer is made soon, a Teamsters Union official said Saturday.

Marv Griswold, secretary-treasurer of Local 2707, said the union has voted by an "overwhelming majority" to authorize the negotiating committee to call a strike.

The current one-year contract with the maintenance workers runs out at midnight Tuesday. Griswold said company representatives and union negotiators are scheduled to continue contract talks Monday.

In mid-October, on a Saturday: a fisherman returned to Sunset Beach after a productive day of lobster fishing. On board were 1,500 pounds of tails from 4,931 "bugs."

The sizes of the lobsters from which the tails had been severed could not be determined. The Costa Mesa owner of the boat was cited for violation of the California Fish and Game Code. It is unlawful to possess or bring ashore any fish (including lobsters) whose size or weight cannot be determined.

With lobsters, the law is intended to prevent the taking of "shorts" — lobsters with body shells less than 3¼ inches in length, too small to have yet spawned.

The fisherman faces a fine of $500 and or six months in jail plus the possible confiscation of his boat and all its fishing gear.

WHEN THE department seizes legal sized lobsters they are sold to commercial dealers and the money they bring is put into the department's fish and game perservation fund. Since the size of the lobsters siezed in the Sunset Beach case could not be determined they were given to local charitable organizations serving food.

The seizure by the DF&G at Sunset Beach, although larger than most cases handled by the department, it is indicative of the increasing danger to the spiny lobster resource in Southern California.

Inspector Robert G. Kaneen of the Marine Resources Region headquartered in Long Beach, noting that there has been a steady decline in the lobster as a seafood delicacy for the past 20 years, believes the major causes are the taking of shorts, and taking of legals and shorts during the closed spawning season and selling them on the black market.

There is a lucrative market for lobster tails. Bootlegged shorts bring from $15 to $20 a dozen. He also notes that few lobster lovers ever question whether the lobster they are ordering is a legal size lobster.

KANEEN says the problem is two-fold:

— The difficulty in prosecuting cases.

— The tendency of a large segment of the public to consider Fish and Game offenses as trival in nature.

"Practices such as these," says Kaneen, "cause the depletion of a valuable resource and cut off the livelihood of the law-abiding fisherman."

Besides the illegal poaching, marine biologists believe there may be other factors that are affecting the decline of the lobster take.

To learn the nature of these factors and what possibly can be done about them in the way of a management plan is the goal of a new lobster study program launched this month by the department.

"The program involves a thorough assessment of the present commercial and sport fisheries; a tagging program, beginning in January to obtain data on the lobster's life history; sampling of commercial and sport catches to obtain data on population structures; a study of fishing gear; and a study of special factors such as predation by fish and mortality caused by discarded traps."

By July, 1975, the initial report and management plan is to be submitted to the Fish and Game Commission.

ALTHOUGH individual department biologists have compiled considerable data on the lobster, this will be the department's first formal lobster study program.

Data collected at San Clemente Island in 1965-66 indicated the time for a California spiny lobster to reach legal body shell size of 3¼ inches is approximately 10 years for females and 11 years for males.

The San Clemente study showed that a newly matured female in the 2.6-inch class carried a little more than 100,000 eggs, while her older counterparts in the 3.6-inch class carried six times as many. The number of eggs produced per female has a direct ratio to the number of young lobsters that survive since in their early life they are planktonic or free drifting and thus subject to heavy predation.

The spiny lobster occurs from Morro Bay to Magdalena Bay in Baja California. They are harvested from Pt. Conception south.

Most lobsters are trapped by commercial fishermen but in the past 10 years "bugs" have become more and more popular with sport divers who must catch them by hand or with baited hoop nets.

In 1950, a record year, 933,449 pounds of lobsters were landed. In 1971, a poor year for lobster fishermen, the catch was but 224,486 pounds. In 1972 the catch climbed to 398,189 pounds. But this year, according to reports from commercial lobstermen, appears not be be as good as last year.

Part of the drop in the lobster take in recent years may be due a smaller commercial lobster fishing fleet. In 1969-70 fiscal year the permit fee went up to $100. The department reports so far this year there are only 215 permit holders.

While it is impossible to determine how many sport divers go after lobster since many of them dive from private boats, the department does get reports from party boats. The boat operators provide the department with the number of divers taken on each trip and how many lobsters they catch.

Expert addresses symposium on Queen Mary

Drug mobs seen turning to hired 'brains'

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A noted authority on drug abuse predicted Saturday that criminal syndicates in the future "may purchase the brains of organic chemists" to make synthetic narcotics and marijuana.

Dr. Sidney Cohen, a professor of psychiatry at UCLA and a consultant to the National Institute of Mental Health, told a symposium on anxiety and drug abuse that this capability will make unnecessary "traffic in bulky marijuana and opium."

The day-long symposium, held aboard the Queen Mary, was sponsored by St. Mary's Hospital of Long Beach.

"Why carry around a ton of marijuana or a bulky package of opium?" Cohen commented in discussing trends in drug abuse.

Cohen said there is more than one criminal syndicate dealing in narcotics, and breaking up just one wouldn't solve the problem. And even if the crops that produce opium were destroyed, heroin could be replaced by synthetic agents, he said.

On the other hand, he said, law-enforcement agencies will improve their detection technology dramatically. He described techniques already available for finding microscopic amounts of drugs of abuse.

Cohen said there already is a "shocking" increase in the use of drugs by younger persons.

"It is a matter of concern because the central nervous system of a child is more vulnerable to chemicals," he observed.

The sex ratio of drug users, which has traditionally showed females in the minority, is shifting toward equal involvement, he noted.

The abuse of alcohol by all age groups will increase, he continued. Consumption of both alcohol — especially of "pop wines" — and of marijuana continues to grow steadily.

"We're not going to solve the alcohol problem with marijuana," Cohen said. "If we could, I'd be in favor of legalizing marijuana."

Actually, Cohen opposes legalization of marijuana. For one thing, he said, scientists haven't found out yet if marijuana can cause cancer.

"After all, it is smoked, and it has tar in it," he said.

Heroin addiction is on the decrease, he said. So is use of intravenous amphetamines, the so-called "speed."

The main drugs of abuse in the future will be agents that depress the central nervous system, he predicted.

The use of barbiturates and drugs known as "sopors" is on the rise already, he said.

Cohen said he is alarmed at the abuse of aerosols and solvents by juveniles.

In some barrios, it is a real menace, he said. Some medical observers are claiming that these substances may cause brain damage, "and I fear this claim may be substantiated," he commented.

Youngsters are using not only solvents but also the substances dissolved in them, he continued. One of the most recently reported abuses: Inhalation of gold and bronze paint spray, in Fresno.

"What is this going to do to the lungs?" Cohen queried.

He said the use of psychedelic drugs is decreasing, but that many youngsters now "take a few LSD trips," viewing the phenomenon as part of growing up. Most of LSD use results from peer pressure, he said.

Cocaine has been rediscovered. It is used mainly by rock groups and by affluent heroin addicts who take heroin and cocaine together — "the speedball of 50 years ago."

Another speaker, Dr. Charles Ford, a psychiatrist at Harbor General Hospital, said there is an increasing tendency to blame hypoglycemia (low blood sugar) for a myriad of symptoms.

But the patient who thinks he has hypoglycemia may actually be suffering from depression.

The symptoms of depression and anxiety, and of hypoglycemia are similar, he said.

He cited a study of 31 patients referred to Harbor General Hospital with a diagnosis of hypoglycemia.

Laboratory tests showed that many of the patients had normal blood sugars.

"About half were in need of psychiatric treatment, yet they had been referred for a medical diagnosis," Ford said.

Many of the patients were depressed. And about half were psychiatrically classified as having "hysterical personalities."

Ford, in a second lecture later in the day, said that drug-withdrawal symptoms are "very frequent" in the general hospital.

Often, the patient is an affluent housewife who has neglected to tell the doctor she has been taking medications such as Librium, Valium or Serax.

Dr. Donald W. Schafer, associate clinical professor of psychiatry and human behavior at UC Irvine College of Medicine, said that everything from the weather to the women's liberation movement can cause anxiety.

A prolonged spell of unusual weather will create uneasiness, he said. As for women's liberation, many women can't easily define their role, and this leads to anxiety.

Still other women fear they will become "useless" in middle age and become anxious. The young suffer anxiety because of lack of sufficient restraints imposed on them or because they fear they "can't make their mark or prove up."

Schafer said some successful middle-aged men suffer the Alexander the Great syndrome. (Alexander is said to have wept after conquering the world while still in his 20s.)

"The successful middle-aged man feels he has no more worlds to conquer," Schafer said. "He can foresee no future victory, and this may lead him into depression and anxiety."

Finally, there is the existential anxiety — that suffered by a person who fears something will happen despite his planning.

"It is the fear of the uncontrollable. The patient says, 'What if a car hits mine on the freeway?'"

He added:

"Many people get so anxious about this that they stop enjoying life. One should be able to not only accept this but live with it comfortably and forge ahead. But how many have ever been comfortable with their finiteness?"

2,000 view 35 bands in parade

—Staff Photos by RON CARLSON

They looked like pink-cheeked kids, but they played like professionals.

At least that's what more than 2,000 spectators seemed to think Saturday while applauding members of 35 elementary and junior high school bands who marched down Main Street during the seventh annual Seal Beach Junior High School Band Review.

The event, which also featured 17 drill teams, looked a bit like it might have belonged in Disneyland as band after band strutted down the people-lined, picturesque roadway.

But the Seal Beach version of Main Street, U.S.A. included competition among the participants, who came from as far away as Camarillo, Hemet and Apple Valley.

The Foothills Junior High School "Highlander" Band from Arcadia captured the Sweepstakes trophy, while the South Junior High School "Eagle" Band took top honors for schools with more than 1,000 students.

Buena Park's Crescent Junior High School Crusaders walked away with first place honors for schools under 1,000 students, and Baldwin Park's Sierra Vista Intermediate School Band won first place in the elementary-intermediate division.

Winners or not, the Seal Beach members of the McGaugh Intermediate School Band — hosts for the day — clearly were the crowd favorites. Above, a local musician huffs and puffs a note, while right, a Seal Beach lass totes the school mascot. Below, spectators wait for the music to fade as another band approaches.

Electrical stimulation used for drug cases' underlying depression

By BEN ZINSER

A Long Beach psychiatrist said Saturday that the majority of young persons on drugs have an underlying depression and that electrical stimulation of the brain "can break up the depression."

The psychiatrist, Dr. S. Albert Molle, said in an exclusive interview that not only is the depression removed but the emotional reactions caused by the drugs are also eliminated.

Dr. Molle was interviewed while he was attending a medical symposium sponsored by St. Mary's Hospital.

He said that a number of youngsters who used marijuana, LSD or mescaline have been successfully treated by electrical stimulation.

"We don't call it electroshock," he said. "That scares people. Anyway, there is no convulsion, and the patient is totally unaware of the treatment at the time."

He said the patient is given a small dose of an anesthetic such as Brevital or Pentothal, "and there is complete amnesia afterward."

"It is not unusual for a patient to wake up and ask, 'When does the treatment begin?'"

Also administered to the patient is a potent muscle relaxant called Anectine.

"Because of Anectine, there are no convulsions," Molle said.

Electrodes are attached to the head, and 170 volts of electricity are administered for one and a half seconds, the psychiatrist described.

After the treatment, the patient may sleep for 20 minutes to a half hour, he added.

Thanks to Anectine, there are no bone fractures, Molle noted. In the past, electroconvulsive therapy has sometimes caused fractures in persons with soft bones.

Molle said the drug patient gets a course of four to eight treatments. No restraints are necessary during the treatment. One patient had had seven surgical operations on his back yet experienced no skeletal problems after electrical stimulation, Molle said.

Patients have ranged in age from nine years to 87, he added.

"The treatments get them off the pattern of depression and also rid them of disturbing emotional reactions resulting from drug use," Molle asserted.

Some patients are "wild and uncontrollable" as a consequence of drug use, he said.

Molle emphasized that all patients undergo psychotherapy after electrical stimulation treatment.

"You can't just leave them hanging there," he remarked. "You then try to find what caused the original depression."

Murder-for-hire case

By JOHN SHEEHAN
Staff Writer

Jury deliberations resume Monday in the Long Beach Superior Court trial of a 58-year-old Wilmington banana trucker charged with soliciting a Teamster Union official turned police informant to kill a rival trucker last May with a hand grenade.

Judge John Arguelles ordered the jury hearing the case of Victor Peter Suglio, owner of American Transport System, into an unusual Saturday session at an unidentified Long Beach hotel.

Dept. Dist. Atty. Harold Prukop explained the unusual Saturday deliberations and sequestering were requested by the prosecution "because we've invested too much time and trouble in this case to risk a chance of mistrial."

The jury will remain sequestered today but will not deliberate.

Suglio is charged with hiring the business agent of Teamsters Local 692, Nick Scaccia, to kill Costas "Gus" Makrus, owner of Bayview Trucking Co. with a military hand grenade to eliminate Makras' competition in the lucrative Southland banana transport market.

Scaccia testified Suglio first discussed the alledged murder conspiracy in the rest room of the Velvet Turtle Restaurant in Long Beach May. 3. Scaccia said Suglio offered him $1,500 and use of a hand grenade to kill Makras.

Instead, Scaccia told Harbor Division Sgt. J.W. Bennett of the plot and agreed to get Suglio to repeat the alledged offer in presence of a tape recorder and remote transmitting equipment.

Reorganization of L.B. Marine Safety Division eyed

By ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Findings of a management study of the city's Marine Safety Division — begun in August as a probe of alleged lifeguard drug use was ending — will be released to the City Council Tuesday, City Manager John R. Mansell disclosed Saturday.

In addition to the report's recommended reorganization of the entire division, Mansell is set to appoint Richard L. Miller, a 23-year veteran seasonal lifeguard and teacher at College Intermediate School, to fill the newly created post of head of the Marine Safety Operations, if the council accepts the changes.

Miller will replace chief lifeguard John Olszewski, who, Mansell said, will be reassigned as adult sports coordinator in the Recreation Department.

Olszweki's "extensive athletic abilities and experience will be well utilized," Mansell noted.

The report, compiled by Mansell's administrative assistant, James Hankla, recommends that the council do away with the old Marine Safety Division and establish a Marine Safety Operations Division.

The new division would have three sections: beach safety, harbor patrol and marina security. All three are to gain lieutenants as chiefs—the posts also being added, according to the report.

Miller would receive a salary starting at $1,405 a month, and the three lieutenants $1,108 a month.

Asked if the changes would achieve the manager's goal of "tighter supervision and better communication," Hankla said, "Definitely, it's an ideal organizational structure."

Mansell said revision in the lifeguard department had been under consideration for some time, but conceded that the move was "pinpointed by developments in past months—it might have been speeded up."

The city manager was referring to a $25,000-investigation of alleged drug use among lifeguards, both on and off duty, initiated in January after at least two letters were received, each outlining detailed accounts of individuals, occurrences and the drugs.

The probe involved extensive interviews of some 50 full and part-time lifeguards, both by Mansell and the police intelligence squad. The police interviews were conducted by Lt. Ray Henry, the head of the squad, as well as field investigations.

Delayed by pressing city business, the investigation did not conclude until early August. There were no formal charges brought, Mansell said, because of a lack of concrete evidence.

"All of the factual data was found to be inconclusive," Mansell said at the time, "so as to render its use almost impossible or impractical in filing charges that would contain sufficient substantive information to hold up either at a civil service board hearing or a criminal proceeding."

Mansell, said he had talked to the "three principles" involved in the drug allegations, but that there would be no further action.

Several lifeguards—six according to most sources—were moved to nonsupervisory positions after the investigation had neared its end. The men got their old jobs back, Mansell said.

Lifeguards, who asked to remain anonymous, said they told Mansell of management troubles within the division. The guards said the interviews were spent both on drug use and administrative problems. This was acknowledged by Mansell.

Several said they criticized the performance of Olszewski. Olszewski has refused to comment on any phase of the investigation.

Outrageous reporting?

The White House has issued a statement providing examples of what President Nixon referred to when he spoke at his most recent press conference of "outrageous, vicious, distorted reporting."

The examples are partly of reporting and partly of editorial comment. A study of them suggests that the President has a point, which he overstated; that the press has a point, which it has not stated clearly; and that television has a problem it should deal with.

Television's problem is that some television newsmen slide in and out of different — and incompatible — roles. A man or woman whose job is basically that of objective news coverage may also do commentaries — after a presidential speech or press conference or simply in a five-minute radio slot set aside for the purpose.

A good journalist can do both without letting his personal opinions affect the way he reports the news. But it is hard for a viewer to separate these roles. It is difficult to recognize that Dan Rather, commentator, is doing something different from Dan Rather, reporter.

When the White House complains that Rather spoke of "large-scale terror bombing of North Vietnam," it may be complaining about what lawyers call "fair comment" rather than about unfair reporting. (The White House doesn't say whether this particular Rather broadcast was presented as news or as commentary.) The term "fair comment" doesn't necessarily mean that the comment is right. It certainly doesn't mean that it is unarguable. It does mean that there is a reasonable basis in fact for making it.

BUT THE DISTINCTION between fair comment and objective reporting is not one a radio listener or television viewer is likely to make — particularly when the same network journalist may provide both, if not in the same program then on the same day.

The White House also complained of an Eric Sevareid comment on the North Vietnam bombing that "the feeling is one of dismay, tinged with shame that the U.S. is again resorting to mass killing in an effort to end the killing."

Sevareid confines his daily chores entirely to editorial comment, clearly labeled as such. There can be disagreement with the opinion that angered the White House. Polls at the time showed that the overwhelming majority of Americans disagreed with it. But there can be no legitimate complaint that Sevareid did anything improper in airing an opinion that was clearly identified as commentary.

His misfortune was that viewers are so used to television newsmen acting both as reporters and as commentators they may not distinguish between the two roles. Viewers may thus assume that Sevareid is stating as fact what he is actually offering as opinion.

NEWSPAPERS TRY to avoid that problem by confining articles of opinion to pages reserved for commentary, and by keeping news pages free of bias. In this newspaper, pages B-2 and B-3 are reserved on Sunday through Friday for the expression of opinion — by the editor, in this column; by readers, in letters to the editor; and by columnists, in signed articles.

Even so, some readers misunderstand. It may be that some at the White House also misunderstood, for the White House examples of "outrageous, vicious, distorted reporting" included some quotations that appeared only on newspaper editorial pages and not in news articles.

The White House complained, for example, about a Washington Post editorial on the North Vietnam bombing that said: " . . millions of Americans cringe in shame and wonder at their President's very sanity."

That was an outrageous exaggeration. But it didn't claim to be a report on a poll of Americans about their view of the President's mental health. We wouldn't try to defend it as a sensible editorial comment. Still, it can be taken in the same way one would take an advertisement's claim that "millions of Americans have found instant relief with Jones' Pep-You-Up Pills." Ridiculous, but not to be taken as reporting but rather as a hard sell.

Even so, anything in an editorial that might be taken as a statement of fact ought to be a statement of fact. It ought to be as fair, as clear and as accurate as any statement of fact in a news story. Sticking to that principle will help newspapers, and serve readers honestly, if in addition newspapers stick to the principle of confining comment to pages set aside for the purpose.

Television can't segregate editorial comment in the same way. Everything on television or radio is on the front page. But television can label commentary as such, and it can insist that one person not broadcast both news and commentary.

Both the print media and television thus can do more than they have to assure that neither the President nor other readers and viewers will think of them as unfair. For our part, we pledge to do our best to be fair and to try to do nothing that would give even the appearance of unfairness.

Letters to the editor

Law and unions

EDITOR:

There has been much pious talk recently from the media and from such as the ACLU about the "law" and about no one being "above the law."

It seems proper to contemplate the recent strike by firemen in New York City. It was illegal for the union to strike. The courts issued an order for the firemen to man their stations. This order was ignored by the union, and thus it placed itself "above the law" — an action which when attributed to President Nixon causes national apoplexy.

Will there be contempt citations? Will there be fines? Will there be jail terms? Will Dan Rather disapprove? Will David Brinkley lower his eyebrow?

Many of us will be waiting breathlessly to learn whether the same law with which President Nixon is currently being flogged also applies to labor unions.

Long Beach SIDNEY P. ANDERSON

Refugee problem

EDITOR:

Outside of being prodded by the Egyptian and Syrian politicians, why are the Palestinian Arabs angry with the Israeli government?

Was it not King Abdullah Hussein, an Arab, whose army took the land away from them in 1948 against the wishes of the United Nations? This fact has not been often mentioned in any of the news media.

Torrance ED SPRINGER

Get it over with

EDITOR:

How long is this Watergate investigation going to last? Is it some kind of racket to keep a whole gang of lawyers, their assistants and secretaries with enormous office space and equipment on the taxpayers' payroll for the next three years?

Long Beach RAY STOREY

Just another modest miracle man

The "World's Foremost Authority" used to be a vaudeville joke. Now it's a 43-year-old Democratic candidate for governor named Herb Hafif.

That name is pronounced "haff" although his florid literature insists it is pronounced "half," an insistence that gratuitously confuses about a silent "L." About as smart as saying Trotf is pronounced trough.

You may have thought your choice for governor next year would be difficult. Forget it. Take the word of Jay Rodriguez, director of community affairs for KNBC, who says, "Herb Hafif is without a doubt the most qualified man to ever seek political office in the history of this state."

That's not the only namby-pamby good ol' Jay comes up with. He says also, "The word 'impossible' doesn't exist for him." (Hafif). One can hardly wait for Herb to stroll onto the campus under the golden dome and ask to take a look at that there football. (Pronounced Gipper).

Hafif (pronounced Barnum) said he would get more than 7,000 into the Long Beach Arena the night before Halloween to demonstrate his organizational ability and the strength of his volunteer organization. Crowd estimates ranged from 4,500 to 7,300 but Hafif didn't estimate how much of the crowd came to see his friend, Ray Charles, on the same bill. Was it, "Georgia, Georgia" or "Haff, Haff?"

His ample horn may overflow in some areas but Herb is not exactly full of ept. Referring to his Long Beach appearance he implied that he purposely stacked the deck against himself to make the rally a real test of his supporters' dedication. Thus, he explained, he came up with "the worst night of the month for such a thing at the Long Beach Arena — the worst place too . . . We picked the Long Beach Arena because it was the most out-of-the-way place we could find."

Hafif's slingers of superlatives wrote that Herb was not stressing Ray Charles' appearance. Nonetheless entertainment page editors received news releases naming Charles and quoting him, a la Jay Rodriguez, as saying Hafif is "the outstanding trial lawyer in the United States."

The comic "World's Foremost Authority" made you wonder "of what?" Herb's press people came up with a cryptic parallel line noting that Hafif is "recognized as one of the top few attorneys in the United States." Unexplained is who does the recognizing or what "top few" means.

Hyperbole never takes a holiday in a Hafif press item. One gives us an insight on a unique election I should like to have witnessed. The California Trial Lawyers Association named Herb "the greatest president in the history of the state trial bar."

I wonder wistfully who Herb's challengers were, who nominated Herb, who seconded the bid of the late Charlie Glotz, a fair-to-middling president back in ought-six. Who spoke for the deceased?

No doubt Herb has a flare. He's the only disadvantaged young man I've heard of who has pictures of himself digging ditches — to support his tough times stories, without which no politician could long endure. Sort of like Lincoln with a tintype at the old split rail pile.

I'm glad I'll never have to try to challenge Herb's summary to the jury explaining that digging of ditches at the same time his family was in the restaurant business. It would be sheer music to hear him tell how he had to dig ditches and yet by graduation day had started the first of his 13 corporations and had 39 people working for him. Photographers?

Bob Houser

Political Editor

The Hafif literature — benchmark stuff in campaign amateurism — is full of people recognizing Herb for various greatnesses but without identifying them. For example, he "has been recognized as a top economist and administrator." By whom we don't know. Perhaps the couple staring after Herb's great white horse and muttering, "I didn't get that stranger's name but I recognized him as a top economist and administrator!"

From many accounts Mr. Hafif is indeed a clever and accomplished man but his press package is overblown and he has to take the rap. Especially when he says something like this: "What we are in the process of producing is a miracle. . ."

Bests, mosts, greatests, largests. Despite the handicap of backwoods Long Beach, Hafif's publicist wrote, "We have developed the largest preelection year political rally in the history of this state for a campaign that is only 30 days old."

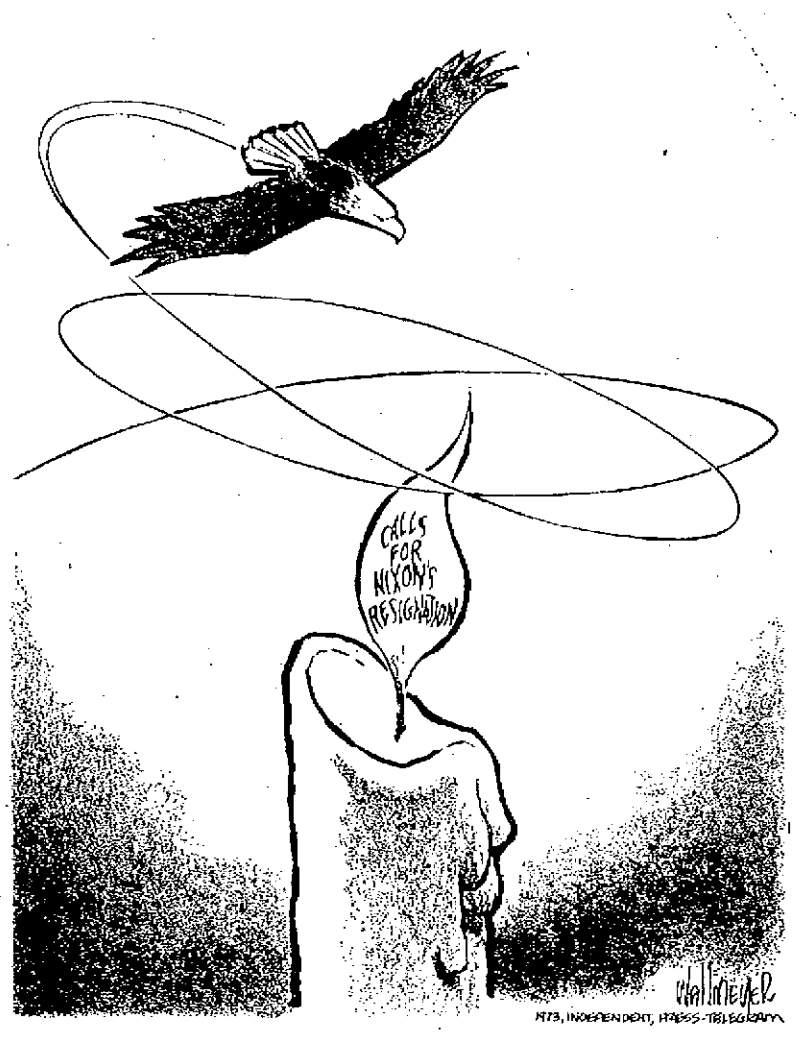

That mouthful of qualifiers reads like the benefits clause in a cheap insurance policy; unless you're actually run over by a pregnant hippo in your living room you'll never know if it pays off.

Volume 1, Issue 1 of "The Citizen Candidate" pictures two guys who look like Herb Hafif, neither identified, as Herb receives the National Consumer of the Year Award from??? Well, it doesn't say. Trial Lawyers again, I guess.

Hafif's press guys might have written the award language. There's nothing in a good parallel to be ashamed of but Herb's "selfless efforts in court reform, consumer and environmental advocacy and political action on behalf of consumer and environmental causes is without parallel . . ."

An attorney friend of Herb's writes, " . . . the first honest, grassroots political phenomenon that's ever happened!"

What else? When you're Herb Hafif you're one of a kind and every step you take you set new records. You're most, best, largest, sometimes miraculous and indubitably . . . foremost!

What next for Reagan, Moretti?

SACRAMENTO — Come now the postmortems, the efforts to make sense of the stunning setback suffered by Prop. 1 last week.

People interested in the art and mechanics of campaigning can have a field day trying to analyze just where Gov. Reagan's forces went wrong, and or just what the opponents did that was right.

PUNDITS WHO prefer to speculate on the possible political consequences of the election, however, have enough food for thought for a feast.

Ronald Reagan wants to be president of the United States, a noble ambition. His ambition has been encouraged by Republican party officials because they see in him that most required of political attributes, the capacity to win. He says what Republicans want to hear. He is affirmative, he is aggressive. And there is that charisma.

Now, how is he to be assessed in the light of Prop. 1. He said to voters, in effect: "It is complex, but I know it is good for you. Trust me."

THE PROPOSAL was rejected by nearly 340,000 votes.

Certainly, the image the governor hoped to project nationally is damaged by the magnitude of the defeat. But is it so damaged that he drops from being the frontrunner in the 1976 GOP presidential sweepstakes to an also ran?

Quite probably, the answer is no.

Despite the size of the loss, an argument can be made that the defeat could help him in the long run.

Had he won, he might well have acquired so much initial momentum that he could have stampeded the '76 convention, much as Barry Goldwater steamrollered the 1964 results.

He could have pretty much called all his own campaign shots, named all his own people, dictated his own strategy, and ignored those party regulars he chose to ignore.

Even a slim defeat would not have hurt too much. He could have argued that the misrepresentations of the Prop. 1 opponents fooled just enough voters to do in his plan to return government to the people. And the plan itself, of course, would never have been tested and possibly found wanting.

BUT THE PLAN wasn't just nipped, it was clobbered. And the Ronald Reagan who said "My faith in the people and their wisdom . . . is upheld" after the 1972 election can not now turn around and accuse them of ignorance.

So although he probably should still be considered the frontrunner for the nomination, he will not have the rocketlike campaign launching a Prop. 1 victory would have given him.

Because the Prop. 1 campaign was Ronald Reagan's campaign, it is his political judgment which has been found wanting. He either misread what the people wanted, or he erred on how best to present what they wanted to them.

EITHER WAY, the party pros at the national level can say, now, "You can't become president by yourself; you need us."

While Ronald Reagan's reputation as a politician of great skill will no doubt suffer because of Prop. 1, it is nevertheless a deserved reputation. He is certainly politician enough to accept the reality that he must now be a part of the national party apparatus, not superior to it.

And the Republican attempt to overcome the tarnish of Watergate in 1976 will obviously require a unified, coordinated team effort. The man up front may well be characterized as an Independent, blemish-free Mr. Clean, but the selling of that characterization requires organization.

While the outcome of the Prop. 1 campaign may not damage Reagan in the long run, it figures to enhance greatly the hopes of Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti to succeed Reagan as governor.

BY JUMPING OUT front in opposition to Reagan's tax limitation plan almost from the day it was announced, and by being far and away its most vocal, hard-working critic, by raising money for the campaign and by personally directing a major portion of the effort, the Van Nuys assemblyman accomplished several things.

First, he showed that he is in touch with the concerns of the people; what he feared about Prop. 1, very likely the people feared as well.

Second, he improved his name identification with voters. Earlier in the year, he ranked near the bottom of the list of Democratic hopefuls when voters were asked which candidates they had heard of. Now, probably, he ranks at or near the top.

Third, he proved himself to be a hard worker, an effective campaigner, and a successful money raiser, and party regulars looking for a horse to hitch their wagon to have the immediate memory of his abilities.

Bob Schmidt

VIEW FROM OUR STATE BUREAU

AND, FINALLY, he has had a dry-run statewide campaign. He has had an opportunity to test himself, to test his staff, to test party workers throughout the state, and can evaluate strengths and weaknesses and make necessary adjustments. Only Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. among the Democrats can claim a similar opportunity, and that was in 1970. Things change in three years.

What need not be analyzed is the statistic that more than four million Californians went to the polls to help determine a matter crucial to the machinery of state government. That's a lot of folks expressing interest. Not as much as should be expressing interest, perhaps, but still a lot. Bob Moretti and everyone else who wants something to do with state government in the future would do well to remember.

L.A.C. Says By L.A. COLLINS SR.

Don't let flu turn to pneumonia

A lot of people should realize that pneumonia is still a major disease often starting with the flu. A Changing Times survey is a warning that each of us should consider in the coming months.

To the dismay of doctors, the toll of illness and death from pneumonia is higher than it was a decade ago, when everyone hoped antibiotics and better treatment would start the lung disease on the road to oblivion. This year nearly 70,000 victims, mostly very young children and people over 50, will die from all forms of pneumonia, giving this age-old menace the dubious distinction of being the fifth leading cause of death in the United States. Another 2,500,000 or more patients will recover in hospitals, but at a staggering cost of over $2 billion in medical treatment and days lost from work.

BETTER DIAGNOSIS and more accurate reporting of pneumonia, plus the increase of a more susceptible population of elderly, help explain the grim statistics. But many researchers also feel that fatal pneumonia is on the rise because there are more people with lungs weakened by air pollution and smoking. Another reason is that more people are having surgery nowadays, so there are more cases of postoperative pneumonia brought on by a combination of lung-irritating anesthetic and weakened conditions.

What it is. Pneumonia is really a catchall term to describe an inflammation of the tiny air sacs and other tissues within the lung. Various bacteria, viruses and nonliving chemical irritants can cause such a reaction, frequently classified as either "lobar" or "broncho" pneumonia. Lobar pneumonia commonly affects only one segment, or lobe, of the lung. Broncho pneumonia usually attacks the lung's small bronchi and their branches, showing up on an X-ray as a widespread patchy area.

Pneumonia is more precisely identified by the name of the agent that causes it. Viral pneumonia is caused by viruses, bacterial pneumonia by bacteria. The commonest form of bacterial pneumonia is caused by a strain of germs called pneumococci, organisms that are frequently found growing harmlessly in the nose and throat of healthy people.

NORMALLY, THESE are held in check, but with a cold or flu a person's resistance is lowered and the lung's tough, natural defense barrier may give way, making it easier either for hitchhiking germs of organisms invading for the first time to gain a foothold, to start reproducing and to produce a full-blown case of pneumonia.

Typically, pneumococcal and most other types of bacterial pneumonia start three or four days after a cold with shaking chills, sweating, chest pain and fever that shoots rapidly to 103 or higher. When a dark hack develops and the patient begins coughing up mucus and rusty-colored sputum, odds are it's bacterial pneumonia.

Untreated cases take one or two courses. Fever and chills may continue for ten days or more, while the victim gets weaker and weaker until death occurs. Or the patient passes through a crisis after which the fever goes down dramatically and full recovery becomes a gradual and often lengthy process.

ANOTHER COMMON type of pneumonia, so-called walking pneumonia, may also begin with flu or a bad cold that hangs on. It is caused by viruses or mycoplasma —organisms that are neither viruses nor bacteria—that get into the lungs and injure the cells.

Viral pneumonia may be accompanied by cough and fever, but it seldom produces rusty sputum or moves as quickly and devastatingly as pneumococcal pneumonia. In most cases recovery takes about two weeks.

Diagnosis, treatment and prevention. Symptons, of course, are good clues in diagnosing bacterial pneumonia. But because all too many organisms can cause it, the doctor may want a laboratory test to pinpoint the exact culprit. Viral pneumonia, on the other hand, is usually distinguished from bacterial pneumonia by the absence from the sputum of significant numbers of pneumococci and staphylococci and by how the patient looks and feels. In either case, X-rays may be called for to determine whether the infection is lobar or broncho pneumonia.

RECOVERY FROM bacterial pneumonia depends on the age and health of the patient and the type and extent of treatment. Infants, patients over 50, diabetics, those prone to overindulgence in alcohol, people with chronic lung of heart conditions all run greater risks of complications. One of these is bacteremia, an infection that has gotton into the bloodstream. But with penicillin (or an alternative drug if there is allergy) and hospitalization in the first three days from onset, there is a 95 per cent chance of recovery from pneumococcal pneumonia.

By and large, treatment for viral pneumonia consists of bed rest, fluids and pain relievers. Hospitalization of five days or a week is frequently required, but the doctor may first try treating an early case at home. Antibiotics have no effect on pneumonia caused by viruses. Mycoplasmal pneumonia, however, may respond to tetracycline or erythromycin.

FOR NOW, prevention of pneumonia is mostly up to you. Here are the main ways to guard against it: Pneumonia can strike at any time of year, but winter and spring are the riskiest periods. So avoid fatigue, exposure and chilling. Stay away from people with colds or flu and out of crowded places during epidemics of respiratory illness. Eat well-balanced meals and don't overindulge in alcohol.

If you catch a cold, keep warm, rest in bed, drink liquids and eat a moderate, balanced diet. Keep youngsters with fever and cold symptons in bed in a well-ventilated room.

People over 50, pregnant women and chronically ill should ask their doctor about the advisability of flu shots that may guard against a kind of pneumonia that occasionally follows influenza.

All this doesn't mean you have to run to the doctor with every cold. But if you develop symptons of pneumonia, don't delay in telling him how you feel, either. Prompt diagnosis and proper treatment can spell the difference between recovery and serious and even fatal complications of pneumonia.

Why isn't pollution enforced?

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — There has been a lot of talk in Washington about keeping our rivers, lakes and beaches clean. Yet the law-and-order boys have shown a strange reluctance to enforce the laws against pollution. Sometimes, it seems that the flow of campaign cash more than the flow of pollutants determines whether the polluters are prosecuted.

We have just completed a detailed study of cases referred to the Justice Department by the Environmental Protection Agency in 1971-72. The agency used the old 1899 Refuse Act to restrain factories from fouling the waterways.

This hoary statute has not been replaced by a new law, but the pattern of prosecution hasn't improved.

The EPA asks Justice to prosecute only the worst polluters. They are given every chance to clean up their messes voluntarily. Only as a last resort are cases forwarded to the Justice Department.

YET A LARGE percentage of these cases never reach the courts. Top EPA officials have told us, not for attribution, that it sometimes takes dynamite to blast a pollution case out of the pigeonholes of the prosecutors. Our own study shows that, of 168 pollution cases submitted for criminal prosecution the Justice Department rejected 35 outright and sidetracked 34 more for one reason or another.

Almost invariably the companies with the most political clout seemed to go unpunished or to get off with light fines. We could not establish that campaign contributions resulted in overt intervention. But as one high official confided to us, "You just know who is to be prosecuted and who is not."

In October 1971, for example, the EPA referred a criminal case involving an oil spill on the Yazoo River in Mississippi. The spill had been caused by either Mobil or Pennzoil, said EPA, since both firms have facilities near the Yazoo. The U.S. attorney declined to prosecute because he lacked "evidence as to who caused the spill."

IT MAY BE merely a coincidence that Pennzoil's president, William Liedtke, was a fund raiser for the Nixon campaign last year. On one celebrated occasion, he stuffed $700,000 in cash and negotiable securities into a suitcase, sent it to Washington aboard a company plane and had it delivered in the dark of night to Nixon headquarters. No receipt was asked nor given.

Another time, the EPA asked Justice to file a civil suit against California Marine Packing for polluting the Los Angeles harbor with 'fish processing wastes' which 'resulted in fish kills.' The U.S. Attorney declined.

THE PACKING company, it develops, is a division of Westgate-California Corporation, whose board chairman is San Diego millionaire C. Arnholt Smith. The Shadowy Smith is a personal friend of President Nixon and contributed $200,000 to the Nixon re-election effort. The donation was returned after the public learned Smith was under investigation of both the Internal Revenue Service and the Securities Exchange Commission.

Well over a year ago, the EPA wanted Justice to prosecute Getty Oil for dumping oil, grease, lead and chemicals into the Delaware River. The case, we have been informed, is tied up in "negotiation." The president of Getty Oil is billionaire J. Paul Getty; the record shows he contributed at least $75,000 to Nixon.

In June 1972, the EPA requested that suits be filed against Star-Kist Foods for discharging foul fish processing wastes into Los Angeles harbor. Prosecution was declined and the company agreed to work out an abatement program.

Star-Kist is a subsidiary of H.J. Heinz, whose officers gave Nixon over $60,000. The president of Star-Kist, Joseph Bogdanovich, contributed $30,000 out of his own pocket to Nixon.

Twice in 1971, Gulf Oil was accused of causing oil spills in the Houston ship channel. Criminal charges were finally filed in one case on January 5, 1973. There has been no legal action at all on the second spill. By another coincidence, Gulf Oil donated $100,000 to Nixon's campaign. The company later admitted the contribution was illegal and it was returned.

The big corporate bosses in many communities, EPA officials told us, have enormous influence with the local U.S. attorneys.

IN AT LEAST eight cases, the federal attorneys simply failed to file suit before the deadline passed.

An American holiday fades

REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

Ralph Hinman Jr.

Today is the 55th Armistice Day since "the war to end all wars" dragged to a weary finale at 11 a.m. on 11/11/18 along a well-blooded Western Front.

And barring something unexpected, I — and presumably most Americans — will observe No. 55 exactly as I would any other pleasant Southern California Sunday in mid-autumn. By indulging in favored leisure-time activities, that is.

It wasn't always so.

IN THOSE distant, between-the-Great Wars years, this date regularly was programmed to provide patriotic events geared for all age and maturity levels. Now, Nov. 11 was designed and designated as the day "true blue Americanism" would be inculcated in the masses.

The American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars, swelled with vigorous, youthful memberships, then were riding high in the national scheme of things. From every Post or Dugout they dominated politics in every city hall, courthouse and statehouse across the then-48.

Observant eyes, backed by energetic action arms, focused constantly on school books and practices. A veteran-inspired wave of what since has been called a "new nationalism" swept between the seas.

NOW, TWO or three wars later, those few who seemingly still care are aging diehard veterans of an older war, chauvinistically refusing to concede that a Johnny-come-lately October "Veterans Day" holds any meaning beyond providing an extra holiday for civil servants.

Leaving the value judgments for future pundits and historians, I would note only that these strikingly different attitudes reveal something quite profound about our society and the events spanning only two lifetimes.

Stored in my personal memory bank and now waiting recall are mind's-eye pictures of other days and ways. Blurred together like a badly edited film are views of Armistice Days from 1930 until . . .

THERE ARE kaleidoscopic views of small, soberfaced boys decked out in their fathers' old tunics, khaki and wraparound puttees too large for their wearers. Marching awkwardly before his grade-school peers, one lad trips, and to the accompaniment of derisive juvenile laughter, falls across a wooden Springfield he's swinging wildly . . .

. . . And there are girls portraying Red Cross-bedecked Florence Nightingales. As predicted by spiteful boys and doting teachers, Sarah Frances and her crowd steal the show . . . there's the first hearing of "In Flanders Field the Poppies Grow," a strongly cadenced poem filled with disturbing words and symbolism beyond a child's comprehension . . .

. . . Ceremonies under brisk autumn skies around the city's commemorative statue of an heroic Doughboy — who somehow depicts the father of all the sons who wore the old uniforms in a school pageant . . . the cracked notes of "Taps" curling from a National Guardsman's brass bugle . . .

. . . The hushed reading of names from a verdigris-greened bronze plaque in the high school entryway, where frozen for an eternity is a roll call of the young men who went forth to serve. Simple and terrifyingly austere are those small stars preceding a handful of names . . .

That's the way it was — as I remember things past. It all began, perhaps, with a generation of intense young men setting out to create a ritual by which they and their efforts could be immortalized. (There was precedent, too, for the old GAR and Spanish War vets did precisely the same thing in their times.)

RITUAL WAS transformed with the years into a near-religious rite; rite in time became rote exercise, which was the beginning of the end of a near-holy day. For rote requires a dedicated, ongoing band of believers to maintain and preserve it into perpetuity.

One Great War later, we Americans stopped putting of statues to our uniformed selves, although a few obsolete airplanes and tanks were permitted to dot the national landscape. Two undeclared military actions beyond that point and we're seeking determinedly to forget, rather than remember, the face of war.

Disabled proving they 'have value, intelligence'

College: A special place for the handicapped

By MARK CLUTTER
Staff Writer

"The basic problem of the handicapped is to get acceptance by the quote normal unquote world," said Jim Frishman, a Cerritos College student who is himself confined to a wheelchair.

"The responsibility is ours. The disabled must put the nondisabled at ease. We must prove we have value and intelligence behind our handicaps."

Cerritos College is helping to bridge the gap between the handicapped and the "normal," said Bob Hughlett, instructor-coordinator, in describing a program that gives the handicapped a chance to become integrated in the college community and later in the general society.

There are three parts to the program: classroom courses, personal counseling and physicial assistance through special machines and campus environmental changes.

The program, which is relatively new in California, was pioneered by Cerritos College and Golden West College less than four years ago. Now 60 colleges in the state have similar programs. The one at LBSU is especially good said Hughlett.

At Cerritos there are four successive classroom courses. The first is orientation. The students are taught the best ways to get around the campus, where to find assistance, the ordinary problems of new students as modified by handicaps.

The second course involves job training and finding employment.

The third deals with the personality problems of the handicapped.

The fourth considers marriage and family life.

There also are special physical education courses. Swimming, weight training and archery are high on the list. The best archer last year was a paraplegic.

The program has changed the campus physically. Except for one second floor, which will soon have an elevator, all buildings are accessible to wheelchairs by ramps and elevators. There are special parking areas. There is early enrollment for the handicapped.

Special machines and equipment are provided. A TV-like machine shows greatly enlarged book pages for those with impaired vision. There is a Braille library. Cassette recorders are used extensively.

There are specialized individual services. Tutors are available where needed. There is a speech clinic for the hard of hearing. Each student is helped according to his need.

Hughlett, Frishman and George Thompson discussed some of the problems and successes of the 175 handicapped students in the program.

Thompson is a good example of one kind of problem. He is spastic. He must use a wheelchair and his voice is affected. He holds a degree in journalism from LBSU. His condition bars him from usual newspaper reporting or even desk work. He is now taking vocational work in a different field, but he is determined to be a writer. He contributes to Talon Marks, the campus newspaper and has had some success free-lancing. He hopes eventually to be a regular employe of some publication.

Frishman is working toward becoming a counselor for the handicapped.

The men agreed that the biggest problem for the handicapped is "to get a foot through the door."

"All studies show that the handicapped who are trained to do a job are superior employes," Hughlett said. "They are more loyal and reliable and they work harder."

They are also better drivers. The record, Hughlett said, shows they have fewer accidents. "I think we are more cautious," Frishman said. About 80 per cent of the Cerritos handicapped drive, many in specially equipped cars.

The handicapped do well on campus. Several are on the dean's honor roll. They serve on many of the committees.

One of the most active clubs is the Handicapped Students Club of Cerritos College. "We have about 30 members," Frishman said. "We meet officially every two weeks but there are many more unofficial meetings."

The club creates a Homecoming float each year. Their candidate for Homecoming Queen this year was Linda Martin, Norwalk, who lost her eyesight at the age of 15.

The club cosponsors an annual basketball game of the handicapped. Its share of the proceeds go to aid crippled children.

Hughlett, a graduate of St. Mary's near Oakland and of Los Angeles State University, taught the handicapped at Rancho Los Amigos Hospital in Downey, before coming to the Cerritos College position.

Lakewood PIO 1 year old, popular

Picture and story
By HAL LOWE

It has been a year since the city of Lakewood set up a special department to deal with public complaints and inquiries, and the feed-back from the public seems to indicate that it is operating well.

Don Fleming, formerly with the Long Beach Recreation Department, was hired last fall as Lakewood's first public information officer. The 29-year old former school teacher operates the PIO office with a full-time secretary and three part-time assistants.

"In addition to handling inquiries from the public, our office is charged with producing the public information brochures" Fleming said. He also noted the office does not act as a publicity department for local organizations, but does put these groups in touch with media contacts so they can develop their publicity programs.

A LARGE part of staff time is spent in getting information for the public about city business.

Before the office was established, people calling at city hall about problem trees, water bills or other problems were directed to the department concerned where a clerk usually would try to help.

Now, the PIO staff receives the inquiries and contacts the department involved. The staff maintains a log of all calls and a follow-up system to see that the citizen's complaint or request for information has been handled.

"We average about 800 to 1,000 inquires a month from the public" Fleming said.

MOST CITY publications are produced by the office, including the city employee publication and the city newsletter. The newsletter, Which is sent out several times a year to each of Lakewood's 25,000 homes, lists city and recreation department programs for coming months.

The office also helps to handle community promotions, oftentimes working with the chamber of commerce and the Pan American Festival Association.

Fleming noted that the catch-all Public Information Office is a new concept in western cities.

"Eastern citys have used the office for years to help take the work load off of city administrators and other city departments," he said.

Truck stripped of tires, rims, windows

More scholarships, fewer grads

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

The number of Long Beach high school graduates is decreasing, but the grads are carrying away an increasing amount of college scholarship money, school officials say.

They said that about the same number of scholarships are available this year as last and high school students who will graduate this June should start applying now.

College applications should also be submitted this month, according to Dr. Doris H. Gregory, supervisor of guidance services in the Long Beach Unified School District.

Last June's graduates received $1,970,515 from 806 scholarships.

That's $300,000 more than in 1972 and almost rivals the district's record $2.1 million received by graduating seniors in 1972, Dr. Gregory said.

She said the number of scholarships awarded has increased by 95 since 711 in 1970.

"It is especially significant that the total dollar value of scholarships has increased at a time when enrollment in Long Beach high schools is going down," she said.

Dr. Gregory theorized that students may be more persistant in seeking scholarships than in the past because of the nation's worsening economic condition.

"Students may be more in need of scholarship money," she said.

Dr. Gregory said that there were plenty of applicants for the betterknown scholarships, but the diligent student may still be able to turn up obscure grants that no one else has applied for.

Scholarships available run from less than $100 to into the thousands of dollars, school officials said.

They range from the UC chancellor's scholarship to American Legion Scholastic Awards to the Distributive Education Clubs of America Leadership Awards.

Marine safety findings

Mansell said that the situation surrounding the lifeguard department, and its duties, had gradually changed over the years, in part necessitating the study and subsequent changes.

"We're always in the process of attempting to improve ourselves," he said, adding that similar studies are under way in other city departments.

Miller said he had not formulated any specific plans, but would be meeting with Mansell and Marine Director Eric Lucas to discuss objectives and goals.

Lucas has also refused comment on any phase of the investigation, deferring any statements to Mansell.

Miller is working on a Ph.D. in administration at the University of Southern California, in addition to teaching reading for the Long Beach Unified School District. He is the former coach of the Los Altos YMCA swimming team.

Lifeguards contacted by the Independent, Press-Telegram unanimously reacted to the news of Miller's appointment with positive comments.

Mansell said Hankla had spent four weeks interviewing "up and down—he talked to everybody." The findings were reviewed by Mansell, his staff and Personnel Director Barney Walczak.

"It's important to recognize that an organizational structure does not make an organization run —people do," Hankla commented. "A new structure is not a panacea."

MAYAN CULTURE HISTORICAL RECAP

Pictured is one of four Mayan Bacabs these important Mayan gods were primarily associated with the four compass directions and could exercise strong influence over the general "luck" of the year. One of their most important duties was to hold up the sky and because of this are most often shown with their arms upraised.

Like the Four Bacabs of the Mayan Culture, Carson Mall represents easy access from four compass directions...freeway close to the entire South Los Angeles/Long Beach area. Our doors will open and you're invited to shop, however, we are still busy completing the 85 stores, shops, restaurants and services. We invite you to view this Mayan pyramid...the all new Carson Mall...a city in itself.

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for MONDAY

Your birthday today: Pick up your earthly possessions and move to another way of life. Today's natives are persistent, hold on long after they should turn loose. They seldom respect, but usually comply with, social rules and customs.

Aries (March 21-April 19): A message means a great deal. Business interests thrive, may require travel, certainly will entail careful planning since nothing is simple.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Now is the time to turn over the proverbial new leaf. Use new tools; apply new methods; start new ventures. Get out of a rut.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Move up boldly, with the cheerful assumption that all is going to go well. Anything within reason should advance your career effort.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Apply yourself diligently, concentrating on those tasks which do not demand close cooperation or await details to be settled by others.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Help is at hand from people who are not usually helpful. Pursue romance, particularly where far-away places and people are involved.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Routine and the methodical completion of well-set plans count. In the course of a pleasant social adventure, avoid misleading others as to your real feelings.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Ideas flow swiftly. Jot them down so you can recall them for later application. Make this a light, happy evening of shared pleasures.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Friends are into activities you couldn't or shouldn't share with them. If you don't find the group you seek, organize one to suit your own ideals.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Begin a course of self-improvement, the study of a specialty related to your main vocation. Family and neighborhood cooperation is promised. Take initiative.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You should now be able to clear up long-standing tangles, make definite readjustments of the nature and direction of your enterprises.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Distant contacts, as usual, seem optimistic. Work during working hours, then quit altogether and play — mixing the two won't do.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Where it seems quiet for a moment, you attract a request for help. Pause from time to time for brief reflection. Be glad you are adaptable to change.

Civil Service placement tests deadlines listed

Congressman Glenn M. Anderson, D-San Pedro, has announced the deadlines for applying for summer placement tests with the United States Civil Service Commission.

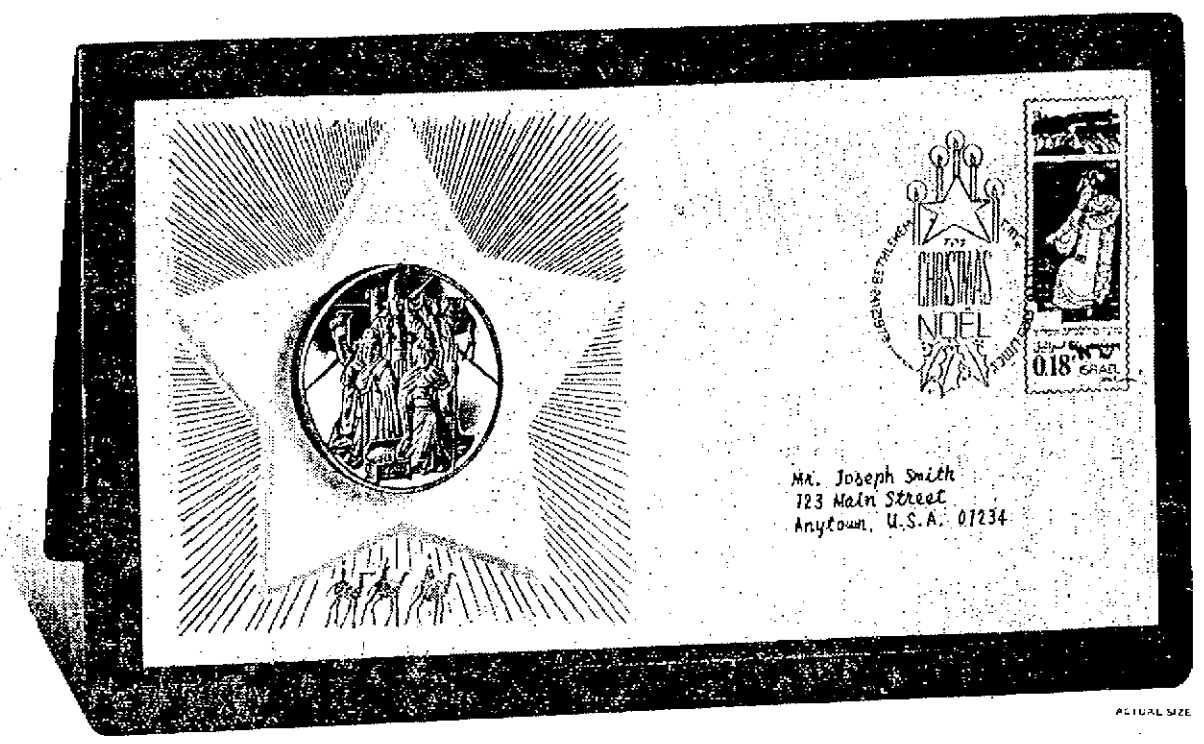

The congressman said those who apply by Nov. 23 will be tested between Jan. 5 and 26; by Dec. 28, between Feb. 2 and 16, and by Jan. 25, between Feb. 23 and March 9, at locations convenient to them.

Anderson noted that complete filing instructions and information on available jobs are contained in the commission's announcement No. 14, "Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies." The brochure and test applications may be obtained from federal job information centers, most college placement offices, or from the Civil Service Commission in Washington, D.C.

Inquiries regarding summer employment with the U.S. Postal Service, which is not participating in the test program, should be directed to the post office where employment is described.

A collector's item to give and to cherish

The Christmas in Bethlehem silver medal and cover

ACTUAL SIZE

...bearing the Official Christmas Postmark of the city where Jesus was born.

From Bethlehem . . . for Christmas . . . comes a unique reminder of the reason for celebration. The Christmas in Bethlehem medal and cover . . . combining a superb 39mm sterling silver proof medal with a personalized cover that bears the Official 1973 Christmas Postmark of Bethlehem, the birthplace of Jesus.

The medal depicts the three wise men holding the gifts they brought to honor Him . . . gifts of gold and frankincense and myrrh. The embossed, gold-stamped cover evokes the journey of the wise men, as they followed the Star of Bethlehem. And the stamp portrays the prophet Isaiah, who foretold the coming of a Prince of Peace with the words: "And nations shall come to your light, and kings to the brightness of your rising."

Together, they form an enduring symbol of the spirit of Christmas. To be owned and cherished forever. To be given to people you care about.

ORDERING DEADLINE: NOVEMBER 30, 1973

The price for the sterling silver proof medal and cover combination, encased in a self-standing display, is $15.00. After all valid orders have been filled, the coining dies used to mint the 1973 Christmas in Bethlehem medal will be destroyed, thus assuring that this remarkable collector's item can never be duplicated.

To allow time for preparation of the medals and covers, however, only those orders postmarked by November 30, 1973, will be accepted. All later orders must be declined and returned.

Because the covers will actually be in Bethlehem for postmarking at Christmas, they cannot be delivered to you until mid-January 1974. For each cover you order, however, you will receive a special embossed Gift Announcement Card (shown at left) which you can present to the intended recipient on Christmas Day.

The Franklin Mint is the world's largest and foremost private mint. It is not affiliated with the U.S. Mint or any other government agency.

ORDERS MUST BE POSTMARKED BY NOVEMBER 30, 1973

Huntington Landmark sales pass $3 million mark

Huntington Landmark, Signal Landmark Properties' all-adult condominium community in Huntington Beach, has passed the $3 million mark in total sales.

Sales Manager Bill Markas noted that 115 of the 156 homes in the first phase of the community have been sold. The start of the second unit was advanced more than a month because of the rapid sales pace in the first phase.

Grading was started on the second unit two weeks ago, shortly after the completion of the extensive recreational facilities.

"We still have an excellent selection of several floor plans in the first phase," Markas noted, "including both upper and lower homes."

Prices of the remaining first unit homes begin at $20,490, with conventional financing terms available.

Signal Landmark Properties was recently awarded a General Electric Gold Key Award for significant achievement in design and construction of the Huntington Beach project. Although awarded on a national basis, the Gold Key has been presented to fewer than 50 building firms since its inception ten years ago.

FOR THE recreational pursuits of residents, the community provides an extensive recreational complex with clubhouse and facilities for numerous activities.

SPECIAL features include luxurious wall-to-wall carpeting in the living room, bedrooms and hallways, and electric cable ceiling heat to insure silent, efficient and clean heating.

Other features are walk-in closets in most models, deluxe-equipped all-electric kitchens, and utility rooms that include an installed washer-dryer.

All homes also have either a private patio or a view balcony overlooking the expansive greenbelt areas.

The condominium concept of carefree living is provided, with exterior maintenance, landscaping and care of the greenbelts and recreational facilities provided by a professional firm retained by the homeowner's association.

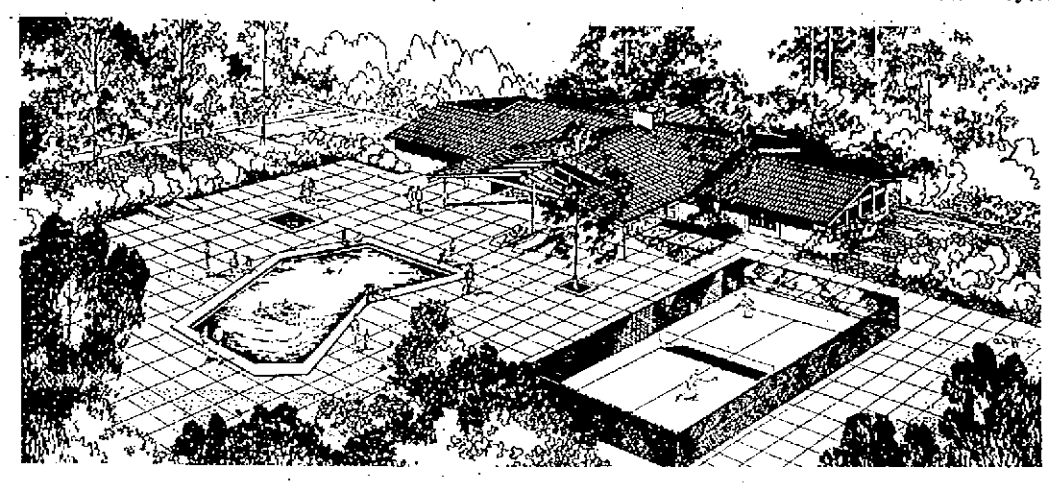

THE all-adult nature of the community will be preserved by the requirement that all residents be at least 40 years of age, except that one spouse of a married couple may be under 40 if the other is over 40. Complete details of the age requirements are contained in the Declaration of Covenants, Conditions and Restrictions for the community.

ROBERT BECKMAN, Real Estate Editor

The Huntington Landmark site is located on Atlanta Avenue between Newland and Magnolia Streets. It may be conveniently reached from the San Diego Freeway by taking either Magnolia Street or Beach Boulevard south to Atlanta. From the Pacific Coast Highway, take Beach Boulevard north to Atlanta.

The sales office and decorated models are open daily at 10 a.m.

COMMUNITY-OWNED CLUBHOUSE . . . feature at Country Club Villas

Country Club Villas selling at fast pace

With 16 new sales consummated last week, Country Club Villas in the exclusive Los Cerritos neighborhood of Long Beach, continues to set a fast pace in the continuing number of homes sold in the new townhome community.

Just down the street from the exclusive Virginia Golf and Country Club and very nearby both the Long Beach and San Diego Freeways, the new villas by the Carlsberg Corporation of Century City offer families a centralized home location that is virtually unmatched.

City offer families a centralized home location that is virtually unmatched.

Downtown Long Beach is an easy short drive. Downtown Los Angeles is only a 25 minute drive. Los Angeles International Airport area the same amount of time. Major shopping complexes are even closer time and distance-wise. For on-the-go adults, the location is unsurpassed.

The one and two-story, two and three-bedroom homes are priced from $29,950 to $41,950. They are in a neighborhood of single family homes that range from $50,000 to $150,000.

Price-included amenities are commensurate with the sales price of the $4.6 million development of 141 homes.

AIR conditioning, wall-to-wall carpeting, paneling, fireplaces, cathedral ceilings in some plans and wife-styled kitchens with all built-ins, luminous ceiling lighting, natural wood cabinets and ceramic tile countertops are some.

"But," says Tom Shollin, vice president of Carlsberg, "even the busy adults who live here need relaxation, and we have provided them with those facilities. There is a completely equipped community-owned clubhouse, a heated pool, spa, gymnasium, saunas for both men and women and a full-sized paddle tennis court for those people who get some exercise at any cost."

Sales facility and model homes, under the direction of Tiffany Realty, Inc., exclusive sales agent, are located at 3703 Country Club Drive in Long Beach.

Exit from the San Diego Freeway at the Long Beach Boulevard turnoff and turn west two blocks on Wardlow Road to Pacific Avenue.

Turn north on Pacific to Country Club Drive and then left to Country Club Villas.

Low interest available at Bishop Place Townehome

A remarkably low interest figure of only 7½ per cent is available for a short period of time on selected homes in the successful Bishop Place Townehomes project at Bolsa Avenue and Magnolia Street in Westminister.

"The figure is relatively unheard of in this age of 8 and 9 and even 10 per cent figures for loans," noted Dick Kurth of Kurth and Associates, exclusive sales agent for Showcase Homes, Inc., builders of the 170-home community.

"The figure applies to Bishop Place's popular two-story, two-bedroom, two-and-a-half bath plan (Plan 20)," continued Kurth.

"It's really a beauty. There are two full bathrooms. There is a full private bath for each bedroom and there's an extra powder room on the first floor. And, like all other of the one and two story, two and three bedroom homes, they contain a plentitude of outstanding, value-packed features."

FEATURES include a 400-square-foot private walled patio, between the two car enclosed garage with automatic openers, and the living area of each townehome, wall-to-wall carpeting, all kitchen built-ins, quality hardware appointments in kitchens and baths, and ample storage space both in the home and the garage.

THE PRICE? Starting from a low of $28,500, some of the homes are at 7½ per cent; the others as follows: 20 per cent down at 8 per cent; 5 per cent down at 8½ per cent, Kurth concluded.

Models are open daily from 11 to dusk.

From the San Diego Freeway, exit at Magnolia and turn north to Bolsa, then left. From the Garden Grove Freeway, exit at Magnolia and drive south to Bolsa, then right. For Los Angeles County readers, take the San Diego Freeway to the Garden Grove Freeway and continue as above.

PX doing well

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite a drop in U.S. military manpower of more than one million since 1969, the military and post exchanges around the world still are doing an excellent business, the Army Times reports.

Winnebago owners have park privileges

Motorhome owners may have a problem of finding a place to go without reservations, but not those who buy a Winnebago from Winnebago World at 2471 Long Beach Blvd., Long Beach.

It has its own recreation vehicle park, the Rolling W Ranch, at Lake Nacimiento in San Luis Obispo County.

It is free for Winnebago World's customers.

The Rolling W Ranch is owned by Don Rocheleau and Gary Cooper, partners in Winnebago World who also operate Long Beach Datsun at 3400 Long Beach Blvd. in Long Beach.

They are constructing the Signal Hill Auto Plaza at 2370 Walnut St., Signal Hill.

The park is 86 acres of unspoiled land, with 40 acres on the lake front and 46 in grassy, oak studded meadowland.

IT WAS formerly a part of the Running Deer Ranch, which breeds fine Angus and Aberdeen cattle. The cattle still roam the meadows, along with herds of deer, wild turkey and quail. There is wild boar there, too.

While there is abundant wild game there, no hunting is allowed. The property is next to a county wild turkey preserve. There are, however, hunting areas that are easily reached.

"We bought the ranch property because it provides our Winnebago buyers with an instant outdoors parking site.

Beach Series IV to open next year

More than 100 families moved into Landmark Homes Beach Series II during the past month.

The families occupied most of the 118 homes in the community, with the remainder expected to be occupied shortly.

Beach Series II was the second Signal Landmark Properties community of single family homes to enjoy record sales success in Huntington Beach.

Landmark Homes Beach Series III was also subsequently sold out, with buyers of those homes scheduled to move in by the end of the year.

Grading was started recently on Landmark Homes Beach Series IV, a 113-home community which will continue the highly successful package of the first three Beach Series projects.

Sales Director Jay Reagan said that he expects homes in Beach Series IV to be available for sale around the new year, with occupancy planned for mid 1974.

Ralph Bick joins Three Worlds plan

Ralph Bick, a Realtor with the Long Beach Board of Realtors, has joined the new franchise Three Worlds. Bick helped pioneer the incorporation of Lakewood and has been active in city activities. He has been a Realtor in the Long Beach-Lakewood area 22 years.

His new office is at 12634 E. Del Amo Blvd. He and his staff will specialize in the resale of homes in the Cerritos, La Palma, Cypress and local areas.

Timber Ridge has horizon-wide views

The annual Orange County Ski Show, being held at the Newporter Inn in Newport Beach today would seemingly have nothing to do with real estate.

Yet, much, if not most, of the new ski resorts — as well as tennis, golf, equestrian and other sports oriented resorts are intimately related to the real estate field.

The resort accomodations, whether championship downhill ski runs or an 18-hole golf course, help the principal developer market either land or housing.

The Orange County Ski Show is hosted this year by the Balboa Ski Club.

Many of the exhibits will be real estate oriented, because builders of condominiums, townhouses and single-family homes in ski resorts throughout the western United States will have exhibits in the show.

What realty boards are doing

LONG BEACH

Bernie Jones, November program chairman, announced the guest speaker for Tuesday at 7:30 a.m. will be Pat McVay, owner of "Real Estate by McVay."

His topic will be "Are You Coping or Groping?"

THE developers of Timber Ridge, luxury condominiums located at the 8,300-foot level at Mammoth, are no exception.

Timber Ridge overlooks the world at this level, where homeowners can ski to the runs and ski back to their front door.

Views are horizon-wide from every home.

The condominium homes of Timber Ridge are priced from $34,900 to $69,000 with excellent financing terms.

For complete information on Timber Ridge in Orange County, call or write the exclusive sales agent, Wm. McCabe, Inc., at P. O. Box 4571, Anaheim, 92803. Representatives of McCabe Real Estate will be on hand at Timber Ridge's exhibit at the Ski Show to answer questions.

Mulhearn merges with LaPeter firm

Merger of Bruce Mulhearn Inc. Realtor's 10 offices throughout Los Angeles County with the three Al LaPeter offices in Whittier and Rowland Heights has been announced.

LaPeter joins the Mulhearn organization as vice-president, headquartered in the main office at 16911 Bellflower Blvd., Bellflower, and will serve in a supervisory capacity in the fields of recruiting, sales training, escrow, mortgage and insurance.

Although he has been in the real estate field only five years, LaPeter has had a meteoric career, beginning with his licensing in 1968 as a salesman. Two years later, in October, 1970, he obtained his broker's license and immediately opened his own office at 11828 Washington Boulevard, Whittier.

Before the year end, LaPeter had opened a second Whittier office and still later opened a third office in Rowland Heights, all of which are now in the Mulhearn chain.

GEORGE SIMINGTON, vice-president, this week takes complete charge of the six southern offices in the Bruce Mulhearn Inc., Realtor chain and will base his headquarters at the main office, Bellflower.

Rapid growth of the Mulhearn organization has prompted a division of operation with Simington supervising the southern area and Vice President Art Guttman taking over the six northern offices.

Each area has approximately 100 sales associates.

In the southern area will be the headquarters office in Bellflower, and Norwalk, Long Beach, North Long Beach, Lynwood and Downey. In the northern area will be the West Covina headquarters office at 719 North Sunset, La Puente, El Monte, Rowland Heights and two Whittier offices.

Escrow seminar planned

Members of realty boards in Orange County have been invited to attend an all-day escrow seminar on Friday, Nov. 16, at the Royal Inn in Anaheim, sponsored by the California Escrow Association.

The all-day meeting on techniques of handling escrows for real estate professionals will be held in conjunction with the association's state board meeting which will convene at the Grand Hotel Nov. 17 and 18, according to president Alma Conover, escrow administrator for Security Title Insurance Company in Los Angeles.

David Myhre, vice president of the 32nd district of the California Real Estate Association and Richard Nerio of the 23rd district, will open the seminar which will be moderated by Charles P. Conner, president of Western Mutual Escrow Corporation.

Musical firm in quarters

Fullerton Music Co. — Fountain Valley, a newly formed musical instrument and accessories sales and rental firm, has opened a retail store at 18191 Euclid St. in Fountain Valley, announced President Richard E. Cruise.

Cruise, who heads Fullerton Music Co., says this is the firm's second location, with the original located at 122 N. Harbor Blvd., Fullerton.

Richard Shelby of Grubb & Ellis Co.'s Newport Beach office, who represented both lessee and the lessor, Ernest E. Kell Jr. of Long Beach, in the transaction, states the Fountain Valley store is celebrating its grand opening in the new location.

Hank Latham has been appointed as manager of the new residential sales office office of Ye Real Estate Shoppe at 11708 East Artesia Blvd., Artesia, close to the Pioneer off-ramp of the Riverside (91) Freeway.

A grand opening is scheduled for November 17.

THE WOMAN ALCOHOLIC: PART I

More difficult to reach, treat

MULTIPLE ADDICTIONS TO PILLS, BOOZE COMMON

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a three-part series on women alcoholics. Today's article deals with the difficulties of treating women alcoholics. Subsequent stories will discuss treatment centers and the shortage of halfway houses for the alcoholic in the Long Beach area).

Mike Gorman, M.D., was anxious to talk about the woman alcoholic.

Nobody really knows much about her, he explained, and to his satisfaction, at least, not nearly enough is being done to bridge the understanding gap.

What information that does exist, he added, is merely an extrapolation of studies done on men. More and more, alcohol experts like Dr. Gorman are questioning whether such findings have any bearing on the woman alcoholic at all.

A related concern of Dr. Gorman's is his impression that the woman alcoholic may not really be getting relevant treatment. In his work with women at the Long Beach Alcohol and Drug Abuse Rehabilitation Center, the physician has found that women do not respond to treatment nearly as well as men.

The reason, he speculates, may be precisely because so little is known about her. "Frequently, women need a lot more help after they've sobered up than men do. It's been my experience that after you've sobered a man up and put him on Antabuse, he goes home and things begin to get better.

"For women, the road to recovery isn't so smooth. It appears that the majority of women alcoholics don't have as much to stay sober for as their male counterparts. And you've got to have some kind of reason to stay sober if any kind of therapy is going to work."

ACCORDING TO Dr. Gorman, many of his patients — men and women alike — need psychotherapy in addition to treatment for their alcoholism. The principle reason for this, he believes, is that many of his patients suffer from multiple drug addictions. "Women, especially, are prone to multiple drug addictions," said Dr. Gorman, who noted that it's generally accepted that between 7 and 10 per cent of all alcoholics need therapy beyond the treatment for their alcoholism.

"Here, that figure is much higher," he added. "And with or without the multiple addictions, women seem to need psychotherapy more than men."

Several other professionals involved with the treatment of alcoholics agreed with Dr. Gorman's observation that the woman alcoholic is harder to reach. Dr. Bruce Pevney, medical director of Long Beach Memorial Hospital's Alcoholism Treatment and Education Center, remarked that the prognosis is not always as good for the woman alcoholic; and Mary Ellen Auckland, the center's inpatient coordinator of patient services, said that she has found that women don't respond to treatment as well or come back for outpatient treatment as faithfully as men. "The stigma of being an alcoholic is much greater for a woman than it is for a man," said Mrs. Auckland, who is a recovered alcoholic herself. "I think this is one of the big reasons why women have so much difficulty seeking help.

"It also appears easier for a woman to blame someone or something else for her drinking. It takes her much longer to accept the fact that she's the reason she drinks."

Mrs. Auckland disagrees, however, with the notion that a woman, merely because she's a woman, requires any more psychotherapy than a man.

"I think a lot of women would like to think that—but once again, it's because many women have difficulty in facing up to the real reason they drink. My experience has been that the psychotherapy may be useful once you've stopped drinking, but until you've stopped drinking, it doesn't help at all."

FAMILIES — especially husbands — may have a great deal to do with a woman's difficulty in seeking and responding to treatment, too. Either they protect her excessively, which simply makes matters worse by prolonging detection of the disease, or they react harshly and negatively to the woman's affliction. "There is a particularly strong revulsion about the idea that a wife, mother

Junior League prepares annual Rummage Sale

A houseful of furniture and 40 new tennis dresses are among special items donated to the Junior League Rummage Sale this year.

The 22nd annual event will take place Saturday and next Sunday in Long Beach Arena, with Sunday being half-price day. Doors open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first day and from noon to 4 p.m. the second day.

Beginning Wednesday and continuing through Friday, members will start moving in merchandise, sorting and pricing items. The 467 League members spend a minimum of 25 hours each during the work days and at the sale.

Each member also donates at least $50 worth of goods, plus a specialty items and this year a live plant for the Green Thumb Department.

Specialty items can include antiques, jewelry, art books, bicycles, fishing poles, skis, televisions, radios, boutique articles or home-crafted materials, such as dough art for the new Country Kitchen Department.

All proceeds from the sale go to support community projects. The sale, one of the largest on the West Coast, is the main fund-raising event for the League. Last year it netted $36,369, the most ever made.

OVER THE PAST 10 years, the League has contributed more than $250 thousand dollars and 300,000 hours of volunteer service to the community. Among projects sponsored are:

1. Closed circuit TV classroom system at Earl and Loraine Miller Children's Memorial Hospital and Medical Center offers live and taped TV programs designed to provide uninterrupted education of hospitalized children. The shows are produced, directed and acted in by League volunteers.

2. The International Community Council for Foreign Students and Visitors was established to further the educational experiences and to provide hospitality and other needed assistance to foreign students and visitors to the area.

3. Junior League Puppeteers create the puppets,

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

The forties: they're reason to celebrate

By LINDA ZINK
(Pinch-writing for vacationing Carolyn McDowell)

"YOU'RE NOT GETTING older, you're getting better," a current ad proclaims, and Kit Cullen, for one, would be the first to agree with it.

Like Liz Taylor, Princess Grace and Jacqueline Onassis, Kit, wife of Assemblyman Mike, has passed the magic mark of 40 and "good friends" Jeanne and Ed Evans and Barbara and Irv Taplin Jr. weren't about to let her forget it.

With daughter Lisa (a second daughter, Shawn, was home ill), they fenagled to get the Cullens down from Sacramento for a gala birthday celebration at the Evans' Huntington Harbour home. Among those on hand to offer greetings at the affair, which was appropriately themed, "Life Begins at 40," were Ruth Grisham, Reid and Harriet Williams, Nadine and Bob Kirkpatrick and Roberta and Milt Cook.

Others sharing in the celebration included Huntington Harbourites Linda and Rick Alvarez, Gloria and Dick McWilliams, Dee and Rick Taylor and Lorraine and Jim Ackerman, as well as Diana and Don McCalla of Yorba Linda.

The Legislature was presented, too, by Assemblymen Newton Russell of Canoga Park, Bob Badham of Newport Beach and Ken Maddy of Fresno with wives Diane, Ann and Beverly.

Helping to cut the cake, which was decorated with "You must have been a beautiful baby, cause baby look at you now," were local government figures Lakewood Mayor Mark and Sarah Hannaford and Long Beach Councilman Ted and Sue Cruchley.

"BACK TO THE FORTIES" was the theme, but members of Dames Club of Long Beach and their guests opted for "seventies" semi-formal attire for the organization's 31st annual holiday dance last Saturday at the Petroleum Club.

The main ballroom was packed as members Doris and Bob Sturgeon, Marylou and J. B. Dixon, Madeline and Glen Horrie and Jean and Leonard Jones danced to music by Herbert Tomkins.

Dance chairman Jerry McCutcheon was there with husband, Jack, as were President Jerry and Don Hazzard and their guests Dottie and Dan Barclay, Irene and Terry Muiholland and son and daughter-in-law, Ken and Sharon Hazzard.

JACK BENNY STOPPED COUNTING at 39, but Kit Cullen isn't so vain. Here husband, Assemblyman Mike, and daughter, Lisa, present Kit with a not-so-subtle reminder of her birthday at a party in her honor.

On vacation

A GET-ACQUAINTED GET-TOGETHER to honor parents of new pledges of Kappa Kappa Gamma at USC, members of the advisory board of Delta Tau Chapter of KKG Mother's Club and house director, Mrs. Burton Crane, will be held tonight at the Pasadena home of the junior Robert Langdons.

Long Beachers expected to attend the "Get-Acquainted Cocktail and Dinner Party" are the junior George Hedleys, parents of Carolyn, and the Frank Sunofskys, parents of Jan.

IT SEEMED LIKE THE THING TO DO, so the O. L. Dahls of Loug Beach stopped off for a few days in Paris on their way home from South America and South and Central Africa.

After that, a tour of the countryside seemed in order: to Fountain Bleu, Cherboard Castle, Valencay, Limoge and Bordaeux. Then, back to Paris again where, despite the devaluation, the wine (red and white) still flows and the people are gracious.

HOME FROM A WEEK IN HAWAII just in time for a gala silver wedding anniversary in their honor are the Bill Jewells of Lakewood. Hosting the reception, which was attended by close to 100 well-wishers, were the couple's daughters, Kathy Navarro and Marianne Jewell; and Aurelia Jewell Roubideaux.

Guests who had attended the wedding 25 years earlier included the couple's mothers, Louise Jewell and Grace Killam; Eugene O'Conner, Irene Jewell Young, Lola Linsbaugh, the Harry Phillipses, and Martina Gatewood, who flew in from Colorado Springs for the date.

Others were the Hubert Pryors (he's editor of Modern Maturity), the Edward Eisens, the Walter Crams, the Lawrence Russells and the Robert Orkins and the honored couple's grandchildren, Melissa and Randy Navarro Jr.

SHE DIDN'T KNOW how much champagne to buy and she figured that it would probably rain, but as it turned out, Barbara Havekorst's first one-woman art show was a smashing success.

She'd been planning the event for months, she explained — and getting more nervous all the time. Now, with the big day behind her (it was last Sunday at the Seal Beach Art Center Gallery), she's still in a bit of a shock.

Among those who were there to share in her success (and take home a few paintings) were Marguerite and Ollie Speraw, Deane and John Coultrup, Willa and Ron Dulin, Jan and Dr. Ralph Simonian, Georganne and Bucky Dennis and Cecelia Tallichet.

Also Jane and Chapin Burks (he flew in from Houston where the family is moving), proud parents Billie and Al Welzenbach of Malibu, husband, Dr. Walt, and children, Kristilyn and Cap.

HER DAUGHTERS WERE HOSTING the party, but chances were good that Corinne Broeker was still in the kitchen minutes before guests arrived at the family's Ocana Avenue home last night to help her and husband, Russell, celebrate their silver wedding anniversary.

The assistance with the cooking didn't bother her, though — only the prospect of rain. Even so, she shrugged off the prospect of a "wet night" philosophically with the belief "We'll have a good time anyway" — much to the credit of daughters Candy, 24 and Kim, 16, who have been planning the event for months.

Among those invited to share in the cocktails, buffet dinner and dancing to Waldo Campos Combo were Russell's mother, Sally Feist of Long Beach, and Corine's cousins, Bernice Trevithick of Long Beach and Ree Reaney of Bellflower, with husbands Lloyd and Gene.

Others adding to the merriment — and the four-foot high money tree collected in their honor — were Amy and Al Grossholz of Solvang and the Jack Perrys of Palos Verdes.

. . . they had a gala ball

There was pomp, ceremony and pageantry in the Grand Ballroom of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel when the Order of St. Lazarus of Jerusalem hosted its annual Royal Ball with guests of honor, Prince Don Francisco Enrique de Borbon of Spain and his princess, Dona Maria Jose de Borbon. He also holds the title of Fourth Duke of Seville.

Among Long Beachers traveling to the gala event were Col. Gordon Curtis Young, (AUS, ret.) and Mrs. Young, Mrs. Samuel Leslie Hall and Rev. Hall, pictured above. Col. Hall is the receiver general of the American Grand Priory for the Order, which was founded nearly 900 years ago. Its goals are to promote Christian unity and alleviate suffering in the imitation of Christ.

Other area residents attending the benefit were Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Shaw of Rolling Hills and Mr. and Mrs. John Curci of Newport Beach.

The international ecumenial order has chapters in the United States, Spain, Great Britain and Mexico, all of which were represented at the ball.

Stigma, shame greater

or girlfriend may be an alcoholic," reported a 1972 Blue Shield publication on alcoholism.

And another pamphlet, "AA and the Women," explained, "Where women are concerned, the mistaken impression that only weaklings and outcasts are alcoholics remains particularly strong. Most societies tend to look with tolerance or even amusement upon a male drunk and recoil in distaste from a woman in the same condition.

"The greater tragedy is that the woman herself so often shares this bias. For her, the burden of guilt every alcoholic carries may be doubled."

Protection can be even worse, those who work with alcoholics say. Jayne Newhall, a psychiatric social worker on Ward 1600 (the women's ward) at Long Beach General Hospital's Alcoholism Service, noted that a wife will generally bring her spouse in for treatment early because he's the bread earner. A husband, on the other hand, may ignore his wife's condition for some time — often until it's too late. "The women alcoholics we see here are much sicker physically than their male counterparts," said Ms. Newhall. "Then, too, we often find that by the time a woman ends up here she's lost everything that means anything to her—her husband, her family, her home and her friends."

PROTECTION can also lead to multiple drug addictions — a problem which Dr. Gorman discussed earlier. "A woman will go to her physician with any of a number of classic alcoholic symptoms — upper G.I. upset, fatigue, nervousness, sleeplessness — and ask for treatment. Most physicians, because they know so little about alcoholism, will hone in on one of these other problems and ignore the real culprit — alcohol. "Usually, the physician will wind up prescribing some kind of tranquilizer for her. In the short run, tranquilizers only make her problem worse and in the long run, they will make her recovery more difficult."

Dr. Gorman also suggests that the role women have traditionally played in society may have something to do with their poor response to treatment. "I don't subscribe at all to the idea that women's liberation may have contributed to a woman's alcoholism by making her dissatisfied with her housewife and mother role," said Dr. Gorman, who has found that many women have a kind of low self-esteem which he doesn't normally find with the male alcoholic. "Quite the contrary, in fact. I've often thought that those who have responded the poorest to treatment could desperately use a strong injection of women's lib."

Dr. Vernelle Fox, Chief of Alcoholism Services at Long Beach General Hospital, agrees with the observation that women alcoholics are harder to reach—but maintains that they are usually easier to treat. "A woman tends to stay away from treatment because of the combination of individual and cultural guilt that has been thrust upon her," said Dr. Fox. "But once she's involved in treatment she responds better because she's not as frightened of her dependency needs. "Women have an advantage, too, in that they don't have as much of a facade to keep up. Women aren't as reluctant to ask for help. They don't have the image of a big, strong man to keep up."

(MONDAY: Help's available — but women may not be taking advantage of it.)

AT WIT'S END

Product adheres to quality code, and more

By ERMA BOMBECK

There's an ad in the Personals column of the Saturday Review-World that I'd like to call to your attention.

"To all users of Denture Sticktite: We regret that our product exceeded our most optimistic expectations. Our chemists are working around the clock to develop a tasty and effective release solvent. In the meantime, we ask our friends to be patient."

In today's world of shoddy workmanship and unfulfilled promises, that ad is like a beacon of light. New products anymore barely exceed anyone's pessimism . . let alone optimism.

It's the American way. We expect compromise. Everyone knows the life of a TV picture tube is two hours after the warranty runs out. That giving a kid a toy stamped "Child Proof" is like giving an orange crate to a Kung Fu fanatic. That the label marked "Moth Proof" is the first thing a moth eats. And a lifetime guarantee doesn't refer to your lifetime, but the founder of the store who died three years ago, God rest his soul.

I'VE ALWAYS been a skeptic about promises and claims. The fountain pen that writes under water, opens beer cans, and is strapped to an ice skate doesn't seem to be able to write on a cold cheek. And I have always believed in my heart that if I fell into a pit of snakes and flipped the switch on my flashlight, my batteries wouldn't light up the sky because one of the kids stole them for his electric football game.

I wonder if the users of Denture Sticktite had doubts. Or did Sam Fox come home one afternoon and call, "Hey, Mildred, where are you?"

"I'm here in the dining room in a high chair eating baby food, why?"

"I've got some adhesive guaranteed to keep your dentures in place."

"I've heard that one before, Sam."

"So what have you got to lose?"

HOW DELIGHTED and surprised they must have been when they discovered they could eat candy apples and corn on the cob . . without hands.

And that wonderful day when Mildred was getting a hatbox down from the shelf, slipped and caught a coathanger in her teeth to break the fall. As she hung suspended twirling like a circus performer, Sam probably shouted, "It works. We've finally found a denture adhesive that did what it said it would do."

Eat your heart out, Ralph Nader. America is on the move again.

Nuptial vows said

The bridegroom asked his brother, Kurt Laubscher, to be best man. They are the sons of G.C. Kurt Laubscher of San Diego and Mrs. Theodore Dodd of Long Beach.

The bride was graduated from Clairemont High School and Pacific College. She is a former Ticktocker of the Palm Springs Chapter of the National Charity League. Her husband was graduated from Clairemont High and will attend San Diego State University.

LWV units to study land use reform

"Our beautiful state is in severe danger of being destroyed as a desirable place to live. Our lush orange groves and walnut groves, vineyards, primeval sagebrush country, secluded valleys, meandering streams, majestic mountains and windswept beaches are going — and going fast, replaced by largely depressing urban sprawl. It is even questionable whether major portions of the state will be capable of supporting human life within several more decades."

That quote was made by Frank J. Tysen before the State Senate Interior Committee in 1970. Are there steps that can be taken to improve the role of local government in land use control? If so, what kind of steps? Should there be changes in the present structure of land use control? If so, what changes?

THESE AND other questions will be put to members of Long Beach League of Women Voters as they gather for November unit meetings to study land use reform.

The Belmont Shore section meets Monday at 12:30 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Arthur Gottlieb, 215 Prospect Ave., with Lynn Wallick as discussion leader.

The Plaza unit convenes Tuesday at 9:30 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Hazel Brummett, 4029 Ransom Ave. Lynn Brandt is chairman of the unit.

Three groups gather on Wednesday—Lakewood at 9:30 a.m. in the Lakewood home of Mrs. Dewain Rynerson, 2864 Allred St., with Mrs. Cecil Cooper as chairman. Babysitting is available for this meeting; downtown section meets at 1 p.m. in the league office, 1001 E. Fourth St., with Ardus Morrison leading the discussion, and the night unit at 7:45 in the home of Marie Griffith, 6320 Vermont Ave. Mrs. Robert Gillespie is discussion leader.

The Park Estates section convenes Thursday at 9:30 a.m. in the home of Mrs. Herbert McDaniel, 621 Flint Ave. Co-discussion leaders are Mrs. Demetrio Antenore and Mrs. Robert Bennett.

Rummage sale readied

MRS. ROY Broxton shows off some of the items collected for the annual Junior League Rummage Sale, which opens next weekend in Long Beach Arena.

—Staff photos by CURT JOHNSON

4. Rancho Los Cerritos School Tour docents acquaint fourth graders in the Long Beach Unified School System with California history through a visit to the Rancho, which is a city museum and historical monument.

5. School drug education program takes specially trained League members into the fourth, fifth and sixth grades to teach students about drug prevention. The League also sponsors TV drug spots.

6. Art in the Schools program is the newest project launched by the League. It will be lectures and demonstrations to emphasize how an art form or technique got its start in America through colonization, the westward movement and contributions made by other cultures, such as Indian and Mexican. The program will be for fifth graders in connection with their social studies curricula.

7. Docent program at Cabrillo Museum in San Pedro, co-sponsored with the Los Angeles Junior League, will give adults and children an opportunity to view marine life through tide pools, whale watching and grunion runs operated at the museum.

. . . how to make dough sculptures

To make bread dough sculptures, mix together 4 cups flour, 1 cup salt and 1½ cups water, adding ½ cup at a time.

After mixing, knead dough about 10 minutes or until smooth, then roll out with rolling pin. Cut strips of dough using yardstick and connect together over pan form by rubbing with water.

Bake in 250-degree oven about 1 hour, then remove pan. Return to 300-degree oven and bake again. Time involved will depend on thickness of basket.

After cooling, coat completed basket with polymer or acrylic spray to achieve desired glaze.

Sculptures make interesting and decorative centerpieces or serving dishes for rolls or muffins.

CHEF OF THE WEEK

It's a heart-y Italian recipe

By MILDRED K. FLANARY

With regards to his fellow man, no one need ever plead with today's Chef of the Week to "please have a heart!" You see, Dominic DeCristofaro, M.D., is the president of the Long Beach Heart Association.

He's also a practicing cardiologist in Long Beach, and the director of the Cardiac Catherization Laboratory at St. Mary's Hospital. Both the American Medical and the American Heart Associations claim him as a member.

Though born and raised in Chicago, Ill., DeCristofaro divided his education between that state and California. He earned a B.S. degree from the University of Illinois, and his M.D. degree from Chicago Medical School. His M.S. in biochemistry was awarded at UC, Berkeley.

He served his internship at Los Angeles County General Hospital, and then did a three-year residency in internal medicine and a two-year cardiology research fellowship at Harbor General Hospital in Torrance.

When DeCristofaro left San Francisco he had no thought of not returning. However, Southern California's nice weather warmed his heart and Long Beach became heir to his vast knowledge. He joined the staff of St. Mary's Hospital in 1967.

IN ADDITION to his medical involvement, DeCristofaro has been active in environmental issues and development of the new fourth city on the Palos Verdes Peninsula, where the family resides.

He and his wife, Margaret, who, by the way is of Scottish heritage, met in high school. They were "pinned" for six years while he continued his "doctoring" tour. They have a daughter, Susan, 10, and a son, Andrew, 7. Both attend Mira Catalina School in the Palos Verdes area.

Our "Chef's" primary hobby is photography and Margaret knows when he's missing for several hours he's in the darkroom. He also enjoys bicycle riding, horse back riding, fishing and hiking with his family.

Margaret, too, is active in the community. She conducts the Heart Association's Bicycle Riding Cyclethon, serving as state chairman, and also as chairman of the Bicycle Center. She is active in Women's Auxiliary to Los Angeles County Medical Association.

Another family hobby is a large black poodle, who has a fetish for chasing cats. There are numerous skunks in the area, though, and he often mistakes the two. But, with "Doc's" medical knowledge, he knows that pouring tomato juice over the dog will bring about complete recovery.

OUR "CHEF" loves to cook and, says Margaret, "I was lucky. I knew very little about the art when we first married, so he pitched in." He's a master "snacker", too, but since it's against his profession, he usually abstains.

His recipe today is for Polpettini Suppa a la DeCristofaro. We suggest that Tedd Thomey order it the next time he visits an Italian restaurant.

DOMINIC DeCRISTOFARO, M.D.

POLPETTINI SUPPA a la DeCRISTOFARO

1 pound ground round
2 eggs
1 tablespoon Italian parsley
1 clove garlic
1 slice French bread
Pepper
Salt
2 pounds escarole (endive)
Graled imported Romano peccorino cheese
8 cans chicken broth, or two quarts homemade chicken broth

Beat eggs with a fork, add parsley and garlic, both finely chopped, salt and pepper. Place 1-inch slice crust-free French bread in 1 cup of milk, and break the bread in the milk into small particles. Mix all of the above ingredients together and add ground round. Mix by hand until homogenous.

In a small pot add two cups of chicken broth or bouillon and heat slowly to a boil. With the aid of a small teaspoon, form a polpettini (small meat ball) the size of a small marble. After making approximately 10 polpettinis, put them in the slowly boiling chicken broth and boil for 5 minutes. Remove with a slotted spoon and set aside. Repeat the above procedure in groups of 10, until all meatballs have been made. Then discard the broth.

Wash escarole greens and boil in salt water until tender, approximately 15 to 20 minutes. Drain, squeeze dry and chop into 1-inch pieces. Add the boiled polpettinis and chopped escarole to 6 cans chicken broth or 2 quarts of homemade chicken broth. Add salt to taste. Heat and serve hot, topped with 1 teaspoon of grated Romano pecorino cheese. Serves 6 to 8.

Drinks, beer and snacks will be available.

Lampls on trip to mountains

MRS. STEPHEN LAMPL

Honeymooning near the San Gabriel mountains are newly wed Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Ronald Lampl (Cheryll Kay Barger) after a wedding Saturday afternoon at Methodist Church of the Good Shepherd, Westminster.

Patricia Ann Scutt was maid of honor for the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Harold Barber of Westminster. The bridegroom, son of Dr. and Mrs. Hans Lampl of Huntington Beach, asked Thomas Elan Cowart III to be best man.

The newlyweds were graduated from Fountain Valley High. The bride attends Golden West Junior College. Her husband is a student at Long Beach State University.

Catholic groups set card fetes

Two public card parties are planned this week by Catholic groups.

The first is scheduled Wednesday noon in the parish hall of St. Cyprian's Church, Clark Avenue and Arbor Road, sponsored by the church.

The second will take place at 8 p.m. Thursday in St. Athanasius Church, Market Street and Linden Avenue, sponsored by the Parish Council.

Bridge, canasta, 500 and pinochle will be offered at both events.

CONSORTIUM MUSICUM

Tribute to Lipatti

The near reverence with which the late pianist Dinu Lipatti is held by musicians will be evident in the performance by the Consortium Musicum of Long Beach State University next Sunday.

Directed by Julien Musafia, the Consortium will be heard at 3 p.m. in the campus Little Theater. It will present the West Coast premiere of compositions by the famed pianist from Bucharest who died in 1950 at the age of 33.

Comprising the orchestra will be LBSU student artists and alumni who are now professional musicians. Featured performers include Pavel Farkas, violinist who has played with orchestras in Bratislava, Czechoslovakia, Vienna and Japan; Leaine Gibsom and Patty Dobiesz, pianists; Hugh MacKenzie, cellist; Katharine West, flutist; Robert Gray, tenor, a Metropolitan Opera competition winner, and pianist Musafia.

ACCORDING TO Musafia, "It took us one year to gather the necessary scores, some in manuscript form, for this concert which has already richly rewarded us by the beauty of the music and the exceptional challenges we found in the pianistic writing."

While concertizing this summer in Romania, Musafia collected some of Lipatti's music, a labor of love for he had met the pianist when they took lessons at the Royal Academy of Music in Bucharest from the same teacher, Florica Musicescu.

The program next Sunday will include Concertino Classique for piano and orchestra, Sonatina for violin and piano, Introduction and Allegro for flute solo, Three Romanian dances for two pianos, and four songs which will be sung by Gray

ALSO TO BE heard in a first performance in this area is String Trio Op.30 by Artur Schnabel, whose fame as a pianist overshadowed the fact that he was also a composer.

Of Lipatti, Musafia says, "I don't know of a pianist who doesn't treasure his records. He was the greatest pianist of his generation." Lipatti made comparatively few recordings, for he was weakened steadily by the rheumatoid arthritis that claimed his life.

Walter Legge, who supervised all the Lipatti recordings, wrote of the frail young pianist, "He never played a note in public that was not meticulously prepared; his miraculous playing was the result of a mastery of the physical-technical part of his art, so complete that his mind and spirit were free to express themselves in music."

Tickets to the concert may be obtained by mail from the LBSU Music Department, 6101 E. Seventh St., Long Beach 90840 or at the box office the day of the concert. General admission is $2; student admission is $1.

Bikel, noted folk singer, slated Dec. 2

The multifaceted talents of Theodore Bikel will be condensed to his versatility as a folk singer and guitarist when he gives a concert Dec. 2 in Lakewood High School Auditorium.

Appearance of the stage, screen and television actor-singer is sponsored by the Long Beach Hebrew Academy-Lubavitch. The public is invited.

Bikel will bring his masterful interpretation of folk songs, popular Israeli music and joyous Chasidic melodies to the performance which begins at 8 p.m.

Concert proceeds will go to the Hebrew Academy's scholarship fund to provide education for Jewish children in Long Beach and Orange County. Ticket information, including group rates and special rates for students and senior citizens may be obtained now by calling the academy, 3981 Atlantic Ave. Mrs. Helen Torem is ticket committee chairman. Tickets will also be available at the box office on performance night.

BIKEL WAS graduated with honors from London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. His roster of memorable performances on Broadway include "Tonight in Samarkand," "The Rope Dancers," "The Lark" and "The Sound of Music," in which he created the role of Baron von Trapp, playing opposite Mary Martin.

He has played a wide variety of roles in motion pictures and on television in the U.S., England and Canada.

His literary side, as author, raconteur and lecturer is evidenced in the one-man shows he conceived, wrote and starred in for "The Eternal Light" and "Look Up and Live." Nationally syndicated were his 90-minute one-man TV show, "One Night Stand" and radio program, "At Home with Theodore Bikel." He is author of a book, "Folksongs and Footnotes."

THEODORE BIKEL

Bikel's latest album is "Silent No More," the freedom songs of Soviet Jews which are based on tapes smuggled out of the USSR.

Now an American citizen and a social activist, Bikel resides in Connecticut with his wife and two young sons.

arts

PIANIST Saralee Halprin will be joined by Roy D'Antonio, clarinetist in program at Burnett Library. Sponsoring the performance Thursday is Long Beach Museum of Art.

Clarinet, piano duo on series

Two outstanding Los Angeles musicians, Roy D'Antonio, clarinetist, and Saralee Halprin, pianist, will present a program Thursday at 8 p.m. in the second of Long Beach Museum of Art concerts. Site of the concert will be Burnett Branch Library, 560 E. Hill St.

The program, free to the public, will feature Sonatas by Brahms and Poulenc and Schumann's Fantasy Pieces. Pianist Sidney Stafford will join Ms. Halprin in playing Epigraphes Antiques by Debussy.

D'Antonio has been active in all mediums of music in the Los Angeles area, from opera to phonograph recording. He has recorded Stravinsky's "L'Histoire du Soldat" with the composer conducting. Other prominent conductors with whom he has worked are Bruno Walter, Sir John Barbirolli and Zubin Mehta.

SARALEE HALPRIN began her professional career as pianist of the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra under direction of Erich Leinsdorf.

After settling in Los Angeles she was pianist of the Euterpe Trip with violinist Israel Baker and cellist Harold Schneier.

She has appeared in concert with Eugene Ormandy in Hollywood Bowl and has performed in concert and on radio with numerous artists and chamber groups, including two-piano recitals with Xenia Chasman and four-hand piano recitals with Sidney Stafford.

For the past several years she has been the leader of the Pacifica Piano Quartet which performs in schools throughout Southern California.

AT LBSU GALLERY

Altered prints attract patrons

Excitement is running high at the art gallery of Long Beach State University in anticipation of its exhibition, "The Altered Print" opening Monday from 7 to 9 p.m. and continuing through Dec. 16.

Well known artists, Americans Jasper Johns and Robert Rauschenberg, and Briton David Hockney are the exhibiting trio. They are ranked foremost among the painterly printmakers who have devoted large portions of their careers to expanding the boundaries of the contemporary print.

They view the making of a print not an end in itself. It offers opportunity for the discovery of new techniques and the exploration of new idoims. On a number of occasions each has spontaneously transformed a print into a unique work of art.

The exhibit includes 30 actual prints as they were issued, and the monotype, drawing, watercolor or painting which incorporates the prints as their genesis.

The public may attend the showing. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday. Closed Saturdays and holidays. The university is located at 6101 E. Seventh St.

EXHIBIT OF art by Dr Samella S. Lewis will be on display in the library of Compton Community College through Nov. 20.

Dr. Lewis, art teacher at Scripps College and formerly coordinator of education for the Los Angeles County Museum of Art, has exhibited widely in the Los Angeles area.

She is represented in many permanent collections, including the Atlanta University Museum of Contemporary Art, Baltimore Museum of Art and Viktor Lowenfeld Memorial Collection at Pennsylvania State University.

Black artists have been her subject of several books and educational films. A recipient of both a Fulbright Fellowship and a Ford Foundation Grant, she is also an expert in Chinese art.

WHEN CYPRESS Cultural Arts Association Inc. meets Tuesday, guest demonstrator will be Mrs. Hester Alice True, a winner of awards in the abstract and non-objective field.

Mrs. True will speak at 7:30 p.m. at Cawthon School, Myra and Denni Streets, Cypress. The public is invited.

Throughout November the association is sponsoring a silent art auction in Cypress Civic Center. Interested persons are invited to participate.

Winners of the October competition in seascapes were Eleanor Valek, Nancy Reisner and Eileen Kuenn, advanced; Frank Madonna and Olline McDonald, regular category.

POLICY and eligibility for grants have been determined and appproved for 1973-74 by the California Arts Commission.

Policy is based on the philosophy of inspiring, encouraging and reinforcing interest in the arts throughout California, according to CAC chairman William Kent III, San Francisco.

Guidelines for eligibility for grants include nonprofit status of petitioning organizations, proof of matching funds, and a deadline of Dec. 17 for submission of grant applications.

Application forms and additional information may be obtained from Susan Hooper Walker, grants program art advisor, California Arts Commission, 808 "O" St., Sacramento, 95814.

THREE DIMENSIONAL ceramic and framed pieces by award-winning artist Sabato Fiorello will be shown in Cerritos College art gallery from Monday through Nov. 30. The gallery, 11110 E. Alondra Blvd., Norwalk, is open from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Fridays.

A NATIONAL art competition open to both professional and amateur artists over 21 years of age who are U. S. residents is being sponsored for the 12th year by Benedictine Liqueur.

Prizes of $1,000, $750 and $500 will be awarded for outstanding paintings in any style from nonobjective to realistic, of any type from still life to portraiture. Acceptable mediums includ oil, watercolor, casein and acrylic. Each painting submitted must contain a recognizable representation of the Benedictine bottle.

Deadline for receipt of entries is March 15, 1974. Each entrant must submit two 35mm color slides of each entry for preliminary judging. Entry blanks and complete rules may be obtained by writing Benedictine Art Awards, 415 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

SHOWS here and there: Calligraphers R. J. Randall Dighton and Michael W. Hughey will show their work, along with examples of 11th through the 17th Century calligraphy through Friday in El Camino College art gallery ... Classical narrative master drawings from the collection of E. B. Crocker Gallery, Sacramento, are being shown by Orange Coast College, Costa Mesa, through Nov. 28.

Printmaker J.B. Thompson is exhibiting 30 prints in the galleries of University of Southern California through Nov. 30. Included are examples of straight etching, color intaglios, collagraphs, mixed embossed etchings and several examples of an embossed metal applique method which the artist developed recently ... Recent works, including interpretations of drawings by Botticelli, by Evelyn Gathings may be seen at Challis Galleries, Laguna Beach, through Nov. 30. Hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m., closed Mondays and Tuesdays.

DEAR ABBY

Couple gobbles up friendship

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Recently I gave a party for my husband, I planned the entertainment, which included games with prizes for the winners. One of the prizes was dinner for two at our finest restaurant.

I did not set a limit on the amount to be spent on the dinners because I didn't think it would be proper.

Well, I just received a bill for two dinners, and it was $120. Thinking there must have been a mistake, I called the restaurant and was told there was no mistake.

That man and his wife had ordered four appetizers, and THREE lobsters for the two of them, plus $50 worth of drinks which included 15 bottles of imported beer! (They even charged the "tip" on the bill.)

I feel that we were taken advantage of, but I am at a loss as to what I should say to this greedy, gluttonous couple.

Any suggestions?

TAKEN IN PITTSBURGH

DEAR TAKEN: I would say "Goodby," after telling them that they had eaten themselves out of your good graces.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of an 81-year-old man and a 79-year-old woman who met in an old folks home four months ago, and decided to get married to save expenses? It's true, one double is cheaper than two singles, but isn't that a silly reason to get married?

LIVES HERE

DEAR LIVES: It's as good a reason as any to get married. And better than some.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a guy for nine months. We have been together every night since we met. He is 24 and I am 18. He talks about long-range plans, such as the two of us going to Europe together next summer. Our relationship is a good one, but it would be perfect if we were married. He has not mentioned marriage at all, except to knock it. He was married for two years and is now divorced.

Should I just wait until he brings it up? I would hate to go on like this for a couple of years and then find out he doesn't want to marry me.

How can I find out what his intentions are without being pushy?

WANTS TO WED

DEAR WANTS: If he doesn't mention marriage, the chances are he isn't considering it. If you want to know for sure (and I can't blame you), ASK him. But be prepared for a let down. If your relationship is, as you say, a "good one" now, it's probably good enough for him — indefinitely.

DEAR ABBY: I notice the word "promiscuous" is used only to describe women.

A man who does the same thing is called (with the wink of an eye), "a ladies' man." And it sounds like a compliment! Why?

WONDERING IN YAKIMA

DEAR WONDERING: Because men have always enjoyed sexual freedom, while women have not. But Womens' Lib is out to change all that.

The Aces on bridge

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

Dear Mr. Corn:

Recently I was involved in this bidding sequence:

West	North	East	South
1 ♣	Dbl.	Pass	1 ♦
1 NT	Dbl.	All Pass

As South I passed this hand and was subject to criticism.

♦ Q 8 5 3
♣ 9 7 6 2

Was I forced to bid again over North's second double?

Double-Jeopardy
San Francisco

Answer: No. North's first double was a takeout double. His second double was for business, and you were correct in passing.

Dear Mr. Corn:

The opponents played a four-heart contract after I had overcalled one spade. My partner led the spade king, and a singleton spade came down in dummy plus four trumps. I held this hand:

♠ A J 8 6 4 2
♥ K 5
♦ 7 4 2
♣ J 8

I played the six and my partner interpreted this as a suit preference signal for diamonds (the higher-ranking suit).

Was this correct?

Crossed Semaphores
Victorville, Calif.

Answer: The suit preference signal is one of the most troublesome treatments in bridge. In your case the jack would have requested a switch to the higher-ranking suit, and the deuce to the lower-ranking suit. The six was noncommittal and left the decision to partner.

Dear Mr. Corn:

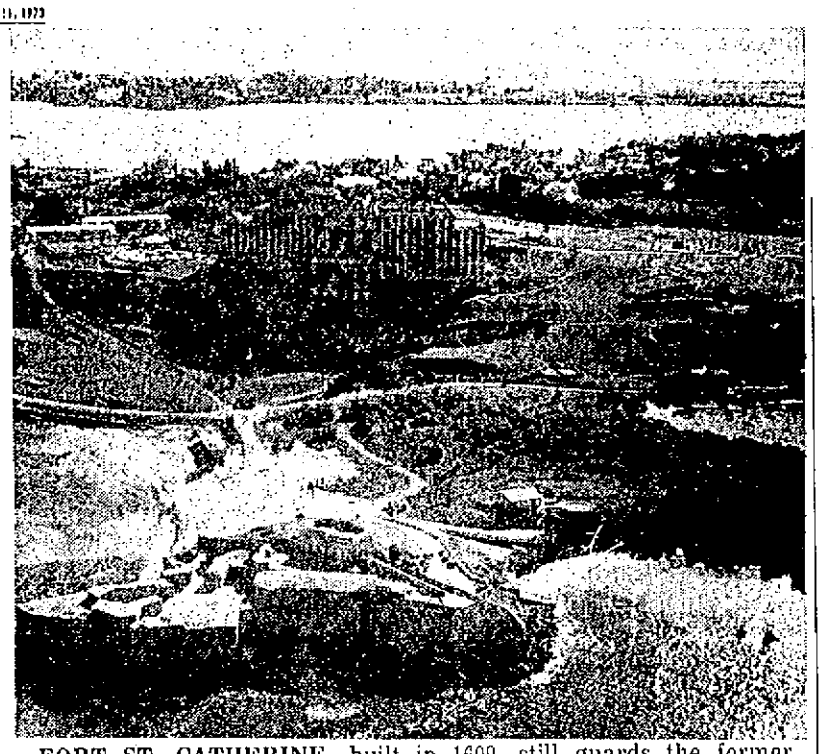

What is meant by bridge rhythm?

Hula Dancer
Honolulu

Answer: Bidding and play at a uniform speed. This is a must for top players to prevent alert declarers from interpreting defensive huddles. Another possible complication is illegal transmittal of information to one's partner after a long study or a superhasty bid.

A resort like none you know

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

FORT ST. CATHERINE, built in 1609, still guards the former capital city of Bermuda, St. George. The oldest and most historical parish in Bermuda, St. Georges boasts of a number of attractions, including a unique collection of old carriages and a replica of a ship built in 1610.

It's no more than a dot on the map, but in terms of sporting facilities, natural beauty and a flavor of the Old World without the expense of getting there, the tiny island of Bermuda may be like no resort on earth.

Located a little more than 700 miles southeast of New York City (it's nearest point of land is North Carolina), the independently-governed British colony exists as a sun-drenched oasis in the midst of an often stormy mid-Atlantic.

As one frequent visitor observed, it's a place that really never should have been. During hurricane season, for example, blustering gales may lash all around it, but for the most part the Gulf Stream-fed waters of Bermuda remain blue and warm and calm.

WE ARRIVED in late October on the tail of Hurricane Gilda. It was oppressively humid that day (about 90 per cent) and sticky-warm, yet our delight in the island couldn't have been greater.

Our initial drive through the island — about 30 minutes (or 10 miles) from the U.S. built airport to mid-island Paget Parish where we were staying — confirmed that what we had seen on landing was what we got: 22 miles of lush foliage, wide, white beaches and a beautiful blue surf. The first thing we noticed (aside from the fact that traffic moves unnervingly on the left) was the variety of plant life around us. Ferns grew next to evergreens, palms cropped up in fields of strawberries, coleus provided a touch of color and banana groves were everywhere.

It was also old—very old. Ancient spired Anglican cathedrals reach skyward, roads remain narrow and unchanged and Tom Moore's Tavern, a popular eating spot for tourists and Bermudians alike, dates to 1652.

Bermuda, as a more than one- or two-day stopover, would perhaps most appeal to the young or athletically-minded. There's sailing in Castle Harbour or the Great Sound, scuba diving off the coral reefs which surround the island, swimming, tennis on any number of public, private and hotel courts and, according to several taxi drivers, some of the best golf courses in the world.

There is, of course, shopping (British woolens and knits and tax-free booze), a healthy nightlife (though except for Tom Moore's Tavern, no eateries worth writing home about) and some sightseeing.

Still, forewarned is forearmed. If you're in the mood for bargains, museum hopping or a culinary experience, you'd best forget Bermuda. What it is is a sand and surf playground and a sportsperson's dream.

WE LEARNED EARLY in our stay that the best and cheapest way to see the island was on motorbikes. This reporter, never known for her courage anyway, approached the prospect of scooting around the island with nothing but a wind-breaker and plastic helmet to protect her, with an unusual display of cowardice.

"Just remember, left is right and right is suicide," an amiable cabbie, who was none-too-enthusiastic about the bikes, assured me. I wasn't convinced, but I also wanted to tour the island, and within the day I surprized myself by zipping along with everyone else (mumbling "left, Linda, left") at the maximum speed: 20-miles-per-hour.

Our daily regimen began with a swim in the surf (the water remains a constant and comfortable 70 degrees most of the year) and a bike ride out to one of the many points of interest for brunch. Later we played tennis, saw the sights or wandered through the shopping district in the capitol city, Hamilton.

AMONG OUR MOST memorable afternoons was a visit to the Leamington Caves (though reportedly the Crystal Caves are better) where billion-year-old stalagmites and stalactites formed eerie structures in subterranian lakes.

We also visited the Aquarium, Zoological Garden and Natural History Museum (not much if you've been to Marineland), Fort Hamilton, a mid-19th century fort and moat, the Bermuda Cathedral and Par-La-Ville Gardens in the center of Hamilton and Spanish Point, a memento of the first visit to Bermuda by the Spanish in 1543.

Other points of interest: the Carriage Museum, a unique collection of old Bermuda carriages in the St. Georges area; a replica of the Deliverace, a sailing ship built in 1610; St. George's Historical Society Museum with prints and relics of early Bermuda, Tucker House, where King William IV of England lived; the sea gardens (by glass boat) and the Arboretum, an experimental garden of trees and shrubs.

PERHAPS THE MOST common question I was asked upon my return from Bermuda (aside from "Where is it?") was "What about racial tensions?" In light of disturbances on several Caribbean islands, the question was not an unreasonable one. Our observation, however, was that no such problems exist and discussions with Bermudians (white) seemed to confirm this impression. Wherever we went, the effects of Bermuda's policy that only Bermudians (or their spouses) can work could be seen: blacks were employed throughout the spectrum of Bermuda's economy and unemployment remains low — an incredible one percent.

For a resort community, the crime rate is also surprisingly low, a fact which was evidenced by the occassional purse-snatchings and speeding violations which are dutifully reported by the Bermuda press. During the day, at least, we never locked our doors and the only real precaution we took against theft was to lock our bikes and helmets whenever we left them.

"This is a tight little island and access to it is strictly controlled," explained one Bermudian. "If you do something wrong, you're off the island on the next flight out and neither you nor your family can ever return."

Another point about Bermuda which I found somewhat curious: for an economy which is based almost 100 per cent on the tourist trade, the island remains relatively unspoiled. There are, of course, large hotel complexes, but high-rise construction is limited and the development of gimmicky "tourist traps" is strictly controlled. Also unlike Waikiki or Miami Beach, dress standards are observed in the British manner. Women can't appear on the streets in short shorts, halters or hair rollers and after 6, ties and coats are mandatory for men.

The only unfortunate thing about Bermuda, in fact, is that it's costly (French wines only and a 20 per cent surcharge on anything which enters the island) and for Californians, at least, expensively far away. Add about $120 to your round-trip airfare to New York and you've got the minimum cost of visiting Bermuda.

New flights fight inflation

By HERB SHANNON
I,P-T Travel Editor

Cooperation between airlines and with shipping companies is at an all-time high this season in providing attractive new holiday programs. The object is to avoid further inflation of costs and prices.

Latest of the agreements to reduce overhead is between Continental Airlines and Air Siam, the Thailand carrier which only last month inaugurated service three times a week between Honolulu and Bangkok via Tokyo and Hong Kong.

Air Siam intended to extend the route to Los Angeles after the first of the year, but wisely decided to dispense with the unnecessary 3,000-mile leg after checking the existing service between Hawaii and the mainland. Under the cooperation pact, Continental will provide Air Siam a link between Los Angeles and Honolulu with a guaranteed 45-minute connecting time.

Continental, which has been handling ground services for Air Siam at Honolulu, now will provide passenger check-in and passport documentation at Los Angeles, with baggage checked through to Orient destinations on Air Siam. Both airlines operate 747 jumbo jets on the connecting routes.

Delta Air Lines has announced three new air-sea cruise programs for this fall and winter in conjunction with direct flights from Los los Angeles to Puerto Rico. Package prices include round trip jet air fare and five Caribbean ports-of-call by luxury cruiser.

One of the Delta air-cruise holidays features Costa Lines' Carla C, familiar to Southland sea voyagers in earlier service from Los Angeles Harbor as the Princess Carla, under lease to Princess Lines. Now in her second year after moving to its new home port of San Juan, the Carla C plies the Caribbean, with stops at Curacao, Caracas, Trinidad, Martinique and St. Thomas.

The Delta-Costa Lines combination cruise begins at $574 for eight days, with departures by air from Los Angeles every Saturday, round trip fare included.

Others on the agenda include Chandris Cruises aboard the SS Regina Magna, with sailings from San Juan every Monday starting Dec. 24 to five ports and a $502 air-sea price tag, and Delta-Cunard cruising on seven-day voyages at $514 minimum.

British Airways-BOAC has added a new high school student series of European explorations to its "Discovery in Britain" educational programs by including Paris, Rome and Madrid in its eight-day winter tours for 1974.

TO THE ORIENT AND 'ROUND THE WORLD

It's really true. You don't have to sail on a luxury liner to enjoy all the amenities of a big cruise ship. The gracious passenger-cargo liners of Orient Overseas Line offer a wonderful "in-between."

You'll savor the extra long port stops (2 days or more) in each port that give you added time for sightseeing. And you have the informality and casual, relaxed atmosphere of a cargo ship. But these liners also carry up to 350 first class passengers each. So you'll have a full daytime and evening activities program. Outdoor swimming pool. Excellent cuisine. Air conditioning throughout. There's also a doctor and nurse on board, so any age can travel.

The fares? Up to 50% less than a typical liner. And all cabins are first class with private bath or shower.

Arcadia sails again for the Caribbean on her Carnival cruise from Los Angeles Jan. 26. She calls at the same ports as on the Christmas cruise arriving at San Croix Feb. 23.

SOLVANG, CALIFORNIA

Once is enough

ROBERT GORE
Staff Writer

Solvang, like many other tourist attractions just off a freeway, is crowded during the summer, so we decided to take a look during the off season.

As long as the sun is out and the weather mild, Solvang has no off season. Tourists swarmed over the small Danish village and its deservedly famous bakeries and shops.

The streets were filled by 10 a.m. and stayed that way until near dusk. The people didn't detract from the charm of the area.

Solvang itself was founded in 1911 by three Danish gentlemen who wanted to preserve their culture and heritage in the United States. Somewhere along the way, the village turned into a commercial venture.

Unfortunately, most of the characteristic architecture and other things that lend a flavor to Solvang have also been lost. New shops are being raised in the modern "rustic" architecture that does not blend well with the older style.

The merchants have turned to handicrafts common to all small Southland shops. The bakeries, however, still turn out those delicious pasteries at reasonable prices.

The surrounding area adds greatly to the attraction of Solvang. There is a crumbling wooden schoolhouse in nearby Buellton and a secluded waterfall rest stop south of Solvang. The fast area is one of the most restful we'd ever seen, and if you can find it, is well worth the 15-mile detour.

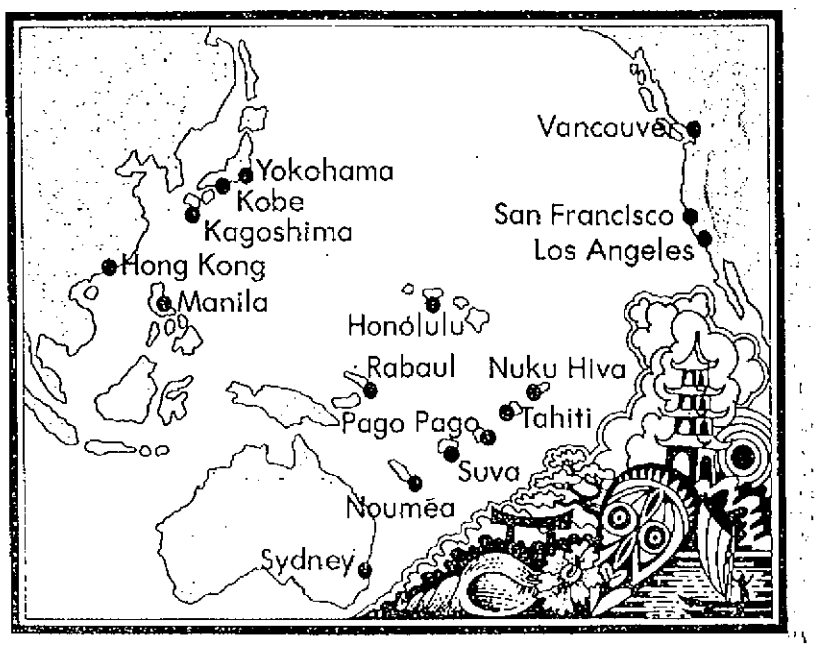

'Grand Cruises' sail

Princess Cruises will introduce a series of "Grand Cruises" in 1974 aboard the 600-passenger Island Princess which will combine sailings to such diverse destinations as Mexico/Hawaii, Alaska, Canada, the Caribbean and South America.

Ranging from 27 to 60-days in length, the "Grand Cruises" will supplement Princess' short and medium cruise market, and offer an attractive variety of voyages for the longer cruise passenger, who can now stay on board for an extended sea vacation by combining two or more of the Island Princess' regular cruises.

The first "Grand Cruise" will be a 29-day combination of a 15-day Christmas cruise to Mexico/Hawaii, and a 14-day New Year's sailing to the Mexican Riviera. Twelve ports will be visited, and the cruise departs from Los Angeles December 14.

Full information on all of Princess' upcoming "Grand Cruises" can be obtained from travel agents.

CHURCH ON THE SABLON, BRUSSELS

GAL-IVANTING

City to move in

By CHORAL PEPPER

If you are a person who kisses the Blarney Stone and throws coins in the fountain, there is a good one in Brussels that you won't want to miss.

It is a wall plaque located under the arch of Maison de L'Etoile on Grand Place. When you touch the shiny spot of a bronze figure commemorating one Everard T'Serclaes, you will be assured of abundant good fortune.

In spite of his ability to dispense good luck, Serclaes enjoyed little of it himself. After liberating Brussels from Louis de Male of Flanders in 1356, he was brutally beaten to death by Lord Gassbeek, another nobleman trying to get control of the city.

A lower plaque depicts the people burning. Gaasbeek's castle to avenge Serclaes' death. The artist cunningly incorporated four tiny mice into his design. Anyone who can locate all four of them is destined to experience good fortune within 24 hours.

I could only find two, but I felt lucky just being in this lovely city.

BRUSSELS HAS a lot going for it besides the luck of Serclaes. With London overcrowded and Paris overpriced, many international corporations are locating European headquarters here. Meanwhile, it's other assets are captivating casual travelers.

Cuisine is superb. Shopping is rewarding. Sightseeing is interesting. And what I like best, the city can be covered by foot from most hotels. Both the Sheraton and the Westbury are within a few blocks of Grand Place, the focal point of Brussels.

For sight-seers, an excellent Brussels Walk Guide is available from newsstands and book shops. It is recommended by the Belgian National Tourist Office. Carry it while you shop so that you can combine two expeditions into one. Each section of the city is famed for a shopper's speciality as well as an historic one.

The Grand Place, where everything begins and ends, is one of the most colorful city squares in Europe. Surrounded by 15th century buildings overlaid with gilt, garlands, Baroque scrolls and statuary, it is as fanciful as a Disneyland. Your Walk Guide will identify the buildings, some of which now house museums.

FOR SHOPPERS, this is the place to buy needlepoint and lace, for which Belgium is noted. Modern Brussels lace is only partially made by hand, but still qualifies as "real" lace. A few old, established shops, like the Lace Palace, sell antique Brussels lace for wedding veils and table cloths, but the price is almost more precious than the lace. Modern table mats, coasters and lacey see-through blouses are in more popular demand.

In this same district is a gallerie, or covered shopping arcade, located around the corner from the Government Tourist Office. It is best for far-out boutique fashions for the kids.

Then a few blocks in the opposite direction, at 57 Rue de l'Fourche, is a covey of three shops all with the name of Ambre. One features haute couture with original designs made to order in beautiful fabrics. Next door is the Ambre Boutique with unusual sweaters, pants and skirts. Across the street, another Ambre sells smashing coats and ensembles. I considered fashions at Ambres the most chi in Brussels.

More frequented by the tourist trade, however, are the boutiques in Gallerie Louise across from the Hilton Hotel on Boulevard Waterloo. Here you find models by name French designers at prices only slightly lower than at home.

BETTER BUYS are found in shops that carry tongs and indented dishes for serving escargots, along with stunning individual casseroles that go both in the oven and on the table.

Some of the dealers specialize in china and ancient clocks, while others feature tapestries, period furniture and even stone mantels, carved stairways, armoires and other architectural features. Prices are not out of line. Shipping by sea is figured by bulk rather than by weight, so the lovely old pewter and porcelain objects so available here often are not too costly to ship home.

TRAVELING WITH DELAPLANE

Right for writers

travel

By STAN DELAPLANE

San Francisco

Writers and artists living overseas (for easier taxes) are moving into Ireland. Geneva has been the favorite place — Spain was second. Advantage in Ireland is they don't tax these favored crafts. (A civilized attitude, says I. Let's hear it for the Emerald Isle!)

This is purely TAX gain. Only works if you're in the BIG novel. Film. TV. Illustration business. The sinking dollar and inflation makes Ireland about as costly as living in the U.S.

Friend of mine in advertising business (able to work anywhere) could only stick it six months and then came home. Told me Dublin didn't turn on his afterburners the way San Francisco did. His copy was going flat.

He was geared to the three-martini lunch. The afternoon fix with the psychiatrist. Ireland probably better for the long range project. A book. Irish writers thrived on it like a horse in the limestone country.

"How formal is Acapulco? We've been asked to several parties."

Men turn out in white trousers and white shirt. NO ties. I flew into Acapulco for a very formal affair and I was the ONLY man who showed up in a dinner jacket. Women wore pants suits or formal gowns. Pretty far out stuff — like leopard prints. Everything looked informal and EXPENSIVE.

Same thing happened at a reception given by former President Aleman. He dressed that way, too. Sometimes see jackets and ties. Resorty stuff in sunset colors. Usually because the place is chilled with air conditioning.

"I want to spend Christmas away from home. A warm place where a divorced woman won't feel left out . . ."

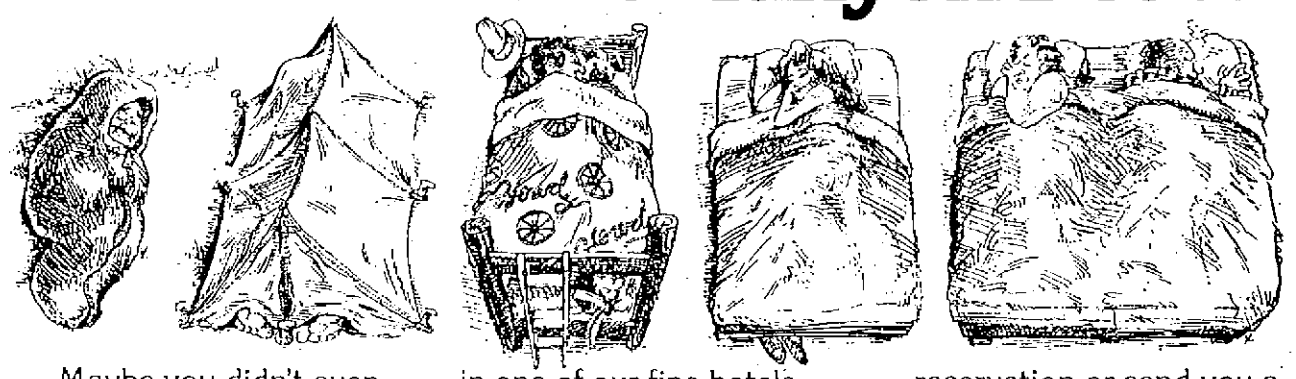

The Caribbean jumps when snow falls on the East. Liveliest I'd say is Jamaica, around Montego Bay. Swingy and more elegant (and ungodly pricey) is Ocho Rios a couple of hours drive from Montego Bay.

The Bahamas get a slick crowd who spend the days getting tan through a tan fizz glass. Lots of action in the gaming casino on Paradise Island across from Nassau. Five dollar chip is the MINIMUM bet! Dressy and expensive. New York type crowd.

This is a BIG winter for cruises and you can bet a cruise ship will be full at Christmas. This gives you five hundred or more people to mix around with.

Limahelu joins USC lore, 27-26

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

A line in Don Quixote sums it up: "How many histories are there filled with these marvels?"

In college football, the USC-Stanford series probably stands alone.

The window was opened for a quick glimpse of history Saturday when little Chris Limahelu kicked a 34-yard field goal with three seconds remaining to lift USC to a 27-26 miracle victory over Stanford.

Thousands from a crowd of 63,806 had streamed out of the Coliseum before the Trojans scored 10 points in the last 2 minutes and 10 seconds to remain alive in the run for the Rose Bowl.

USC charged 53 yards in 26 seconds, chiefly on passes of 24 and 25 yards from quarterback Pat Haden to tight end Jim Obradovich, to position Limahelu for his second field goal of the game.

Seems unbelievable, right?

Not when past USC-Stanford games are considered.

Four years ago at the Coliseum, quarterback Jimmy Jones threw a pass to tight end Gerry Mullins to advance the ball to the Stanford 17, and Ron Ayala booted a 34-yard field goal as time expired to give the Trojans a 26-24 victory over the Cardinals.

Go back 20 years to another Coliseum game and there was Sam Tsagalakis kicking a 38-yard field goal with 13 seconds left to propel USC to a 23-20 win over Stanford.

"It wasn't a good pop," said Limahelu of his game-winning field goal. "I just wanted to make sure it was high enough."

It was, but it curled only a yard inside the left goal post at the west end of the Coliseum.

Limahelu's late heroics wiped out a miraculous afternoon of kicking by Stanford's Rod Garcia, who popped four from distances of 59, 52, 42 and 25 yards.

The 59-yarder was the longest ever kicked at the Coliseum and was third in distance of all-time in college football. Ray Guy of Southern Mississippi kicked a 61-yarder in 1972 and Bill McClard of Arkansas had one of 60 yards in 1970.

How Stanford got soccered

Soccer-style 34-yard field goal in final three seconds by Chris Limahelu lifted USC to 27-26 win over Stanford Saturday at the Coliseum. Holder was Rob Adolph who watches as Stanford defender Pat Donovan (83) leaps high in futile attempt to block kick.

Wishbone survives day unfit for Ducks

UCLA sloshes to 27-7 win

By GARY RAUSCH
Staff Writer

EUGENE — They christened UCLA's Wishbone "a fumble offense" and Saturday the critics sat back to gloat at what they expected to be more a water polo match than a football game.

Well, the Bruin defense drowned Oregon in a sea of third-quarte fumbles and the offensive line opened holes in the Duck defense wide enough to float the Queen Mary through.

When the final gun sounded, Autzen Stadium resembled a stopped-up bathtub, but the Bruins were still afloat in the Pacific-8 Conference's Rose Bowl race by virtue of their 27-7 survival.

UCLA fell nearly 20 points under its nation-leading norm and more than 60 yards below its rushing average. Yet coach Pepper Rodgers would be the last person to complain.

"What's that old saying about, 'a win is sweet'? Heck, I'd have been happy to win, 6-0. You simply can't believe how much a factor the rain was today."

Anyone standing on the field in that downpour could appreciate what an effort the players put forth just to keep their footing. Surprisingly, none ever screamed for water wings or a life preserver.

If you'd thrown one to an Oregon back, he probably would have fumbled it. In one five-play span early in the third quarter, the Ducks coughed up the football three times.

Down 6-0 by virtue of Mark Harmon's four-yard dive, a la Sam Cunningham, and Efren Herrera's missed conversion, the Ducks could ill afford to surrender possession without scoring once, much less three times.

It might have been an omen for Oregon when Long Beach's Maurice Anderson returned the second-half kickoff 100 yards only to have a clipping penalty nullify what would have been the go-ahead touchdown.

"The return would have meant a lot to us psychologically," moaned Duck coach Dick Enright. "We'd played them tough and we needed something good to happen."

The Oregon drive from its 11 ended when fullback Greg Herd of Gardena fumbled to linebacker Rick Baska at the 25. However, the Bruins gave that one back — one of only two UCLA turnovers — when Kermit Johnson slightly tarnished another brilliant afternoon by bobbling the ball to safety Steve Donnelly at the OU 15.

Three plays later quarterback Herb Singleton of Compton found split end Bob Palm open over the middle. James Bright applied the cruncher and Fred McNeill covered the loose ball.

With Harmon directing a controlled attack, the Bruins trekked 32 yards in six plays, Harmon keeping over left guard for the score.

When the Bruins' big-play defense forced another Herd fumble on the next scrimmage play (Greg Norfleet stripping the ball carrier and Kent Pearce recovering), the offense patiently probed 29 yards in eight snaps with James McAlister following right guard Steve ABA ORDERS Q'S TO L.A.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The American Basketball Assn. has ordered Dr. Leonard Bloom to move his San Diego Conquistadors to Los Angeles, perhaps before the end of the season, the San Diego Union reported in a copyrighted story in today's editions.

"The league has told me to go to Los Angeles," the Union quoted Bloom.

Aztecs sack 49ers, 17-2

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

SAN DIEGO — San Diego State, certain to defend its Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. football championship, pounded out a decisive 17-2 decision over Long Beach State Saturday night.

It was sad to see what the Aztecs did to the winless 49ers before 26,961 in San Diego Stadium.

Much like a young Cassius Clay toyed with a tired, frustrated Sonny Liston, the Aztecs danced around the 49ers, bopping them in the nose often enough to improve their season record to 5-1-1 and dropping Long Beach's standard to 0-8-1.

The 49ers had their chances to knock out the heavily favored Aztecs, but reach time the reflexes that had led Long Beach to successive PCAA titles in 1970 and '71 failed the 49ers.

San Diego's Jesse Freitas, the nation's No. 1 collegiate passer, hurt the 49ers the most, utilizing an assortment of ends and backs to dent the Long Beach defense for 22 completions in 34 attempts for 260 yards.

San Diego led only 7-0 at halftime, but salted their ninth win in the 15-game series on Benny Richardo's 31-yard field goal and Freitas' 11-yard pass to Keith Denson in the third quarter.

Long Beach's highlight film this season would last a month if it showed only the plays that have messed the 49ers up, and it would include several classics from Saturday night.

Typical would be a fourth-period play when Freitas, under a heavy pass rush, fumbled in the Aztec end zone.

It was a two-on-one play with Freitas racing 49ers Curtiss Wright and George Ray to the ball. Freitas won, meaning the 49ers got only two points instead of six and a chance at seven or eight.

The Aztecs had to kick them, and chose to punt. Long Beach's Greg Bailey fair-caught the ball at the LB 40 even though he had the entire 49er team in front of him and there wasn't an Aztec within 20 yards.

The contest was over at 7-0, but both squads continued to battle until San Diego made it 17-0. Then the game deteriorated into something that may have violated Keystone Kop copyrights.

There were at least a half-dozen fights in the stands in the final five minutes, as well as a tussle or two on the field.

In the final four minutes, the 49ers and Aztecs intercepted four passes (a fifth interception was nullified by penalties on both teams) to mar what had been a routine contest.

Long Beach came into the game off a bye, and hit the Aztecs with a new formation (pro set), quarterback (former Anaheim all-CIFer George Frazer) and running back (Jesse Davis).

The wrinkles were and were not successful. Long Beach outgained the Aztecs, 323-316, but couldn't outscore them.

Frazer hit nine of 20 passes for 101 yards. Davis was Long Beach's leading rusher with 49 yards.

Long Beach was trailing, 7-0, after 30 minutes, and the 49ers were literally beating themselves.

Granted, a team that is listed as a 28-point underdog could be proud of the fact that it trailed the mighty Aztecs by only seven points at halftime, but, by eliminating their own errors, the 49ers could have greatly enhanced their upset chances.

One of the series of inopportune breakdowns that have contributed to Long Beach's 0-7-1 record this season helped the Aztecs get their first score.

The 49ers, who actually moved the ball well at times, had a rosey future when they drove to the San Diego 28 midway

Pierce nails down Metro title

LBCC turned away, 10-0

By JIM MANGAN
Staff Writer

Pierce College capitalized on two Long Beach City College first-half mistakes and then held off a series of late Viking drives for a 10-0 win on their own field Saturday night to nail down the Metropolitan Conference flag.

A roughing-the-kicker penalty on the Pierce 28 late in the third quarter gave the Brahmas new life, and they capitalized on the mistake with a 7-play, 59-yard drive for all the points they needed.

Then with only 25 seconds left in the half, a 24-yard Long Beach pass interference gave the Brahmas the ball on the Viking 33.

Two plays later quarterback Steve Gensler hit end Frank Derriz for 24 yards to the Long Beach 11, and Al Crumlish kicked a 27-yard field goal as time ran out.

The Vikes, who got no closer than the Pierce 32 in the first three quarters, finally got untracked early in the last period.

Pete Tereschuk's passes and Jessee Drummer's running moved the ball from the Long Beach 27 to the Pierce 10 on eight plays.

With a first-and-goal on the 10 Drummer made six, then one, then one more.

On fourth-and-two Tereschuk tried to hit Junior Lee in the end zone but the Brahmas' Staton Gipson picked it off instead, and the only Vike threat was dead, although 11 minutes still remained.

After an exchange of downs, Pierce got all the way to the Long Beach three before Terry Tautolo recovered the only Pierce fumble of the night with 3:40 remaining.

Once again Long Beach got the ball into Pierce territory but Tereschuk's bid for a touchdown was again thwarted by Gipson who intercepted a 25-yard pass in the end zone. It was his third interception of the night.

Despite his 197 yards which moves him into second place on the LBCC single-season passing list, Tereschuk had an unimpressive night, hitting on only 17-of-37.

Lee's five catches moved into third place on the single-season standing.

Although his performance didn't put him in the books, Drummer's 111 yards in 20 tries was impressive.

The loss dropped the Vikings out of the four-way tie for first place, and no matter what happens next week, Pierce has beaten all possible teams with a mathematical shot at the title.

Kings fade, Sabres rally for 5-3 win

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Like the American dollar overseas, the Kings' hopes of climbing a notch in the National Hockey League standings were devaluated Saturday night.

Third-period goals by Steve Atkinson and Rene Robert proved decisive as Buffalo defeated the Kings, 5-3, before a groaning crowd of 12,336 at the Forum.

The loss dropped coach Bob Pulford's team into fifth place in the West as their record dipped to 5-7-2 while Buffalo moved into undisputed third place in the East with an 8-5-1 mark.

The Kings try to rebound tonight when they engage the Chicago Black Hawks at the Forum, at 7 o'clock. It's the Kings' only Sunday home date of the season.

L.A. skated to a 2-1 first-period lead on goals by Bob Berry and Randy Rota. Berry's goal came with only 26 seconds elapsed, but Buffalo's Gerry Meehan squared matters 19 seconds later when his shot glanced off goalie Rogie Vachon's arm.

Norm Gratton pulled Buffalo even at 2-2 with 4:58 gone in the second period and the Sabres jumped ahead 3-2 on Ramsay's fifth goal of the campaign.

Whitey Widing's fourth goal of the season on a difficult angle shot from the left side tied the match at 3-3 with 1:03 elapsed in the final period.

But Atkinson's third goal of the year at 3:53 kayoed L.A.'s comeback hopes. When Pulford pulled Vachon with a minute remaining to give the Kings a sixth skater, Robert hit an empty net to insure Buffalo'swin.

Pulford remains puzzled over his team's play. "We can't put two games together. We have one good game and then one bad one. I'm surprised we're not going as good as I'd hoped.

"This was the third Saturday night in a row I knew we'd have to be lucky to win. Maybe it's time we went out and hit someone. We haven't done any real checking in some time."

A check of the standings will testify to that statement.

Late OCC TD beats Cerritos

By DAVE WIELENGA

On a cold, foggy night that seemed appropriate for a funeral, Cerritos College joined the list of fatalities in the South Coast Conference title chase, falling to Orange Coast, 13-10, Saturday night in Norwalk.

Running back John Dixon's footprints authorized the death certificate as they twice found their way into the end zone for fourth quarter touchdowns, the latter with only 14 seconds to play.

Dixon, the conference's fifth-leading round gainer, wracked up 138 yards on 22 carries and along with Don Trinceotto (36) and Steve Nanko (35) accounted for 230 of the Pirates' 325 yard in total offense. Orange Coast quarterback Mike Magner was successful on 11-of-20 passes for 95 yards.

Revitalized by the return of quarterback Nef Cortez, the Cerritos attack was at no loss for power in the first half. The Falcons used a first-quarter touchdown by running back Jim Emmerling and a 26-yard field goal by Al Garcia in the second period to lead 10-0 at intermission.

However, Cerritos could only generate 39 yards total offense in the second half and the defense was finally worn out by the persistent OCC attack. Cortez finished the night with 106 yards, nearly half of Cerritos' 222 total offense.

Darrell Schatz was the Falcons' leading round gainer, rambling for 79 yards on 13 attempts.

It was Cerritos' fourth loss in as many home games this season and leaves the Falcons with 4-5 over-all mark on the year. OCC is now 6-2-1.

UOP wins; back near Bass mark

STOCKTON (UPI) — Junior tailback Willard Harrell scored three first-half touchdowns for the University of Pacific Tigers who shut out the Fresno State Bulldogs, 42-0, Saturday in a Pacific Coast Athletic Assn. game.

Harrell gained 231 yards, including touchdown runs of one, 49 and 63 yards, and ran his total to 1,186 for the year. He needs 171 yards next week against Hawaii to break a school record Dick Bass set in 1959.

Rain fell throughout the game, and the Bulldogs fumbled six times, with the Tigers recovering six times, with the Tigers recovering five. Fresno State was held to 62 yards, with a net of only two yards rushing, and was limited to three first downs by a Tiger defense that has not yielded a touchdown in three games.

Pacific (6-2-1) scored three touchdowns within four minutes of the second quarter and held a 35-0 halftime lead over the Bulldogs, 1-8.

through the first period and needed only one yard in two snaps to get a first down.

However, on third down, quarterback Lloyd Michaelson fumbled the snap and lost three yards while recovering the booble. On fourth-and-four, the 49er sophomore was dumped for a 12-yard loss by Ed Schweitzer and Mark Sims.

That gave San Diego the ball on its 43 and with Freitas mixing completions with the power running of Frank Geary, the Aztecs went 67 yards in eight plays for the touchdown.

Geary scored from the one, but it was Freitas completions of 14 and 22 yards to Keith Denson that propelled the Aztecs.

Long Beach's best shot at a score came in the second quarter after tackle Homer Lewings recovered a Freitas fumble at the SD 42.

It took the 49ers only three plays to get to the Aztec 12 thanks primarily to a 27-yard Fraser pass to Steve Krill, but an offensive pass interference call blunted the bid that eventually died when Eric George's 43-yard field goal attempt was well short of the goal posts.

Long Beach made it back to the San Diego 28 later in the period, but a delay of game call stymied that effort and, because they had used all their timeouts earlier in the contest, the 49ers couldn't exploit a last-second drive that reached San Diego's 20-yard line. George's 36-yard field goal try was short as the half ended.

The 49ers and Aztecs were even, first-down wise, 9-9, at the intermission, but Long Beach had a startling 214-131 edge in total offense, thanks to a Long Beach defensive effort that limited San Diego to 13 first-half rushing yards.

Buck's victory streak hits 11

Combined News Services

The Milwaukee Bucks keep right on winning but at least the opposition is getting closer.

The Bucks posted their 11th consecutive victory Saturday night—and their 12th in 13 games this season—but they didn't ho-hum their way to victory this time.

The Kansas City-Omaha Kings lost to the Bucks, 84-83, when Mickey Davis dropped in two free throws with just over a minute remaining.

Davis started in place of injured Bob Dandridge and dumped in 15 points.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, as usual, led the Bucks with 19 points and Lucius Allen added 13.

In other games, Boston won its sixth in a row, beating Detroit, 102-97, at Providence, R.I.; New York wiped out a six-point deficit in the second half and cruised to a 100-90 victory over Cleveland as Walt Frazier dumped in 24 points; Atlanta held an opponent under 100 points for the first time this season, rolling over Philadelphia, 120-97; Cazzie Russell scored a career-high 46 points to lead Golden State over Buffalo, 128-105, and Chicago edged Portland, 106-104, as Lakers, who were idle, moved into first place ahead of the Blazers.

A football hero? New to Limahelu

Little Chris Limahelu, the 130-pound USC placekicker from Indonesia whose 34-yard field goal with three seconds to play Saturday gave the Trojans a pulsating 27-26 win over Stanford, had a premonition. something like that might happen as early as last Thursday.

"For the first time this season we practiced on field goals Thursday under pressure situ

TROY MIRACLE—

Garcia has 39 field goals for his three-year career at Stanford for an NCAA record. Bob Jacobs of Wyoming had 37 between 1968 and '70.

To say the least, customers got their kicks out of Saturday's game.

Limahelu's winning field goal set off a wild celebration among USC players, plus hundreds of fans who ran onto the field. It took five minutes to restore order for the final kickoff to Stanford that ended the game.

USC coach John McKay was asked to rate this contest among his memorable games.

"This one is now in a tie with the Ayala game," he sighed. "It was very similar. Our tight end (Mullins) made a catch near the end to set up that victory that gave them a 5-0 record in the Pacific-8 and a 7-1-1 mark for the season.

They lost four fumbles, had two passes intercepted and were penalized nine times for 100 yards.

After Garcia and Limahelu had dueled to a 3-3 tie in the first period, USC wide receiver Johnny McKay juggled a pass in the second period and Stanford defensive back intercepted at the Trojan 48.

Five plays later, quarterback Mike Boryla, who performed sensationally during the afternoon, took the Cardinals into the end zone with a four-yard bullet to tight end Brad Williams.

Later in the second period, USC's Lynn Swann returned a punt 54 yards to Stanford's 22. Four plays later, tailback Anthony Davis punched three yards for a touchdown.

A penalty got the Trojans in trouble before the half had ended. After a five-yard gain from the Stanford 20 with 24 seconds left, Trojan linebacker James Sims was called for a personal foul that advanced the ball to the Cardinals' 40.

That extra ground enabled Boryla to pass Stanford into position for Garcia's 42-yard field goal one second before the half ended, the Cardinals leading, 13-10.

The first four minutes of the second half were nightmarish for USC.

Allen Carter fielded the second half kickoff six yards into the end zone, hesitated as though he intended to down the ball, then ran out to the 18, where he fumbled. Linebacker Terry Pape recovered for Stanford.

It took Boryla only four plays to drive the Cardinals to a touchdown, the last five yards coming on a pass he lofted to wide receiver Eric Test in the right corner of the end zone.

Two minutes later, Davis fumbled for the Trojans and Stanford end Pat Donovan fell on the ball at the USC 34. A holding penalty stalled Stanford, but Garcia came on to kick a 52-yard field goal that gave Stanford a 23-10 lead.

Swann's great receiving ability produced a USC touchdown 51 seconds into the fourth period. After the Trojans had driven 39 yards to the Stanford 26, Haden, faced with a safety blitz by the Cardinals, lofted a pass to Swann, who made a sensational grab at the 1 from behind Kaffen, then turned and ran over defensive back Jim Ferguson for the touchdown.

An intereception by Kaffen and a fumble on a reverse by Haden turned over the ball twice to keep the Trojans stalled at a 23-17 deficit, but the worst was yet to come.

With 4:13 remaining, Haden tossed a short screen pass to Davis, who dropped the ball at the USC 15. But officials ruled the ball had been thrown laterally and Stanford's Randy Poltl was credited with a fumble recovery.

Boryla played it conservatively, positioning Garcia for a 25-yard field goal that gave Stanford a 26-17 lead with 3:10 left.

In one minute, the Trojans cut the Cardinals' lead to 26-24. A 42-yard pass interference call when Kaffen tripped Swann moved them to the Stanford 12, and three plays later Haden swung around right end for a 10-yard touchdown. Limahelu's placement reduced the requirement for victory to a field goal.

Stanford achieved a first down at its 36 with 1:52 remaining, but the Trojans, expending their timeouts, finally forced a punt that Swann fielded at the USC 23 and returned to the 30 with 33 seconds left.

"We went into our red-ball offense at that point," said Haden.

The red ball rolled as Haden hit Obradovich for 24 yards to the Stanford 46. "They left me no choice except Obradovich," explained Haden. "We were trying to reach Swann deep so he could run out of bounds and stop the clock."

Haden threw to Davis for four, the USC tailback stepping out of bounds with 15 seconds remaining at the Stanford 42.

Then Haden connected with Obradovich again, the Trojan tight end fighting his way out of bounds at the 17 with seven seconds left to set up the winning field goal by Limahelu.

"Obradovich was a secondary receiver," said Haden. "I was afraid to go to him at first because on that type of pattern it's difficult to get out of bounds."

Obradovich admitted having momentary thoughts about going for a touchdown.

"I gave it a thought, then saw two guys from Stanford," said Obradovich. "One guy hit me low to get me off my feet and keep me inbounds, but I managed to get past him and out of bounds."

Stanford coach Jack Christiansen fingered Obradovich's success in getting out of bounds as the key play of the game.

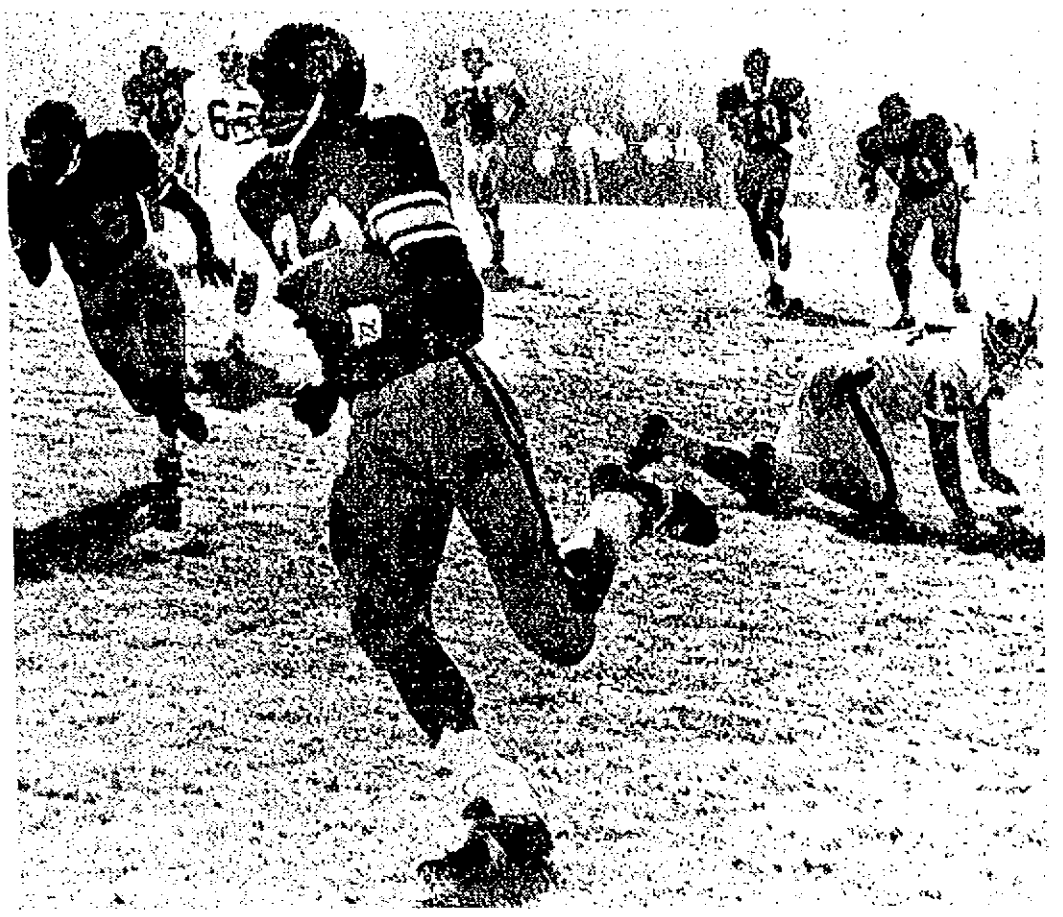

"We missed a tackle and let the guy get out of bounds," he said. "That stopped the clock and let them set up their field goal team in orderly fashion. If we make the tackle, the clock is stopped until the chains are put in place."

McKay said the Trojans "were fortunate to win."

"Stanford played very well," he said. "A lot of breaks went against us today, but in the end we made the breaks."

He paused. "Whether we deserved to win the game is something else."

But he wasn't kicking about the final score.

Lynn lends a helping hand

Lynn Swann picks up a head of steam as he gets outside on his way to 54-yard punt return in second quarter. Jaunt set up first USC touchdown that at time enabled Trojans to tie game, 10-10.

'Hail Mary, . . .'

Trojan coach John McKay seems to be praying for a miracle — even a small one — as time ticks away with USC trailing Stanford Saturday at Coliseum. It was probably just a coincidence, but John got his miracle.

Finest effort fails

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

Outside the Stanford dressing room, a school official leaned against the wall, his glazed eyes staring emptily into space.

"God, almighty," he finally managed to stammer in schoked disbelief. "Did it really happen?"

The answer, of course, was yes it did.

Somehow, some way the Stanford Cardinals watched a 26-17 advantage dissipate into defeat in the final 2 minutes and 10 seconds on a highly eventful Saturday at the Coliseum.

The decisive crushing blow came three seconds from the final gun when Chris Limahelu, perhaps exhorted by the ghosts of Sam Tsagalakis and Ron Ayala, kicked a 34-yard field goal, resurrecting USC and burying the Cardinals under at least six feet of bloom and despair.

It was 27-26, Trojans, but it was really more than that.

Roger Stillwell, a giant of a man at six-foot-six who plays defensive end for the Stanfords, tried to hide the tears by looking the other way. But he couldn't.

Jim Kaffen, a defensive back, was muttering epithets beneath his breath.

Most of the other Stanford players were inanimate. They were slumped on chairs motionless and speechless and trying to absorb what had just happened to them.

The absorbtion did not come easily.

The bitterest twist for Stanford was the fact that Limahelu was the hero for USC. Until his game-winning field goal, the day belonged to the Cardinal kicker, Rod Garcia. All Garcia did was kick four fielders, including one which traveled an astonishing 59 yards. He now owns 38 for his career, an NCAA record.

Although no one would blatently admit it, and most certainly Stanford coach Jack Christiansen, the smouldering animosity between the schools was evident.

"It's bad to lose, especially to USC," Garcia said.

"I didn't feel any bad blood," offered quarterback Mike Boryla, "but we did have a few talks this week about last year's game. This certainly wasn't a normal game for us."

It wasn't most Stanford players agreed it was their finest effort of the season. Christiansen, whose four losses this season have come at the hands of teams which will be found residing in the Top Ten, took a presumably cold shower before facing the press. He also locked the door to his quarters for another 10 minutes after bathing.

Finally, when he granted an audience he was calm and composed.

"If you need any quotes about that game you must be awful poor writers," he began with just a slight smile.

Jack Christiansen
Toughest loss

"On critical situations you have to keep the ball and move it," he said of Stanford's last possession in the final two minutes. They made one valuable first down but then had to punt, giving SC life with 33 seconds remaining.

"We gave 'em one last chance and they made the most of it," he sighed. "I think our defense was a little tired at that point. They were on the field a long time — more than they should have been."

Christiansen said the Cardinals were in their customary zone when Pat Haden twice found Jim Obradovich for long gainers to establish position for Limahelu.

"When the ball is thrown to the tight end we expect two guys to react," he said. When asked to identify the two who were obviously tardy in reacting, Christiansen retorded, "When I take a look at the game film I'll give you a call."

Obradovich was permitted to reach the sideline and land out of bounds after his second reception, an oversight by the Stanford defense which Christiansen insisted was "the difference in the game."

Kaffen, who twice intercepted Haden passes, was called for interference on Lynn Swann, a 42-yard penalty late in the final period which ignited the Trojan comeback, setting up Haden's 10-yard TD run.

"I thought it was a poor call," Kaffen said. "I was looking for the ball when someone ran into me."

Garcia, whose fourth field goal with 3:10 to play appeared to have ruined the Trojans, was once quoted as saying football was a "drag."

"I really didn't mean it," he said. "I was just trying to be obnoxious to a magazine writer."

Garcia says he regularly boots 60-yarders in practice ("I must have done it 1,000 times"), that he once hit one for 68, and that he won't turn his back on a pro offer if it comes, as it most assuredly will. "I think my chances of playing pro ball are pretty good," he said.

Garcia also takes note of what is happening to other kickers and admitted "feeling sorry," for Limahelu when the Trojan kicker did not accompany the team to Oregon State earlier this year. "I also read where Rodgers (UCLA) coach Pepper) said kicking isn't that important. I'll tell you, it takes 50 guys to make a team and the kicker is one of them."

His point was well illustrated Saturday.

Santa Ana Valley tumbles Edison

Undefeated Santa Ana Valley High clinched at least a tie for the Irvine League title Saturday night, defeating Edison, 42-10, at Westminster High.

Edison took a 10-0 first quarter lead but was blanked the final three periods as Myron White and Able Fausto each scored twice for Santa Ana Valley.

BAD VIBES CONTINUE

EUGENE, Ore. — The piercing blend of sweat and deodorant was only slightly less foul than the mood of Dick Enright in the Oregon dressing room Saturday.

"Some day," he said, muttering off into the corner of his small dressing room in Autzen Stadium. Then he thought better of making his feelings known about UCLA.

To be frank, the bad vibes continue. The 27-7 loss did little to soften the 65-20 embarrassment of two years ago.

"Bang," said Enright with a thundering clap of his hands. "We score on the kickoff return and we're ahead 7-6. It gives us the lift we need.

"Hey, we played good enough defense to win. I'll tell you if USC plays the defense we played today they'll win. USC will make yards against them I'll guarantee ya."

The moral victory syndrome lingers on for the University of Oregon. Each one gets harder to take. Each one sounding more like sour grapes.

Even had Maurice Anderson been allowed his 100-yard kickoff to open the second half, there is nothing to think UCLA wouldn't have won 27-14.

Oh, the fumbles? Yeah, you take away the three drops inside their own 35 in the third period, and it's 14-13, Oregon.

All that is the talk that losers amuse themselves within the agony of defeat.

It is apparent, however, that Oregon is closing on on teams like UCLA. Instead of being 10 or 15 players short of UCLA's talent, the Ducks are just missing a few.

If you want a winner of the USC-UCLA game, don't ask Oregon. Their opinions were that varied.

"UCLA's the team to go to the Rose Bowl," said Ressie Lewis.

"Naw," said defensive back Mario Clark. "They weren't anything like I thought they'd be. The Wishbone was far from awesome. USC is the best. They're more balanced."

George Martin, a defensive end, also liked the Trojans.

"USC is more physical. Personally, I know I played poorly in this game. I just didn't make the quarterback pitch the ball enough."

For the Bruins was Greg Lindsey the swift outside receiver.

"Their defensive backs, especially No. 83 (Jimmy Allen) are really quick. You hardly know they're playing zone. They've got the quickness to stop Lynn Swann."

Bobby Green, the sophomore linebacker, was ready to vote for Kermit Johnson as the Heisman Trophy winner.

"It's more of a challenge tackling him than it is the USC backs," he said. "Kermit isn't a high-stepper, nothing fancy. He's a helluva back. No matter how hard you hit him, he comes back tougher each time."

As the Oregon dressing room emptied out, Tim Guy unplugged his hair dryer and slipped on a green blazer.

"You can talk about next year," said the senior tackle, "but there's no next year for me.

"Man, I thought the rain would work for us. Instead, it worked against us."

Only the James G. Blaine Society could have been happy about the outcome.

Klosterman and right tackle Al Oliver the final two yards for a 20-0 advantage.

Nine-and-a-half minutes of the third quarter were history and Oregon had run only 7 plays to UCLA's 16. When the Ducks failed to tread water on their next series, the Bruins applied a wet coup de grace by freestyling 75 yards in 11 plays and — more important to Oregon — consuming seven minutes, 40 seconds.

The march, which fullback Charlie Schuhmann culminated with a forward one-and-one-half from the one, epitomized UCLA's offense in a game witnessed by 21,200 parkas and umbrellas.

Ponds from the runoff inundated the sidelines, taking away the Bruins' feared outside attack. All side and UCLA challenged the hosts to deny it that. that remained was the in-

Schuhmann was a workhorse — or maybe a sea horse — plunging into the heart of the Pac-8's leading defense against the run. The Ducks' average yield was only 163 yards until the Bruins swamped them for 355.

Schuhmann's 77 yards on 18 carries complemented Johnson's 147 yards on 20 tries. Kermit made most of his yards on counter plays against Oregon's quick but over-zealous linebackers.

Johnson moved to fifth place on the Pac-8 career rushing ladder with 2,339 yards. His output Saturday pushed his season's total to 973 yards, breaking his own school one-season record of 952 set last year.

"It was nothing fancy," said UCLA's all-time ground gainer. "Our offensive line just blew them out. Give those guys the credit."

"Anytime you give us the ball inside the 30, we're gonna score," advised Schuhmann. "Our defense gave us the momentum."

The Bruins ran only one wide play all day after Johnson slipped at the 35 after almost breaking free on the opening kickoff. They also only tried one pass — that intercepted by Mario Clark in the end zone.

"That was the last pass we threw, wasn't it?" laughed Rodgers in the happy Bruin locker room. "I wasn't going to lose the game by passing or by trying to go wide. As far as I was concerned, the passing game was nil."

Rodgers, who drew a chorus of boos during pregame introductions, said he "respected Oregon as much after the game as before. They had their share of bad breaks, clipping on the kickoff and those fumbles."

Naturally, there was talk of the Rose Bowl.

"USC winning against Stanford doesn't decide anything, does it?" Rodgers said. "We still have to beat Oregon State and USC to go to the Rose Bowl and USC still has to beat Washingtoon and us.

"I'm assured of a .500 season and I'm very happy about that," said Pepper in conclusion.

RICH ROBERTS

Adopted Son of the Rising Sun

"At first, reading how the Dodgers were doing, I'd get kind of total isolation because of the communication barrier, but it's just a matter of getting adjusted. Right now I love rice." — Jim Lefebvre.

Title this "Sequel to Sayonara," or maybe "Adopted Son of the Rising Sun."

Nine months ago this space was devoted to the embarkation of Jim Lefebvre on "a great adventure," the odyssey of a 30-year-old Dodger infielder who had committed himself to three years of playing in Japan.

The Lotte Orions were to pay him well, perhaps as much as $100,000 per year, but the adjustments were expected to be awesome, and they were.

"I think every ballplayer who's been over there goes through three stages," says Lefebvre, now back for the off-season in his 10th-floor office near L.A. International Airport.

"The first stage is the intrigue of being in Japan ... just being hypnotized by the country and the people.

"The second stage is you go into a tremendous depression, like straight down. The thing is you're in total isolation, completely by yourself. You can't listen to the radio, you can't watch television, you can't read the newspapers, you can't communicate with the people. You're all by yourself with your thoughts.

"The third stage is when you find yourself. It takes time, but you get to the point where you feel like you do belong."

LEBEBVRE WAS ABLE to learn the fundamentals of Japanese.

"If you want to eat, you'd better learn how to order food," he says. "If you want to get home you'd better learn to tell the driver the address correctly. So you learn the words that fill your immediate needs and wants, and once I started getting the confidence to use them it was better."

The Orions had another American, former Chicago Cub George Altman, and every Japanese team with an American player is provided an interpreter.

"My interpreter spoke good English but not very good Japanese," Lefebvre sighs, "and it's frustrating to go through a third man to get your information across."

As long as he understood the signs there was no problem on the field. Off the field, interviews weren't much of a problem, either.

"Our manager, Kaneda, got 95 per cent of the interviews," Jim says. "He was a combination of Leo Durocher, Casey Stengel and Harry Walker. Like Durocher, he was very emotional about things and said that he wanted to. Like Stengel, he was humorous at times, and he was Harry Walker in the sense that he just talked a lot."

KANEDA'S VERBOSITY caused Lefebvre his worst anguish of the year.

"I had the flu really bad and called the club to tell them the doctor told me to stay home. But they couldn't understand why I didn't come out to the ballpark.

"So Kaneda told one newspaper that 'Lefebvre is no good ... he's sabotaging the team ... we're gonna get rid of him ... we don't need him.' Really nasty stuff.

"I took it to him the next day. He looked at it and said, 'Ah, everything okay. Yesterday my mind no good, but today okay.' I said, 'Well, that's fine, Kaneda, but a hundred million people who read this paper may not understand that.' "

But Lefebvre got along well with the fans.

"I signed my autograph in Japanese," he smiles. "I feel they liked me. They knew that I came from the major leagues and that added some excitement for them.

"Let me say something about the Japanese people. I was very impressed with them. At first you find them very cold because they want to get to know you before they warm up to you. They're not so much shy, just maybe uncertain.

"If they don't like you they don't necessarily show it. They just avoid you. But once they warm up to you they're tremendous people. They've got a lot of energy and enthusiasm."

IT WAS THE SAME with his teammates.

"When I went out there and worked hard and showed them I was there to play ball for them and the club, they opened up to me. I made a lot of friends.

"My teammates in Japan may be the best I've ever played with ... not saying anything bad about the players here because I've played with some super guys. But in Japan they're not as emotional. If things go bad with some players in the states, you can't even talk to them. Over there it's a happy-go-lucky thing."

The Orions finished second in both halves of the split season. Lefebvre hit .265 with 29 homers and 62 runs-batted-in.

"I don't know why," he says, "But I led our club in home runs and they had me hitting second all year.

"It's not a power game over there. It's a defensive type of game — hit-and-run a lot, good pitching, sound defense."

But the Japanese do have their home run heroes. Henry Aaron's assault on Babe Ruth's record was followed closely in the media.

"Only they compared three of them," Lefebvre says. "Babe Ruth, Hank Aaron and Oh. Every day they'd have tables on how many home runs they'd all hit.

"Oh is 32 years old and he's got about 570 home runs. He'll end up with about 900. He's a great athlete, but it's not a fair comparison."

LEFEBVRE, WHO LIVED in three different areas of Tokyo says, "it's an extremely exciting, city, like New York, Chicago, San Fancisco and Las Vegas combined. There are a lot of people and the city is polluted, but there's something about it that really vibrates."

He also rates is as the most expensive city in the world.

"Expensive? It's outrageous! Everything's expensive. You can buy a cantaloupe down in the Ginza for $20. One cantaloupe! A steak dinner runs between 3,500 and 5,000 yen, which is up to $20.

"But I like Japanese food. They eat a lot of what they call 'sushi.' It's just raw fish, and they use a lot of sauces. They don't have the sweet tastes we have here and at first the food was kind of blah. But after awhile you develop a taste for it. Right now I love rice.

"I learned a lot about myself, and I learned a lot about baseball because they play the game differently and it makes you think. Because I really couldn't talk to anybody I did a lot of thinking.

"Reading about how the Dodgers were doing, I'd get kind of homesick, but it was a tremendous experience for me."

Strategy pays off for Bears

BERKELEY (AP) — Linebacker Ivan Weiss recovered an early San Jose State fumble, setting up the first of Chuck Muncie's two touchdown runs, and the Bears beat the Spartans 19-9 Saturday in a nonconference game played in rain and mud.

Cal won the pregame coin toss, and because of playing conditions elected to kick off. The decision paid off immediately when San Jose tailback Walt Robinson dropped the slippery football on first down and Weiss fell on it at the seven-yard line.

Muncie went up the middle to score on Cal's first play. He got his 10th touchdown of the season midway in the second quarter, taking a handoff from quarterback Vince Ferragamo and running 15 yards on a Statue of Liberty play to put the Bears ahead 16-0.

WSU Coach Jim Sweeney drew a 15-yard penalty by running onto the field to contest the call. Danelo then kicked a 30-yard field goal with one second remaining to make it 13-0.

Florida 'Gaffs' Georgia, 11-10

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Quarterback Don Gaffney drilled a 13-yard scoring pass to split end Lee McGriff, then hit tight end Hank Foldberg the two-point conversion Saturday to boost Florida to an 11-10 victory over Georgia.

Gaffney, a sophomore who started his first college game in last week's 12-8 upset over Auburn, set up the winning touchdown with a 33-yard pass to McGriff at the Bulldog 35-yard line with seven minutes remaining. He hit flanker Joel Parker for 10, then fullback James Richards flashed up the middle for eight.

The Gator drive almost fizzled when tailback Vince Kendrick dropped a pass all alone at the 10, but Gaffney coolly completed a fourth-and-seven pass to McGriff for the touchdown that cut the Georgia lead to 10-9 with 3:48.

Wake Forest, Duke tie, 7-7, on blown kick

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Duke placekicker Davis Malechek missed a 38-yard field goal attempt with six seconds remaining Saturday to permit Wake Forest to salvage a 7-7 tie with the Blue Devils in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Defensive end John Hill blocked a Wake Forest punt in the closing second of the game and Duke recovered on the 28-yard line. But Malechek, who missed three field goal attempts earlier in the game, muffed the final chance for victory when he was wide to the right.

Tulane holds off scrappy Navy, 17-15

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Quarterback Steve Foley rifled two touchdown passes in the first three minutes of the games and Tulane held on for a lackluster 17-15 victory over Navy Saturday night.

Freshman Martin Mitchell set up Tulane's first score with a 91-yard kickoff return and, in the fading minutes helped preserve the Green Wave victory with a 31-yard kickoff return just after Navy had narrowed the gap to two points.

Mitchell's second key return gave the Greenies possession at midfield and they were able to run out the clock against the inspired Navy team that caught fire in the second half on the passing of quarterback Allen Glenny and receiving of flanker Lawrence Van Loan.

The victory boosted Tulane's record to 7-1, but probably did little to enhance the Geenies' status to bowl scouts who had been virtually drolling over the resurging Tulane team until it was whipped last week at Kentucky in its first loss of the season.

Huskies find a patsy, smother Idaho, 41-14

SEATTLE (AP) — Cliff McBride threw a 43-yard touchdown pass on his first varsity play, and freshman Gustavo Clark added 11 points as the Washington Huskies beat Idaho 41-14, Saturday in a nonconference game.

McBride was sent into the game with three minutes, 26 seconds to play and immediately hit Ken Conley for Washington's fifth touchdown.

Clark connected on field goals of 35 and 36 yards and added five conversions.

It was a game of errors, with each team having one touchdown called back. A Chris Rowland-to-Glen Bonner scoring pass in the third quarter was nullified by a holding penalty, and in the fourth quarter Idaho's Rick Seefried passed 14 yards to Darrell Mitchell Mitchell for a touchdown that was called back by a clipping penalty.

Underdog Citadel clips Furman, 26-21

CHARLESTON, S.C. (UPI) — Sophomore Andrew Johnson rushed for 172 yards and two touchdowns Saturday to spur underdog Citadel to a 26-21 victory over Furman.

The loss left Furiman with a 7-3 record, and 3-3 in the Southern Conference. It was the Bulldogs' first Conference triumph of the year against five defeats, and jumped their over-all record to 3-7.

Green, Malone crush Wyoming

TEMPE, Ariz. (UPI) — Woody Green and Ben Malone each scored a pair of third-quarter touchdowns to lead 15th-ranked Arizona State to a 47-0 Western Athletic Conference win over Wyoming Saturday.

The two senior running backs had identical rushing statistics of 147 yards on 22 carries and sat out the fourth quarter after staking the Sun Devils to a 34-0 lead.

Green's scores came during the first 5:18 of the second half when he took a pitchout from Danny White seven yards around left end. Then, on ASU's next possession, he broke through the line on a 44-yard romp.

Malone then took over, going six yards on a pitchout to the right with 9:14 remaining in the third quarter, following Deke Ballard's recovery of a Charlie Shaw fumble on the Wyoming 19. Less than six minutes later, Malone plunged through the middle from the one for his second score.

Rice stuns Hogs, 17-7

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice's Cullie Culpepper returned an interception 58 yards to set up a 15-yard touchdown run by quarterback Tommy Kramer which sparked the Owls to a 17-7 Southwest Conference upset victory over the Arkansas Razorbacks Saturday.

Culpepper picked off a pass by Arkansas quarterback Mike Kirkland at the Rice four-yard line in the first quarter and raced back to the Hog 41. Eight plays later, Kramer darted 15 yards for the touchdown.

N.C. falls to Clemson

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Quarterback Ken Pengitore scored one touchdown and passed for another, leading Clemson to a 37-29 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over North Carolina Saturday before a shivering crowd of 37,500.

Clemson, 5-4 for the season, piled up 329 yards in the first half while rolling up a 30-21 lead.

Quarterback Nick Vidnovic led the Tar Heels, completing three touchdown passes. It was the sixth loss for North Carolina against three victories.

North Carolina scoed quickly in the first period after Pengitore fumbled and Terry Cantrell recovered on Clemson's 15. Sammy Johnson scored from the one.

Clemson took the unsuing kickoff and swept 76 yards with Pengitore hitting Smiley Sanders on a 23-yard touchdown pass. The Tigers went ahead 14-7 early in the second quarter on a nine-yard run by Pengitore to climax a 99-yard drive after the Tar Heels had been stopped inches from the Clemson goal.

Frosh hero for Auburn

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Freshman tailback Sedrick McIntyre blasted up the middle for three touchdowns Saturday and Auburn defeated Mississippi State 31-17 to keep alive its hopes for a post-season football bowl bid.

McIntyre, who had carried the ball only once since the opening game of the season because of a knee injury, scored on a 10-yard run in the second quarter to put Auburn ahead to stay, then added touchdown runs of 30 and three yards in the second half.

The victory left Auburn 6-3 on the year and a leading contender for a spot in the Peach Bowl if the Tigers can get by Georgia next week.

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (AP) — Speedy Skip Walker sprinted for 184 yards, scoring two touchdowns and setting up another Saturday as Texas A&M routed SMU, 45-10, in Southwest Conference action.

Walker's sophomore running mates, Bubba Bean and Alvin Bowers, each scored once, and another sophomore, Carl roaches, raced 71 yards on a punt return for a touchdown. It was the fifth victory against three losses for the Aggies — who do not have a senior in the starting lineup — and kept alive their slim bowl hopes.

BYU bested by Arizona

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — A pair of 80-yard touchdown runs led the University of Arizona to a 24-10 win over Brigham Young Saturday, assuring the Wildcats of at least a share of the Western Athletic Conference title.

The TD scampers by junior running backs Jim Upchurch and Willie Hamilton both came on third down and 10 situations. Upchurch's run in the fourth quarter put him over the 1,000-yard mark for the year with two games.

Texas near SWC title

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Roughhouse Roosevelt Leaks rambled for three touchdowns and defensive back Jay Arnold swiped two passes Saturday to trigger Texas to a 42-6 victory over Baylor on the road toward a sixth consecutive Southwest Conference title.

Leaks, the punishing 5-foot-11, 218-pound junior fullback who gained 342 yards last week, thundered 23, one and nine yards for touchdowns against the outmanned Bruins before 64,500 fans in Memorial Stadium.

Leaks rushed 17 times for 77 yards before Texas coach Darrel Royal sent in his substitutes midway in the third period.

The 13th-ranked Longhorns are now 6-2 for the year and 5-0 in SWC play. Texas needs only a tie in one of its two remaining games to become the host team in the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A three-yard scoring burst by Larry Isaacs and a nine-yard touchdown pass from Joe Branes to Andre Tillman helped 12th ranked Texas Tech back from a 10-point deficit Saturday and sparked a 24-10 victory over Texas Christian.

The heavily favored Red Raiders struck twice in a span of four minutes of the second quarter and sped along to the fifth successive verdict in eight of nine outings.

Buckeyes splatter Spartans

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sophomore Archie Griffin became the first Ohio State halfback ever to crack 1,00 rushing yards in one season, powering the unbeaten and topranked Buckeyes to a 35-0 Big Ten football victory Saturday over Michigan State.

The 185-pound Griffin rambled for 131 yards, marking the eighth consecutive time this fall he has surpassed 100 yards. Griffin's yardage, giving him 1,012 for the year, wiped out the previous Ohio State record for a halfback of 964 yards set by Hopalong Cassady 18 years ago.

Neal Colzie, a defensive back, returned a punt 43 yards for one touchdown and his 46-yard return set up a second Ohio State score. The junior had 170 return yards in eight tries.

Fullback Bruce Elia pounded across three times from shortrange as the vaunted Ohio State ground attack handed the Spartans their worst setback of the season. Michigan State is 3-6 overall and 2-4 in the Big Ten.

The Buckeye defense, stingiest in the nation at yielding points, posted its third shutout in the last four games. The Buckeyes permitted the Spartans only one first down in the opening half while taking a 21-0 lead.

Michigan State was forced to punt eight of the first nine times it had the ball and did not cross midfield until late in the fourth quarter behind substitute quarterback Mike Holt.

However, the Buckeye defense checked the drive at the 32 and received a standing ovation from the crowd of 87,600 — the largest in Ohio Stadium's history.

The experienced and quick Ohio State defense limited Michigan State to 88 yards rushing in 45 attempts, the second consecutive time the Buckeyeys have limited an opponent under 100 yards rushing.

The Ohio State offense was just as overpowering in becoming the greatest rushing team in history. The 1973 squad has mustered 2,907 yards in eight games after a 303-yard day against the Spartans.

The old rushing record of 2,774 was established by the 1969 team.

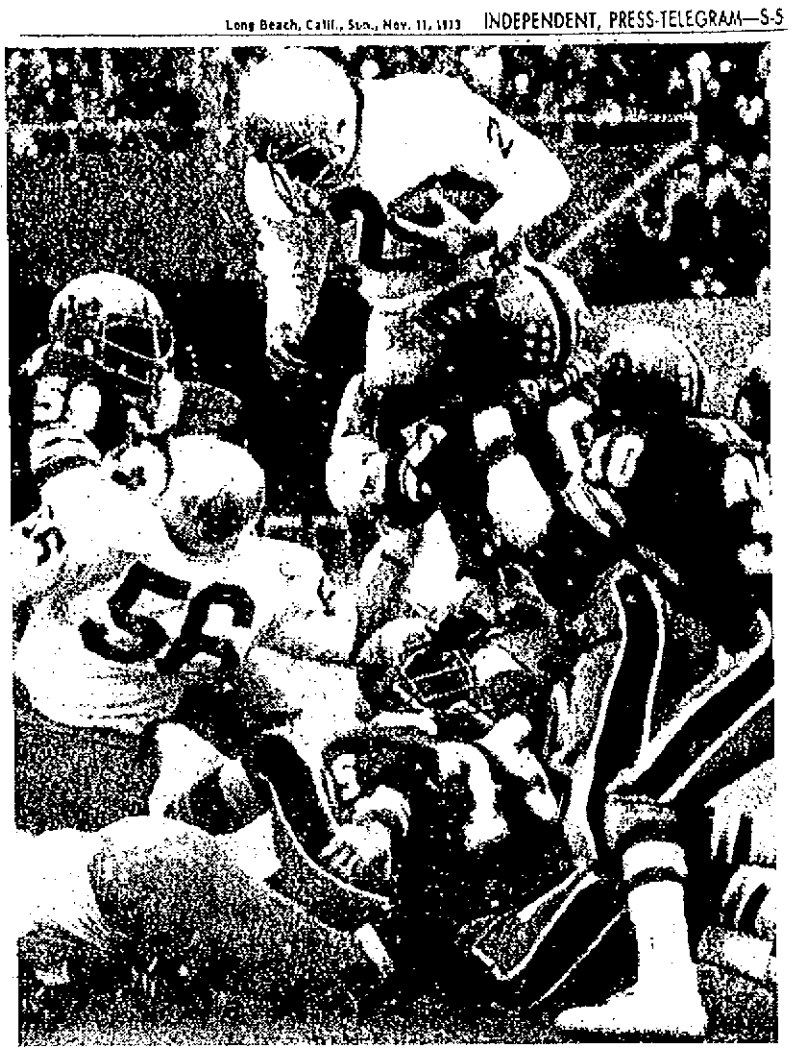

The victory preserved a firstplace tie with fourth-ranked Michigan for the Big Ten lead. The two schools probably will settle the conference title and the Rose Bowl bid Nov. 24 at Michigan.

Wolves wallop Illinois

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — Game-breaking junior Gil Chapman went 33 yards for a touchdown on a fourth-down play and tight end Paul Seal scored a freak 20-yard touchdown Saturday in a 21-6 Michigan victory over Illinois.

The Illini showed the fourth-rated Wolverines some new stuff on offense and defense. Field goals of 41 and 29 yards by freshman Dan Beaver put Michigan behind, 6-0, for the first time this season.

Coach Bo Schembechler, who always finds something to be dissatisfied with, had been worried because Michigan had not been tested and its big game with top-rated Ohio State is now just two Saturdays away.

But the Wolverines showed their poise as expected when big senior fullback Ed Shuttlesworth followed an exchange of fumbles by scoring on a one-yard run with just 73 second to go in the first half. That put the Wolverines back into the lead and they never trailed.

Chapman, who was on the bench most of the first half while Chuck Heater ran from the tailback position, came in at the start of the second half. He took a pitchout from Dennis Franklin on a fourth-and-two situation and swept left end for 33 yards on Michigan's first possession of the second half.

Seal just happened to be in the right place when a Franklin pitchout was blocked and bouncing around loose behind the line of scrimmage. The six-foot-six, 230-pound tight end scooped the ball up, circled back to the 30, and then roared straight into the end zone for the game-clinching touchdown.

Pitt frosh rips ND but Irish win, 31-10

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Fullback Wayne Bullock scored four touchdowns and rushed for 167 yards to key fifth-ranked Notre Dame to a 31-10 victory over Pitt Saturday, strengthening the hopes of the Irish for an expected Sugar Bowl bid.

Pitt saw its four-game winning streak snapped despite 210 yards rushing by Panther freshman Tony Dorsett.

It was the most yards rushing ever by a single player against Notre Dame, surpassing the old one-game mark of 195 set by Oklahoma's Billy Vessels in 1952.

Notre Dame raised its record to 8-0 with the help of four fumble recoveries and three pass interceptions that offset 383 yards in total offense gained by Pitt.

Pitt (5-3-1) trailed 10-3 at halftime. However, a third quarter fumble by Dave Janaset at the Pitt four set up a Bullock plunge and gave the Irish a 17-3 lead.

In the fourth quarter, Pitt scored on Janasek's one-yard plunge, but Notre Dame put the game away with two fourth quarter touchdown drives. Bullock ran two yards for one of the touchdowns and grabbed a nine-yard pass from Tom Clements for the other.

Lions eye Orange Bowl

Penn St. saved by Cappelletti

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — After salvaging a narrow 35-29 victory against North Carolina State Saturday, coach Joe Paterno and his unbeaten, sixth-ranked Penn State football team allowed themselves the luxury of thinking about an Orange Bowl date against Louisiana State University.

"We'll talk to the squad Sunday night about it," Paterno said after tailback John Cappelletti, with three touchdowns, again snatched the Nittany Lions from the jaws of defeat.

"I'm sure we'll be definitely interested," Paterno said.

With games remaining against Ohio University and Pitt, Penn State was almost certain to finish with an 11-0 record, its third unbeaten season in the past six years. LSU also is unbeaten with two games remaining.

But it was a close call for Penn State Saturday against an N.C. State team with bowl hopes of its own. Only Cappelletti's 27-yard touchdown run with 8:38 left to play salvaged the win.

"The only thing I can say is that if Cappelletti gets the Heisman award, he would not get an argument from me," said disappointed coach Lou Holtz of N.C. State.

Cappelletti gained 220 yards on 41 carries.

Sooners go inside for 31-3 win over Missouri

COLUMBIA, Mo. (UPI) — Missouri shut off Oklahoma's outside running game, but Joe Washington found a way to make himself useful anyway.

The fleet Sooner halfback scored two touchdowns, one on a dazzling 80-yard punt return Saturday, and fullback Waymon Clark pounded out 153 yards on 26 bone-rattling carries as third-ranked Oklahoma blitzed 10th-ranked Missouri, 31-3, before a record Faurot Field crowd of 68,831.

But it was defense that carried the unbeaten Sooners to their seventh victory against a tie. Missouri made only six first downs and 48 rushes netted only 44 yards.

"We weren't able to dominate the game offensively," said Oklahoma coach Barry Switzer. "The big thing was the way our defense dominated them. That way we were able to pick away at them despite our mistakes."

Oklahoma put the game out of reach with two touchdowns in the last two minutes of the third quarter. That boosted the Sooners' lead to 22-3. Washington's punt return with 5:51 to go proved unnecessary.

Washington gained 107 yards on 13 carries, including a 41-yard run that set up Oklahoma's first touchdown and a 26-yard touchdown run in the third quarter, which capped a 57-yard drive.

"I was disappointed that I didn't gain more yards," said the sophomore from Port Arthur, Tex. "But we figures that Missouri would take away the outside game."

Washington gained most of his yards on bolts up the middle.

Cornhuskers blitz Iowa St.

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Quarterback Dave Humm ran for one touchdown and passed for two more Saturday in Nebraska's 31-7 Big Eight victory over Iowa State.

The victory kept the Cornhuskers' slim hopes for the conference title alive and enhanced their chances for a major bowl bid.

Nebraska struck twice for touchdowns in the first six minutes of play. Each time, a 21-yard scoring march was set up by a recovery of an Iowa State fumble.

The fans had hardly settled into their seats when the Huskers scored their first touchdown. Ron Pruitt, defensive tackle, covered a Mike Tyson fumble on the Iowa State 21 and four plays later Humm slammed into the end zone from the one.

On the ensuing kickoff, Jerry Moses fumbled on the Cyclone 21. Humm hooked up with Ritch Bahe on a 25-yard strike thrown over the Cyclone middle.

WIN IT FOR BEN, 5-3

WORCESTER, Mass. (UPI) — A wild punt snap by Holy Cross in the fourth quarter Saturday gave Syracuse a safety and a 5-3 win, marking the first victory in nine attempts this year for coach Ben Schwartzwalder, who retires at the end of this season after 25 years.

Jaynes subdues Buffaloes

LAWRENCE, Kan. (UPI) — Quarterback David Jaynes' four-yard touchdown run in the third quarter allowed the Kansas Jayhawks to squeeze past stubborn Colorado Saturday for a 17-15 Big Eight victory.

Set up by a pass interference call at the Buffalo six, Jaynes handed off once and then weaved through the middle on an option for the touchdown with 11:12 left in the third quarter, giving Kansas a 17-7 lead.

But Colorado made it close in the fourth quarter, relying mostly on tailback Billy Waddy's running. The Buffs drove 89 yards in 12 plays, ending with quarterback David Williams plunging one yard into the end zone. Williams' two-point run narrowed the gap to 17-15.

Upchurch leads Gophers, 34-7

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Gophers, with Rick Upchurch dashing for 177 yards, shocked Purdue with 24 points in the first 18 minutes and swept to a 34-7 victory over the Boilermakers in a regionally televised Big Ten Conference football game Saturday.

Upchurch, a 165-pound junior fullback, ran 21 yards for a touchdown and helped set up two other scores and a field goal as the Gophers improved their record to 5-4 and Big Ten mark to 4-2.

John Lawing plunged for two Minnesota touchdowns, and Steve Goldberg contributed a pair of field goals.

Purdue, losing six of eight fumbles, dropped to 4-5 over-all and 3-3 in the Big Ten.

Bob Bobrowski's one-yard quarterback sneak in the third quarter gave the Boilermakers their only touchdown.

Saints come creeping in

In all frankness, it must be admitted that a visit to our town by the New Orleans Saints does not produce reactions of cataclysmic proportions.

The Saints are not paraded down the avenues and boulevards showered by telephone books shredded to confetti by adoring citizens. The mayor does not distribute 22 keys to the city to the offensive and defensive units.

In all honesty, it is not as though Elizabeth Taylor was coming home with a new husband or Sprio Agnew arriving for a round of golf at Palm Springs.

Such events as the foregoing cause the population to depart its senses, but there really sin't any valid reason for the New Orleans Saints to creep into town under cover of darkness.

In all fairness, however, it should be pointed out that all of this is predictable. The Saints are a relatively new team to the National Football League and have therefore enjoyed limited exposure.

FOR INSTANCE, television networks do not care to braodcast live from New Orlean unless the production is a political convention or the Mardi Gras. The Saints are harly likely to come marching in on the Monday night football show.

Newspapers, other than those published in Louisians, do not care to go to great lengths probing the affairs of the Saints. This is a day and age, after all, when the hiring and firing of football coaches has become old and mediocre stuff.

In all, it is simply that teams the likes of the New Orleans Saints do not capture the imagination in the manner of some of the older and more established squads.

But this is not to even remotely suggest the Saints are not welcome. On the contrary, Southern California each autumn extends warm greeting.

PARTICULARLY anxious to welcome the Saints are the Rams. Since the New Orleans team was admitted to the NFL, it has visited the Coliseum on four occasions and has lost each time.

It is traditional for a home side to enjoy a mastery over a certain visiting team and begin to call it "cousin." Accordingly, the Rams are not only delighted to see the Saints come to town. They will gladly meet the plane.

Aside from all of this, it is the Southland's pleasure to host the Saints because they bring with them a group of swinging supporters who live it up and join in the good times. This is in contrast to the deadpans and louts who come with the big teams like Miami and Dallas and Washington.

Then too, the Saints wear attractive costumes and place in them a collection of cleancut young men.

IF THERE is a reason to be critical of the Saints, it is in the fact the New Orleans side is not always hospitable at home.

In 1971, the Rams were entertaining notions of a division championship and opened their campaign in New Orleans. Rudely, to say the least, the Saints won, 24-20.

In 1972, the Rams at one stage had a record on 5-4-1 and were not yet deceased in the NFC West when they alighted in New Orleans. The Saints triumphed, 19-16.

The Saints, the ones that come here this year, have a new coach in a fellow named John North. Since entering office, North has done some rather upstart things, the most noteable of which was an upset of the Washington Redskins.

Of course, nothing so distasteful will take place here. North worked with Ram coach Chuck Knox at Detroit and the two are close friends.

Besides, there is no way the Saints can afford to wear out a welcome.

Suddenly a real test for flat Rams

Rejuvenated Saints march in Early this season Danny Abramowicz, star wide receiver of the New Orleans Saints, asked to be traded to a "contender."

John North, the new coach, obliged by dispatching Danny to San Francisco, which had won the NFC West three years in a row.

As chapter nine of the NFL season unfolds today, the 49ers are last and the Saints are contenders as they enter the Coliseum to armwrestle the Rams at 1:05.

Sport's amateur psychologists have spent as much time the past week trying to analyze the Saints' surprising surge as they have the Rams' demise from a 6-0 start.

"I think that pride is

ROBERTS' ROUSER: Rams 27, New Orleans 10

the main thing," says New Orleans' gifted young quarterback, Archie Manning. "just getting sick of getting beat."

It might be more difficult to explain why the Rams' offense, explosive and exciting at the outset, sent flat in successive setbacks at Minnesota (10-9) and Atlanta (15-13).

"It could be," said old pro tackle Charlie Cowan, "that we had such a big lead that we relaxed."

Were asleep might be more accurate. The last couple of weeks the attack has been about as daring as cream puffs at 20 paces and it may be time for Chuck Knox, the noted historian from Juniata College, to consult the journal of the Rams' ill-fated 1972 campaign.

At this stage last year the Rams had almost as good a record (5-2-1) and a bigger lead (1½ games). But as the offense fizzled the pressure got to the defense, which eventually caved in.

The '73 defense has given up only one touchdown in the last two games but lost them both.

"We'll just have to play a little better," says Merlin Olsen, who captains the unit. "I don't think you can compare this to last year, anyway. That was a different team."

So is New Orleans.

Since replacing J.D. Roberts after four practice games, Knox's old buddy North has installed a new offense and a dozen new faces, most of them more battleworn than those that had adorned the roster of the Bayou babes.

The most important additions were running back Jess Phillips, the team's leading rusher with 424 yards; defensive tackle Billy Newsome, a four-year veteran from Baltimore, and wide receiver Jubilee Dunbar, a name that belongs on Bourbon Street.

North also is making the most of Manning's considerable talents, running the sprintout option offense that he and Knox helped design for Greg Landry at Detroit.

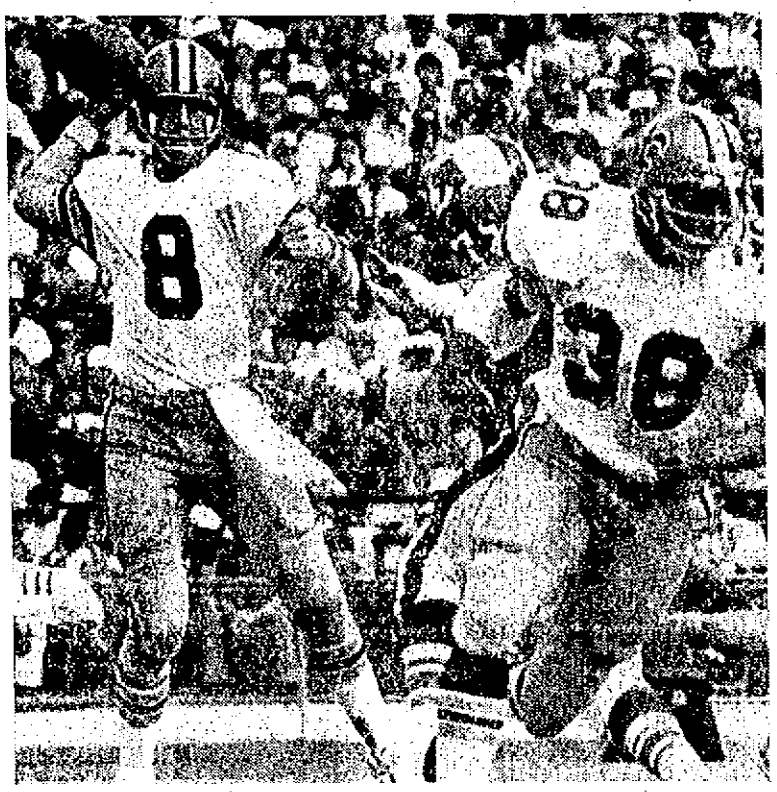

"He can pass and he can run the 40 in 4.6," says Knox, "which makes him dangerous either way."

Manning, for one, loves it.

"You can't imagine how simple our offense is," he says.

Granted, all of the Saints' four wins have been at home in Tulane Stadium and they haven't won on the road in two years. Despite winning four of their last five, the lone loss was a 40-0 shutout at San Francisco.

Abramowicz crowed a bit after that one, but the last laugh may be on Danny.

Ricochet rematch tops NFL slate

Combined News Services

It is a picture still frozen into the minds of the millions of viewers who watched it last Dec. 23 on TV.

You remember it. The ball went flying completely out of the TV picture — and then suddenly No. 32 came storming into the picture with the ball in his hands heading for the end zone.

No. 32, of course, was Franco Harris and the Pittsburgh Steelers' running back caught a deflected pass in one of the strangest finishes in pro football history to give the Steelers their celebrated playoff victory over the Oakland Raiders.

The two clubs will meet for the first time since that game today in Oakland and the NFL officials, who rarely miss a chance to publicize a dramatic moment, will televise the game to most of the nation as a part of a doubleheader (Channel 4, 1 p.m.).

Naturally, it's a key game — especially for the Raiders. Oakland is 5-2-1 in the AFC West with a one game lead over Kansas City, which meets Chicago on Monday night. Pittsburgh is 7-1 and has a 2½-game lead in the Central Division.

The Raiders, with the home field advantage, are rated a touchdown favorite over the Steelers, who have a shaky quarterback situation with Terry Bradshaw injured and Terry Hanratty nursing sore ribs.

The Steeler-Raider game has the spotlight on what isn't supposed to be one of the more exciting weekends of the season. Seven teams — Miami, the Rams, Dallas, Denver, Cleveland, Minnesota and Washington — are favored by more than seven points.

The details of the Harris catch are still vivid in the minds of most fans. The Steelers, trailing Oakland 7-6, had a fourth-and-10 on their own 40 with just 36 seconds left. Oakland had taken the lead with just 1:13 left on Ken Stabler's touchdown.

BRADSHAW planned to pass to Barry Pearson but he was covered so he fired to John Fuqua at the Oakland 35. Fuqua, Oakland's Jack Tatum and the ball all arrived at the same time and in the ensuing collision the ball ricocheted completely out of the TV picture.

But it bounced toward Harris, who snared it just before it hit the ground on the 42 and raced into the end zone. The play went into the books as a 60-yard pass because Pittsburgh started on its own 40 — and it was legal only because Tatum apparently touched the ball in the collision with Fuqua although the Raiders still argue that point.

Harris, who capped a brilliant rookie season with that play, was as surprised as everyone else.

"I just happened to be there at the right time. It happened so fast that I didn't have time to think about it. It's like somebody throwing a ball at you when you don't expect it.

"I just reacted. As soon as I caught it, there must have been a thousand things that flashed through my mind. I knew it was fourth down, I knew there were only seconds left and I knew we had to score. I just started running and I just wanted to score," he said.

But Harris says that play shouldn't affect this game. "I guess they'll be waiting for us but it's just another game for me," he said.

Obviously, for the Raiders, it's more than that. It always is in Al Davis' "Pride and Poise Country." After all, that loss knocked the Raiders out of the playoffs.

Stabler, who came off the bench in that game to relieve Darylé Lamonica, is now the Raider starter and the AFC's leading passer. Hanratty will start for Pittsburgh but don't be surprised if young Joe Gilliam gets into action soon because Hanratty's ribs are so tender.

In the other games today, Minnesota hosts Detroit, San Francisco is at Washington, New Orleans is at Los Angeles, Baltimore is at Miami, Atlanta is at Philadelphia, Dallas meets the New York Giants at New Haven, San Diego is at Denver, Cincinnati is at Buffalo, Cleveland is at Houston, St. Louis is at Green Bay and New England is at the New York Jets.

IN THE Monday night TV special, Chicago is at Kansas City.

Unbeaten Minnesota, which has beaten Detroit 11 consecutive times, can clinch the NFC Central title with a victory if Green Bay and Chicago both lose or tie.

"If we're lacking one ingredient, maybe it is that we lack the killer instinct," says Minnesota coach Bud Grant.

Maybe so, but don't try to convince any of the teams in the NFL of that. After all, the Vikings have knocked off every one they've faced this season.

The Vikes go after their ninth consecutive victory — and their 15th in a row if you tack on the perfect exhibition season — against the Lions.

"I don't care about the Lions' past problems with Minnesota," says Detroit coach Don McCafferty. "If we get ready and play our game like we can, I feel we can handle Minnesota."

THE VIKES are being cautious, too, despite the fact the Lions, who lost 23-9 in the teams' first meeting this season, have a mediocre 3-4-1 record and face elimination from the race with a loss.

"Sooner or later all good things come to an end," says Minnesota defensive back Bobby Bryant. "It's bound to catch up with us. I'm confident ... but apprehensive."

Joe Namath of the Jets is recovering from a shoulder separation and "if he's 100 per cent healthy, I'll start him" against the Patriots, said New York coach Weeb Ewbank, who won't decide until game time.

THE Redskins, who share first place in the NFC East with Dallas, are meeting San Francisco for the first time since losing to the 49ers, 24-20, in the 1971 playoffs. San Francisco is floundering with a 3-5 NFC West record and desperately trying to catch Atlanta and the first-place Rams. Joe Reed will start ahead of Steve Spurrier and John Brodie at quarterback.

Miami's Dolphins, with a two-game lead in the AFC East, are gunning for their fourth successive shutout over Baltimore. Atlanta, having won four straight games for the first time in its history, faces Roman Gabriel and the Eagles, the NFC's No. 1 passing team.

The Giants, sagging under a six-game losing spin including last Sunday's 42-0 whipping at Oakland, face a Dallas team that beat them 45-28 three weeks ago. San Diego makes its first start under Ron Waller, the interim head coach who took over for Harland Svare. The Chargers are the only team out of the AFC West race. The Broncos are within striking distance of the top at 3-3-2.

BUFFALO'S Bills still have high hopes of a playoff berth and a victory over Cincinnati would make them higher. But O.J. Simpson's chances of surpassing Jim Brown's single-season record of 1,863 yards are fading. He got only 79 last week in New Orleans and has 1,104 for the year. Houston, having won a game after 18 consecutive losses, now faces Cleveland with its next big goal — two in a row — a feat they haven't achieved since 1971.

New 'upsurge' at Cal Tech

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

PASADENA — If 1973 turns out to be a better year for, say, wine than for engineers and scientists, it'll be quite understandable.

Cal Tech, the famed engineering school, hasn't entirely turned its back on matters on the universe, but there is restrained joy over its football team.

Why, just last week 50 people showed up to watch a game.

It must be pointed out that Cal Tech's major contribution to football over the years has been the computer that sells the tickets.

Notre Dame recruits linebackers; Cal Tech goes after geniuses. Somehow, the two aren't synonymous.

But this year Cal Tech's Richter Scale went slightly ajar when the football team actually won as many games as it lost. Of course, that's something that's happened three times in the last 51 years. So why all the fuss?

Cal Tech ended the season 3-3. In 1957 the Engineers were 4-3. But in 1944 they were — hold your calculators — 4-0.

"But that year has to carry an asterisk — a big asterisk," admits Cal Tech's football coach, Tom Gutman. "It was during the war and we had a number of Stanford students playing for us. That team was unbeaten and unscored upon."

Gutman, 37, a former UCLA football player, is in his fifth year as head coach. He hasn't enjoyed too many 1944s — or even 1973s.

"This was the weakest team I've had since I've been at Cal Tech," Gutman said, "but we won some games."

Cal Tech's schedule doesn't rate with, let's say, USC's but, as Gutman explains:

"We're here to play football, not establish records. We just want to win once in awhile."

Cal Tech, for years, played as a member of the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference (SCIAC), and weekly absorbed drubbings from such powers as Redlands, Whittier, Occidental and Pomona College.

If Cal Tech lost by "only" 40-0 and no one got hurt, it was considered a moral victory.

Several years ago Gutman changed the pattern. He dropped some of the bullies of the SCIAC and scheduled new teams.

This season Cal Tech played four junior varsity teams and two junior colleges. Twice the Engineers defeated Claremont-Mudd's JV team, by scores of 42-0 and 28-0. They finished the season with two wins in a row, the longest win streak in 16 years.

Why is it that Cal Tech has been so pitifully poor in football and other sports over the years?

Simply, intellectual students seldom have the brawn to match their brains.

"That," said Gutman, "and lack of experience is the big problem."

Few of Cal Tech's 19 football players — yes, 19 — had so much as put on a uniform in high school.

"The biggest diffference between coaching here and someplace else," Gutman said, "is that you have to deal with the elementary fundamentals of the game. The improvement is tremendous, though. The students grasp the theoretical aspects of the game readily. The physical aspects and the experience, well, that's something else.

"Our quarterback this year, for example, was Norm Nelson, a sophomore, who never quarterbacked in his life. He played JV football at Canoga Park. But he did quite well considering."

So why doesn't Gutman and the other coaches go out and get some athletes?

"If we even suggested that a guy should be admitted to Cal Tech just because he's a good athlete," said Gutman, "all hell would break loose."

"We can't do a thing as far as recruiting.

"There just aren't that many people who meet the standards at Cal Tech. Time Magazine surveyed all the schools not too long ago and rated Cal Tech the hardest school in the U.S. to get into.

"What you're talking about here is not just future scientists, but future Nobel Prize Winners. More than 70 per cent of our graduates go on and get their Ph.D. degrees, and that's extremely high. This isn't just a science school, but a hard science school."

So Gutman takes what he gets for his football team which, usually, is a boy who's never even played the game.

"When the season begins they don't even know the stance," he said. "But we work hard in practice. We run all the time. We get as much out of a 1½-hour practice as most schools do in two hours because there's so little time for football."

Priot to Gutman's idea to play weaker teams and get the competition on an even basis, Cal Tech was losing week after week by scores like 55-0 and 65-0.

Gutman gets slightly irritated when it's suggested that the athletic program at Cal Tech isn't strong.

"That's just not true," he said. "We have 12 varsity sports, we encourage participation and we're well-supported. We don't get that many people to our games — 23 had 50, I guess, last week — but the school supports us financially.

"The students really do get a kick out of it when we win. They get all excited, parade through downtown Pasadena and then have a big bonfire whenever we win a game."

The Pasadena Fire Department, to be sure, hasn't been overburdened.

MS. L.A. RAM A COLT FAN

LANCASTER, Pa. (UPI) — Despite her name, Maria de Los Angeles Rams says her favorite professional football team is the Baltimore Colts.

Miss Rams, 20, became a naturalized citizen of the United States Friday in ceremonies at the Lancaster County Courthouse.

An avid pro football fan, she said she had been unaware of the similarity between her name and that of a National Football League team until she came to the United States from Cuba in 1966.

Colgate brushes William & Mary

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Halfbacks Mark Van Eeghen and John Anderson scored three touchdowns each to pace the Colgate Red Raiders to a surprising 49-42 win over William & Mary Saturday.

Quarterback Tom Parr, a senior from Ithaca, N.Y., also had b big hand in the Colgate triumph, picking up 320 yards in total offense, 142 yards rushing and 178 passing.

'Who's he' field in Heisman derby

NEW YORK (UPI) — Will this year's Heisman Trophy winner be another Terry Baker?

If the name Terry Baker isn't easily recognized, that's not too surprising. It wasn't back in 1962 either when the Oregon State quarterback was voted the Heisman award as the nation's outstanding college football player.

The reason Baker's selection evoked "who's he?" reaction all over the country was not because of any lack of ability, but rather because there was no clear-cut favorite for the award that year and the voters split their ballots regionally. The same format appears to be in the making this year.

While there are about a dozen outstanding candidates for the Heisman, not one is a standout choice a la Johnny Rodgers, O.J. Simpson, Jim Plunkett in recent years. Further, there doesn't even appear to be any change of a controversy over the award this year such as the Pat Sullivan-Ed Marinaro debate of 1971 and the celebrated Rodgers affair last season.

No, it's been a quiet season as far as the Heisman is concerned and about the only real discussion has been the strong possibility that an underclassman will win it. In the 39-year history of the award only four non-seniors — Roger Staubach of Navy in 1963, Vic Janowicz of Ohio State in 1950, Doak Walker of SMU in 1948 and Doc Blanchard of Army in 1945 — have been selected. Yet this year, of the 11 leading candidates, six are underclassmen.

So how will the Heisman voters view the 1973 candidates? Well, it all depends on what you consider that catch-all word "outstanding" to mean. Certainly Ohio State's John Hicks has been an outstanding offensive tackle this year — so much so that veteran Buckeyes' coach Woody Hayes labeled him "the best offensive lineman I've ever coached — including Jim Parker."

But don't bet on Hicks winning the Heisman. As has been tradition, backfield men get preferred treatment. No interior lineman has ever won college football's most coveted trophy.

If the voters like cold statistics, Arizona State quarterback Danny White, Texas fullback Roosevelt Leaks and Rutgers tailback J. J. Jennings surely will rate. After eight games, White is the nation's total offense leader, while Leaks leads in rushing and Jennings in scoring. It all depends on what part of the game you consider most important.

For those who like consistency (and isn't that another dandy catch-all word?), there's Ohio State's Archie Griffin, who has gained over 100 yards in all eight of his team's games this year despite often sitting out the entire second half while Hayes' scrubs finish up.

Three running backs — Leaks, Sonny Collins of Kentucky and Tony Dorsett of Pittsburgh — have gone over the 1,000 yard rushing mark already, but before the last Heisman ballots are cast, Jennings and Penn State's John Cappelletti are almost certain to be in that category too.

On the surface, you have to like Jennings' stats. Besides leading the nation with 17 touchdowns, the hard running Rutgers senior has also topped the 100-yard rushing mark in all seven games. But as was the case with Ivy Leaguer Marinaro two years ago, many voters in the South and West will argue, "Who does he play against?"

Of particular surprise this year has been the showing of the two clear-cut front runners for the Heisman before the season began — Woody Green of Arizona State and Anthony Davis of USC. Neither has enjoyed a particularly standout season (Davis has gained over 100 yards in only two of his eight games and Green just three of his seven). But on name alone they'll merit the attention of the voters.

Griffin, Davis, Collins, Dorsett, Leaks and Tennessee quarterback Condredge Holloway are all underclassmen which may or may not hinder their chances for the Heisman. Dorsett, however, is only a freshman which gives him three more shots at it and that very likely will hurt him this year.

Of the quarterbacks, White has all the statistics (8.3 yards per play etc) going for him, but Kansas' David Jaynes has the "classic passer" reputation and is also benefiting from extensive attention of the press — and the pro scouts — this season. Holloway, meanwhile, has had the luxury of one national TV appearance and would also be the first black quarterback to ever win a Heisman Trophy.

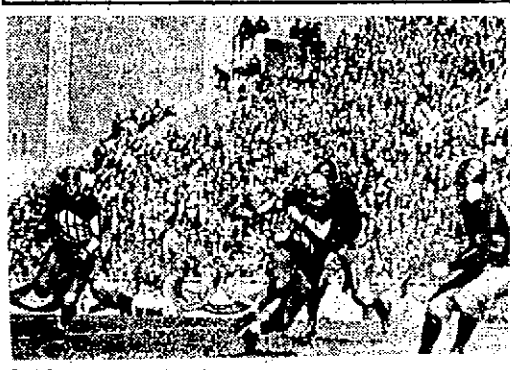

Griffin, Leaks, Cappelletti, Dorsett, Jennings, Collins, Davis, Green, Jaynes, White, Holloway — take your vhoice. Unquestionably, with eight games already gone for most, this has to be as wide-open a Heisman race as there has ever been.

Leaks' 209, 193 and 342 yards in his last three games certainly establish him as a fast finisher. But then Griffin usually only plays half a game. Jennings is still scoring despite playing hurt. But Jaynes has nearly single-handedly made Kansas a national contender.

Red Grange on Opening Kickoff TD Romp Against Michigan

Champaign, Ill., 1924

Douglas Fairbanks is riding the crest of popularity in his role in "The Thief of Bagdad." The most exciting performer on the gridiron this year is Harold (Red) Grange of the University of Illinois.

The Illini have a new stadium that seats 67,000 and cost $1,700,000 to build. Today Grange and his teammates will christen that stadium as they play their traditional rivals, the University of Michigan.

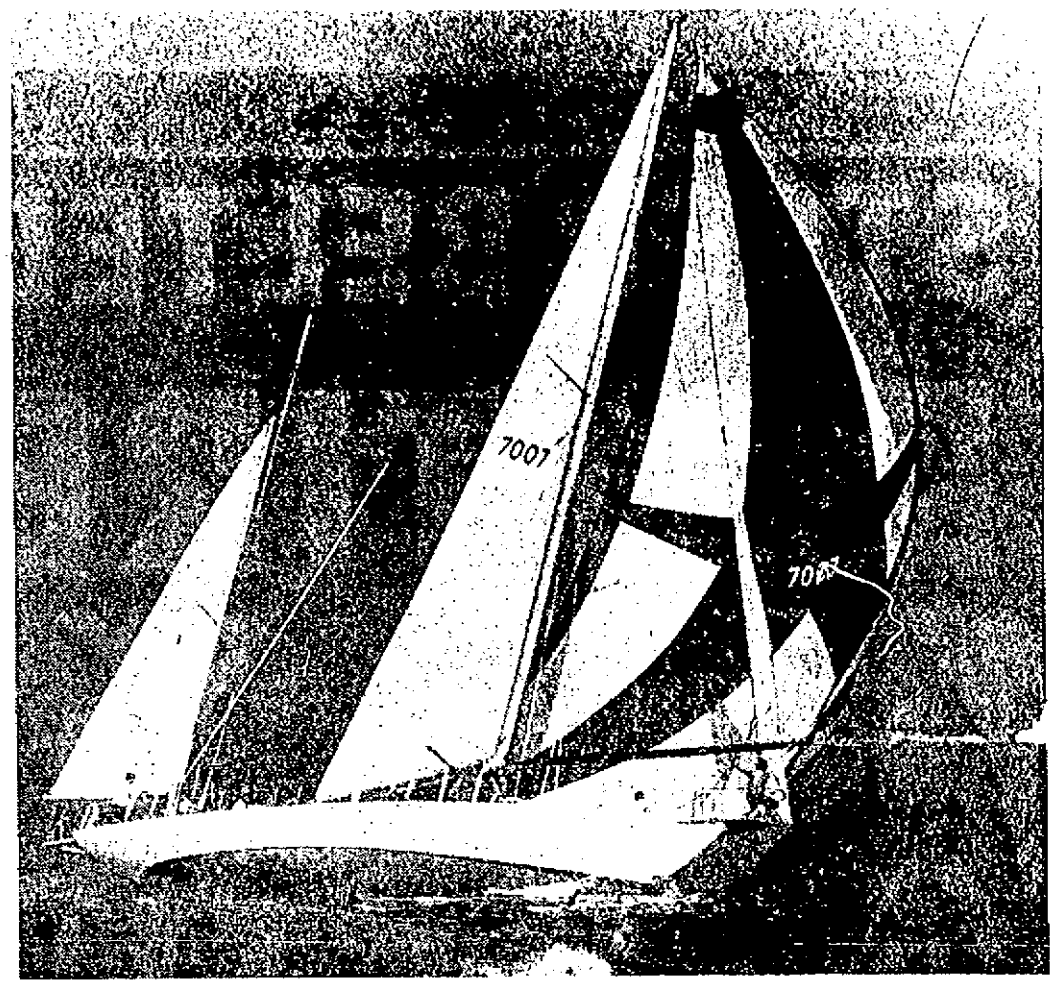

As the game begins, Grange serves notice to his opponents that a football running spectacle is about to begin. Grange has run the opening kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown.

The next time the Illini get the ball, Grange immediately strikes again. This time the "Galloping Ghost" charges to the end zone for a 65-yard touchdown romp. The first quarter action has barely begun.

Grange gets the ball in his hands two more times in this quarter. Both opportunities result in long touchdown runs. With the score 27-0 coach Bob Zuppke gives his star, and the Michigan defense, a rest.

In the third quarter Grange is at it again. In his reckless running style he streaks across the Michigan goal line for the fifth time today. Red Grange has treated the huge crowd to an electrifying performance as Illinois defeats Michigan, 39-14. In one game he has scored five touchdowns and gained 402 yards.

There will be many more games played in this sparkling new stadium but there will never be another Grange.

Rockets play host to high-flying Crenshaw

By CHUCK MEDICK

With a 2-2 record in league play, the Long Beach Rockets host the Crenshaw Pros today at 1:30 p.m. at Blair Field in a Southern California Baseball Assn. Winter League game.

The Rockets' pitching staff is getting the job done with little support from the hitting department. In order to strengthen the batting punch, the Cincinnati Reds' Ed Crosby, formerly of Wilson High and Long Beach City College, will join the squad for today's game. Jeff Burroughs, who hit 26 homers for the Texas Rangers last season, also may be on hand.

Crosby will play either second or short and he is expected to give manager Jack Graham the right-handed power he needs.

This will be a tough one for the Rockets. Crenshaw is undefeated in four starts and perched on top of the traveling division of the league. Manager Nate Dancy has a collection of stars from Crenshaw and Locke high schools, coupled with a few minor league professionals. Don Wilson of the Houston Astros will be on the mound for Crenshaw.

Oxy, Jameson NAIA champs

All-America cross country runner Joel Jameson came in first Saturday to lead host Occidental to a team victory in the finals of the NAIA District III cross country championships.

Jameson ran the five mile course in 24 minutes, 28.6 seconds, beating USIU's Peter Fredrickson, last year's NAIA 6-mile national champion, who was timed in 25.03.

Following Occidental in team standings were Westmont, Fresno Pacific, and Azusa Pacific.

LBNS hosts touch football

Four teams open play Monday at Long Beach Naval Station for 11th District touch football honors and a berth in the West Coast Regional at North Island.

The pairing are Long Beach Marines vs. North Island NAS at 5 p.m. and Pt. Mugu NAS vs. San Diego Naval Station at 6:30. Play is double elimination with the finals set for Thursday.

The Marines won the Naval Station's Major League and the area tournament completed last week.

World tee lead 'frozen'

PINEHURST, N.C. (UPI) — Wise-cracking Allen Miller, wearing borrowed longjohns and rainsuit to ward off the freezing morning cold, warmed up enough to shoot a one-over-par 72 Saturday and move into a tie with Gibby Gilbert at 210 for the third-round lead in the $500,000 World Open Golf championship.

Gilbert, who virtually destroyed the legend of Pinehurst's invinvibility with an opening-round 62 to enjoy a five-stroke advantage over the field on Thursday, suffered putting miseries Saturday as he missed putts of one, two, five and six feet en route to his second consecutive 74.

With the leaders of this marathon, eight-round tournament starting off early in the morning when the temperature was in the upper 20s, the scores were generally high and only Mitchell was able to break par among the top players, all of whom played course No. 4.

However, one notable scoring feat was accomplished when four sophomore Lanny Wadkins fired the first hole-in-one of his life. Wadkins, who went to school at nearby Wake Forest and already has earned more than $300,000 during his brief pro career, got the ace on the 172-yard, par-three 13th hole.

"The ball ran into the hole on one hop," said Wadkins, who had a 71 for a 216 total. "My caddy got real excited but there wasn't anyone else around to enjoy it."

"It was really too cold out there," said Wadkins, whose group at 216 included George Archer, who had his third consecutive 72, and Rick Rhoads, who had a 74. "There were icy greens, icy fairways and icy traps. It's too late in the year to be here.

"I figures with these conditions if I shot a 68 or a 70 today I'd pass the world."

Perfect yacht weather

27-craft armada en route to La Paz

By DON CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

The weatherman lifted Saturday morning's fog early enough to give the sailors a break, and 27 yachts ranging from 33 to 73 feet got off to a beautiful start in the fifth biennial Long Beach-to-La Paz Yacht Race. There was one scratch from the original list of 28 boats.

The yachts crossed the starting line near the fantail of the Queen Mary at high noon in beautiful weather with an eight-knot wind out of the southwest that was changing to a westerly.

Ragtime, the 62-foot ultra light displacement boat that won this year's Transpac to Honolulu "by a nose," once again showed her stern to the entire fleet in a matter of minutes. However, Ragtime, it must be remembered, was carrying a handicap of one day, 17 hours and 33 minutes, highest in the fleet wit the exception of Graybeard (Royal Vancouver YC), which was handicapped by one day, 20 hours and 55 minutes.

Ragtime was flying the colors once again of the Long Beach YC, official sponsor of the race, even though the boat was sold to another syndicate after the Transpac. Stan Miller, one of the skippers in the Transpac and still listed as one of the owners, was at the wheel as the boat disappeared into the haze ahead of all others.

Robert Beauchamp Sr., at the helm of Dorothy O, a 56-foot sloop from the Newport Harbor YC, was in hot pursuit of Ragtime as the fleet swept out around the east end of the Long Beach Breakwater and headed for Mexico.

Another Newport Harbor YC boat, Robert H. Grant's Robon, wasn't far behind. Robert E. O'Brien (California YC) was just behind Robon in his Spirit, a 61-foot yawl.

All of the four leaders were Class A boats, each of which carries more than 24 hours in handicap rating. It was very evident from the press boat, Harry Hanover's Bel Tempo, that one Class C boat was whipping along just behind the leaders. That boat was Tinsley Light, a 36-foot sloop, skippered by Harry Grandin Jr. of the St. Francis YC of San Francisco.

Yet, with a full week of sailing ahead of them, anything could happen. Fair weather has been predicted for the entire race, but the winds will be light at times.

The lowest rated boat in the race is Dr. John Holiday's Aquarius, a 35-foot sloop, also representing the Long Beach YC. Incidentally, Aquarius was the 1971 overall winner, and this year's odds again are heavy for Holiday.

Prefontaine leads Oregon to Pac-8 title

STANFORD (UPI) — Steve Prefontaine of Oregon won the Pac-8 cross country championship Saturday for the third year in a row by breezing to a course record clocking of 28:05.4.

He easily defeated John Ngeno of Washington State who finished almost 100 yards behind. Prefontaine's time broke the six-mile course record by more than 20 seconds.

Prefontaine took the lead at the halfway point and pulled away for the final three miles.

Oregon captured the team title with 32 points. Washington state, the champion in 1971 and again in 1972, finished second with 36 points. Oregon State was a distant third.

Risch fires 62 to lead Gardena

Risch, of Yorba Linda, went 19 under par for the tournament after three rounds following a 64 and a 69 the opening two days.

Amateur Mark Pfeil of Palos Verdes, USC's No. 2 golfer, shot a 66 at par—71 Western Golf Course for a 199 total and was alone in second place. He is the state amateur champ.

Amateur Paul Wise of Inglewood also carded a 62 and tied for third at 201 with second round leader James Walker of Los Angeles, who had a 69.

Canadian Don Halderson of Manitoba and Duce Irving of Los Angeles matched 68s and tied for fourth with 203 totals.

Larry Benson is the top Long Beach golfer in the running, ranked seventh among the pros at 205, 10 strokes off the lead.

All the Long Beach golfers survived the cut, at 215.

French filly breaks male dominance

Dahlia wins International

LAUREL, Md. (UPI) — Dahlia, displaying the form that made her the darling of Europe in midsummer, unleashed a powerful rush down the stretch at Laurel Saturday to win the 22nd running of the $150,000 Washington D.C. International by 3¼ lengths to become the first filly ever to win the global classic.

Dahlia's victory gave France its sixth triumph in the race. Big Spruce from Elmendorf Farms finished second in the field of eight thoroughbreds from four countries. Scottish Rifle from England was third with Card King, another French entry, fourth.

Tentam, the 3-5 favorite and America's biggest hope for victory, finished fifth.

With jockey William Pyers of Australia in the saddle, Dahlia dropped to the tail-end of the field right from the very start and there the stretch running daughter of Vaguely Noble stayed while Tentam set the early pace.

Rounding the final turn into the homestretch, Dahlia still was last and there was a wall of horses in front of her. But she responded gallantly to Pyers' urging and threaded her way through the horses to finally break into the clear with only about a sixteenth of a mile to go.

Carrying 118 pounds since Pyers' could not make the assigned 117, Dahlia finished the mile-and-a-half in 2:30 3/5.

The shivering crowd of 20,389 who braved 44-degree temperatures made Dahlia the second choice and she paid $11.20, $5.60 and $5.40.

Big Spruce paid $6.00 and $4.20 while Scottish Rifle, who finished a length further back, returned 7.20.

Dahlia was bred in Kentucky but she has done most of her racing in France as well as England, Ireland and now the U.S.

Spartan Hanover wins by a neck

Spartan Hanover, the richest trotter in the nation this year, edged his season-long rival, Delmonica Hanover by a head in the featured Montebello Trot Saturday night at Hollywood Park.

Driven by Billy Haughton, harness racing's all-time money leader, Spartan Hanover clocked the mile in 2:00⅗ — fastest of his career — in catching Delmonica in the final stride. Sassy Hill, despite breaking stride early, rallied for third.

Spartan Hanover isn't nominated for the $50,000 Pacific Trot Nov. 23 or the $100,000 American Trotting Classic Nov. 30 but he is considered a supplementary candidate for both events.

The win, worth $6.80, $3.60 and $3.40 across the board, was his ninth in 25 starts this year and boosted his seasonal bankroll to $236,828. The victory also avenged two recent defeats at the hands of Delmonica Hanover.

Arapaho, with Dick Hogan at the controls, had the honor of registering the 50th 'Magic Mile' of the 1973 season in the third when he stopped the timer in 1:59⅕.

Winning his ninth race in 29 starts this year, Arapaho was recording his first sub-2:00 mile ever and gave Hogan his second magic trip in two nights. The winner paid $17.60.

Lew Williams, meanwhile, put together a double as the nation's fourth-ranked driver won the opener aboard Worthy Elby at $17.40 and then captured the fifth with Real Hilarious at $9.40.

Real Hilarious, one of the leading three-year old pacing fillies in the country this year, made it 51 magic miles with a 1:59 effort — also her fastest ever.

That 2:00 performance was also the first for Williams at the meeting.

Earl Wilson

Cheer up, it could be worse

NEW YORK — Peter Marshall has been whipping around the country trying to plug his book "Cheer Up!" but he's having his problems. Everybody wants to ask him, since he's host of "Hollywood Squares," what Charlie Weaver and Paul Lynde are really like. Besides, he finds it difficult to mention his book on his own program, just from the standpoint of modesty.

"You do sneak in a few plugs, don't you?" I asked him a recent afternoon at Joe's Pier 52.

"A few. I asked Charlie Weaver, 'How are you feeling?' He said, 'I was feeling very bad till I read your book "Cheer Up!" and now I feel better.' He could have said, 'And now I feel worse,' but he was nice enough not to."

MARSHALL

ARQUETTE

JOEY BISHOP, subbing for Johnny Carson one night, asked Peter to give him a typical "Cheer Up!"

"Well," answered Peter, "we could say 'Joey Bishop is hosting the show tonight but Cheer Up, Johnny will be back tomorrow!' "

You could make up your own Cheer Up. "Things are bad in Washington, but Cheer Up! Agnew might still be Vice President." Marshall has been creating Cheer Ups for years on various TV programs. In his book he says, "Cheer Up! Money isn't everything ... J. Paul Getty once said, 'I wish I had a better personality.' "

"How is Cliff?" I naturally had to ask, meaning Cliff Arquette alias Charlie Weaver.

"Cliff is walking!" Peter said. "He had a massive stroke. He is in a wheel chair most of the time, but he can walk around. He has a girl friend. He always does."

"Who replaces Wally Cox?"

"Nobody!" said Peter, and then added, "A lot of people thought Wally was a suicide, but he couldn't have been. I know. Wally was into lighting and wiring as a hobby lately and he was in the middle of wiring a good friend's house. Wally would never have done anything like that in the middle of a job! Wally was a real upper, now a downer.

"Wally Cox was never briefed. He never wanted to hear anything. His lack of information about modern music amused me. He wouldn't have recognized 'Stardust.' I called him 'Mr. Music.'

"A lot of people think wakes are pagan, but I thought the wake for Wally was beautiful. For Wally was one of the truly dear men. He never rapped anybody. He was, you remember, a goldsmith, and it was Maureen Stapleton and Marlon Brando who coerced him into doing a night club act and becoming 'Mr. Peppers.'

"He polished rocks as a hobby and after that he rubbed them by hand. At the wake his wife Pat had rocks from Wally for us. They were for Wally's friends. I have a handful."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: With talk of power cuts to save electricity, Morty Gunty thinks Washington's plan is "The public be dimmed."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: One newspaper's been hit so hard by the paper shortage that they had to squeeze a profile photo of Raquel Welch into one column.

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Modern paintings are like women — you'll never enjoy them if you try to understand them."

EARL'S PEARLS: A man asked his congressman for a job and the politico said, "There aren't any — but I'll set up a committee to see why there are no jobs, and you can head it."

Director George Abbott still likes to play golf occasionally, though he's 86. "And," says a friend, "if he's asked about his game he can say truthfully he plays in the 80s." That's earl, brother.

Injury cancels Marlene show

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — Entertainer Marlene Dietrich has cancelled her show at the Valley Forge Music Fair because of an injury she suffered last Wednesday, officials said Saturday.

Miss Dietrich, 71, suffered a leg injury when she fell at the Shady Grove Music Fair in Gaithesburg, Md., officials said.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Pheasant season opens Saturday

California's 23-day pheasant-hunting season will begin next Saturday. In the northern part of the state, hunters will be gunning for native birds, but in the arid south, the Department of Fish and Game will have to release birds, both roosters and hens, for the shotgunners.

Southern California and the Owens Valley get a fairly large quota this year, with a total of 18,900 ringnecks, one-half of which will be roosters and the others hens. Of that number, 2,600 will be released in Owens Valley between Bishop and Manzanar.

Naturally, the DFG is not going to tell hunters the exact addresses where the birds will be released, but it will be easy to find out by checking with sporting goods stores in the area. The DFG depends largely on local people to designate the best places for the ringnecks to hide once they are released.

The DFG plans to release 1,600 birds in the Palo Verde Valley along the Colorado River south of Blythe; 1,000 birds on farmlands surrounding the town of Bard, seven miles north of Winterhaven.

The largest part of the Southland birds will be turned loose on farmlands in Imperial Valley, from Niland and Westmoreland south through the Calexico area. Specific release locations in the Imperial Valley will depend on crop and field conditions.

THE PHEASANT-release program is certainly not one of the most popular with the department, nor with many hunters. Yet, there is enough pressure from certain hunting groups to cause the department to release birds that the DFG must buy from private breeders. The DFG went out of the pheasant-breeding business several years ago.

Those hunters who don't like the idea of releasing birds that, at best, can't fly more than a couple of hundred feet, sometimes not at all, say that the whole program is a waste of money. On the other hand, the man who can kill two birds in about the same number of minutes when the pheasants are released is "hot" for the program.

The department points out that most of the birds are released on farm and ranch lands which will be open to hunters through agreements with property owners. If hunters do not observe certain safety rules and show consideration for property, the DFG could end the plants.

Favored sites in Imperial Valley will be the alfalfa fields or harvested milo areas where no crop damage will result from hunting activities. Members of the Imperial County Fish and Game Commission will help the DFG with the planting work.

IN ORDER to keep the planting program operative and to help the land owners who cooperate with the DFG, the department's Southern California regional manager, Robert Montgomery offers the following suggestions for hunters:

Avoid hunting near buildings and residences of any kind.

Don't hunt in wet irrigated field or damage irrigation furrows.

Don't hunt in or near fields where livestock are present.

Don't hunt in unharvested cotton fields.

Don't drag chains through field in an effort to flush out ringnecks.

Finally, don't leave trash or litter behind you.

Montgomery also had one other suggestion that is highly important:

Don't forget that you need a valid hunting license, plus a $2 pheasant tag.

Licenses, stamps and copies of the hunting regulations can be obtained at nearly all sporting goods stores throughout the state and at all DFG offices.

The regional office for Long Beach, as well as the Marine Resources Region, is situated at 350 Golden Shore.

Hunters may take two birds of either sex in the counties of Mono, Inyo, San Bernardino, Riverside, Imperial, San Diego, Orange, Los Angeles, Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo. You may have four in possession after the first day, but that does not mean you can kill four birds in one day. You may kill two birds that day and have two in storage from the previous day.

HUNTERS in the northern part of California may take only male pheasants. The limit is two per day, but the possession limit is four after the first day. Again, that regulation does not mean that you can shoot four per day. Two in the field and two in the locker from the previous day's kill.

Legal shooting hours will be from 8 a.m. to sunset, a variation from the wild turkey season presently in Progress.

Jumping from hunting to fishing, the City of Pacifica dedicated its new fishing pier Saturday with a fishing derby and other events in a day-long program. Even though the pier is far out of our own territory, it's worth mentioning because this state's Wildlife Conservation Board, Pacifica and the Federal Land and Water Conservation Fund all were involved in the construction of the pier that cost $2,226,000 and took two years to build.

Dinah's in search of the ideal man — on TV, that is

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

DINAH SHORE...10 men in her TV special

You watch Dinah Shore on television and it strikes you that, gee, here's a gal with just about the perfect personality.

Then you get a chance to meet her and — what do you know? — she doesn't disappoint you in the least.

I had that pleasure the other day, and I'm here to tell you that Dinah is just as charming and radiant in person as she is on the tube. From the moment she walks over to be introduced until the time you leave, she makes you feel as though she's delighted to see you and to talk with you. Of all the TV stars I've interviewed, she came across as probably the most natural, the most genuine, the most at-ease subject.

She was as warm as a summer day in her native Tennessee, despite the fact that she was extremely busy, taking a break between a rehearsal and the taping of three of her half-hour "Dinah's Place" shows in one afternoon for morning airing on NBC (Channel 4).

OH, PERHAPS not everyone goes for the Southern lady's brand of charm. Wasn't it Dinah about whom Oscar Levant once said his doctor had ordered him not to watch her because of his diabetes? And that he wished she'd take sadness lessons? Or was it Doris Day?

Never mind — the remarks no doubt said a lot more about Levant than they did about the lady, anyway.

Dinah's warmth seems genuine not only to me but to millions of television viewers, and it has helped to make her TV's most enduring female singer and one of its most enduring of all personalities. She had her own TV show as early as 1951 and she ruled the Sunday night airwaves from 1956 to 1961 with the hour-long "Dinah Shore Show." And, before television, she had been a radio star (three years on Eddie Cantor's show, among others), a recording star (her records outsold everyone's except Frank Sinatra's during World War II) and a movie star.

TO SEE HER today is to make it difficult to realize that Frances Rose (Dinah) Shore has been brightening the American entertainment scene as long as she has. For, as I discovered the other day, the TV tube doesn't lie: Miss Shore looks as young in person as she does on television. Little wonder, then, with her vivaciousness and beauty, that she has been the romantic interest the past couple of years of the much younger Burt Reynolds.

The reason for my interview was to discuss a TV special Miss Shore is doing for Timex, titled "Dinah in Search of the Ideal Man." It will air from 9:30 to 10:30 p.m. next Sunday, Nov. 18, on NBC, following a Frank Sinatra special on the same network.

I VISITED the blonde entertainer on the big soundstage at KTLA (Channel 5 in Hollywood) where her "Dinah's Place" series is taped. The show airs on Channel 4, but NBC didn't have room for a permanent set at its Burbank Studios. On the set at KTLA are replicas of the interiors of a number of the rooms in her Beverly Hills home, and they are left standing the year-round. The kitchen is particularly important, because many of the shows originate in that room.

After watching Dinah rehearse a song number with a combo for 15 or 20 minutes, I was introduced to her and we went to her dressing room-office inside the soundstage, with a couple of publicists, and chatted for 30 or 40 minutes, counting interruptions by two phone calls.

Since the energetic songstress long has been known as one of the most avid tennis players in showbiz (partner Spiro Agnew once gave the devout Democrat a black eye by hitting her with a ball), I led off by asking about her game and about the Billie Jean King-Bobby Riggs match. She watched much of the match on the sound stage and said she didn't like Rosemary Casals' vitriolic commentary. "I can accept almost anything that's done with a sense of humor," she said, "but Rosie was humorless."

Dinah said Riggs had talked her into a $100 bet when appearing on her show several days before the match, "and sure enough I got his money in the mail a few days after he lost."

With a private court at her home, she plays tennis as frequently as her busy schedule permits. Says she: "It's the greatest way for me to keep physically — and mentally — fit."

ALL OF DINAH'S guests on her special are males. She named them off for me — Ed Asner, Mike Douglas, Peter Graves, Andy Griffith, Don Knotts, Ricardo Montalban, Telly Savalas, McLean Stevenson, Danny Thomas "and Burt." There was something about the way she said "Burt" that let you know he is special. And she knew it wasn't necessary to mention his last name.

Darling Dinah appears separately with her 10 guest stars in humorous sketches illustrating various aspects of the ideal man, including "The Man Who Remembers" (Graves), "The Ideal Dancer" (Montalban), "The Decisive Man" (Savalas), "The Unavailable Man" (Griffith), "The Man You've Got" (Thomas) and "The Ideal Lover" (Knotts).

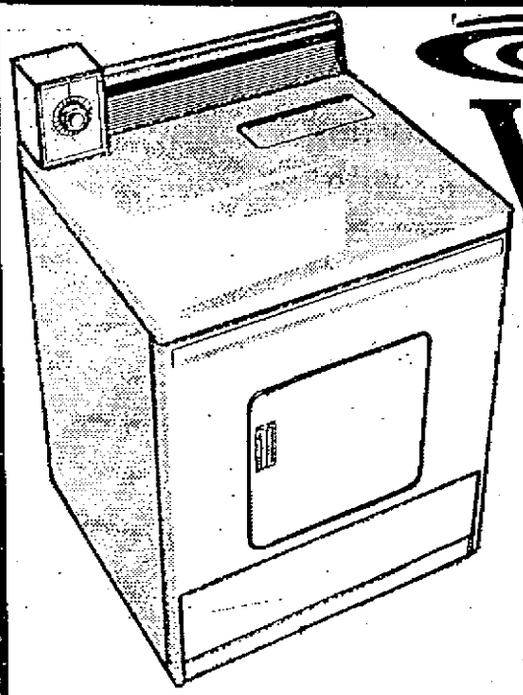

"The show is quite different from anything I've done before," Miss Shore told me. "The laughs come not from joke lines, but from the situation. We cover just about all the things that happen in a man-woman relationship."

AFTER BEING WED 18 years to actor George Montgomery and then for two years to Palm Springs contractor-tennis enthusiast Maurice Smith, Dinah has been single since 1965 but has been linked closely to Reynolds ever since he made two appearances on "Dinah's Place" in 1971. When asked about his nude centerfold portrait in Cosmopolitan, her comment was: "It didn't do him justice."

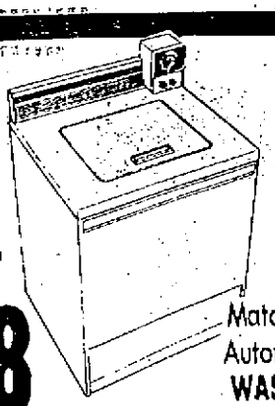

"In view of the title of your special," I said to Dinah, "I feel I must ask if your own search for the ideal man has been successful."

"Ideal man? There's no such animal," she replied. "And the ideal for one woman wouldn't be the ideal for another. The ideal man is many men."

Her answer wasn't especially convincing; perhaps she has found the ideal man for her. And I imagine many men would consider the multitalented Dinah to be the ideal woman. I salute her with her goodnight trademark of old: "Mmm-wah!"

'Today' still winning ratings war

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — The sun was just rising when they turned the lights on "Today." But NBC's studio 3-K already had come to air-conditioned life in its artificial dawn.

Frank McGee, Barbara Walters and Gene Shalit sat behind the large desk they share on camera. A few yards away, newscasters Frank Blair manned his desk, silently inspecting his news copy.

The floor director's countdown began, a red light atop one of three color TV cameras flashed on and at 7 a.m. "Today" commenced in pretty much the same low-key way it's been going since 1952.

It was seen on 27 stations then. Now it's on 226, still running two hours a day, five days a week.

AND IT'S STILL winning the dawn ratings patrol to the dismay of CBS, which dispatched Sally Quinn and Hughes Rudd to the "CBS Morning News" last Aug. 6 amid much publicity that has yet to produce the larger audience CBS had hoped for.

Although "Today" seems as natural as a yawn, it's about as casual as a Kabuki dance in format and as simple in preparation as dinner for 12 on five minute's notice.

The man who puts it all together, aided by a 28-member production and editorial staff, is Stuart Schulberg, a short, barrel-chested ex-newspaperman born in Los Angeles 51 years ago.

He's the executive producer of "Today," and took over the show in late 1969, when timeliness wasn't exactly its strong point.

"WHEN I GOT HERE, the programs tended to be booked with guests and completely blocked out a month ahead of time," said Schulberg, a soft-voiced, intense man whose office contains two Emmy statues, among other things.

"Only under the most urgent news developments were alterations made," he said. "The main responsibility of reflecting the news was left to the hard news package. He referred to the approximately 30 minutes of current news and weather — divided into segments that run each half-hour — that Frank Blair still reads each weekday.

"I've taken a position that we should be ready to turn the program inside out overnight," said Schulberg, who had done just that twice in the week he was interviewed.

STUART SCHULBERG is executive producer of NBC's "Today" show.

MONDAY'S scheduled show that week was scrapped over the weekend because of the outbreak of war in the Middle East. Schulberg's troops toiled all Sunday, writing, editing, lining up interviews and devoted Monday's new show to the Middle East situation.

Two days later, Vice President Agnew resigned. Out went Thursday's planned show, "Today" was shifted to Washington and the new show dwelt almost exclusively on the Agnew story.

Schulberg noted that the show now moves out of New York more in the often than in the past. He cited the Washington move as an example, and pointed out that last year it was done in six key states during presidential primary elections.

"So again, that's a reflection of making the program more nes-related than it had been," he said.

ON QUIET DAYS, when no crises requiring scrapped shows are about, Schulberg follows each morning with a 10 a.m. staff meeting to discuss stories and possible "Today" guests.

When they choose a guest, one of the show's staff writers is assigned to research the subject and "pre-interview" same.

From this comes a brief

EXPANDS COVERAGE FOR WEDDING

NBC Television Network's "Today" program, which will carry a full report of the wedding in Westminster Abbey of Princess Anne of England and Capt. Mark Phillips Wednesday, live via satellite, has been expanded and will be on the air for five hours (5-10 a.m. PT) that day. "Today" normally is colorcast for two hours (7-9 a.m.).

Barbara Walters, who is featured on "Today," will be in London to provide an eyewitness report through the facilities of BBC Television. She also will report on preliminary festivities earlier this week.

sketch of the subject and a list of possible questions for whoever does the interviewing on the show.

The "pre-interviews" aren't usually done in the case of the more prominent guests, such as top political figures.

As you might expect, it isn't too hard to persuade most top government and congressional figures to brave the dawn for a live interview on "Today," according to Schulberg.

THE "TODAY" show, by Schulberg's estimate, costs an average of $100,000 a week to produce. It's paid for by commercials, some of which are read by McGee, Miss Walters, Shalit and Blair.

On the Oct. 12 show, for example, Miss Walters appeared in four commercials and read the introduction to another, while Shalit and Blair each introduced one commercial.

Doesn't the touting of such wares as dog food, carpets, cameras and such by the "Today" cast lessen their credibility as news reporters or, in Shalit's case, as an arts and book critic?

Some critics beef about it, says Schulberg, but it hasn't affected the show's popularity. He says the practice is a holdover from the days when "Today" was run by NBC's program department and not its news department, as now is the case.

HE SAID THE appearance of the "Today" stars in commercials "is extremely important to the program because that identification between the talent and a commercial message is desirable from the point of view of the sponsor."

TV NOTEBOOK

By RICH DU BROW

Some well-known personalities are showing different sides of their skills on television these days.

Jim Nabors is an example. Basically a comedian and singer over the years, he turns up Nov. 19 on ABC's police series "The Rookies" in a dramatic role. The network describes the role as that of a "frightened, would-be assassin of a famous Western singer whom he holds responsible for the death of his kid sister."

Then there is Pat Boone. Taking on a change of pace from his singing career, he also will be seen soon in a dramatic portrayal on ABC in the Nov. 28 episode of the "Owen Marshall, Counselor At Law" series. The network describes his part as that of "a junior high school principal, embroiled in a child custody fight with his estranged wife, who accuses him of having a romantic affair with a 15-year-old girl."

On Nov. 23, young Richard Thomas, who stars as John-Boy in the enormously successful CBS weekly program "The Waltons," will be seen on the network in a very different kind of role. He will be the host-narrator for the D'Oyle Carte production of the Gilbert and Sullivan comic opera "H.M.S. Pinafore," a 90-minute presentation of the periodic series entitled "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People."

PAT BOONE has a dramatic role on an upcoming "Owen Marshall" series episode on ABC.

And then there is Karen Valentine, who is seen regularly on the ABC series "Room 222," which is set in a high school. On Nov. 12, she will be guest host of NBC's "Tonight" show, filling in for Johnny Carson.

The BIBLE Says

Question: What about astrology?

Astrology supposes the influence of the heavenly bodies upon human affairs, and involves the practice of divining events from astronomical observations. The Bible condemns astrology by principle and by name. Those who respect the teaching of the Bible reject this superstition.

Through Moses, in the O.T., God revealed His attitude toward various occult practices: "There shall not be found among you anyone who . . . uses divination, one who practices witchcraft, or one who interprets omens, or a sorcerer, or one who casts a spell, or a medium, or a spiritist, or one who calls up the dead. For whoever does these things is detestable to the Lord" (Deut. 18:10-12 NASV). The worthlessness of astrology is indicated in Isaiah 47:12-14, where the Lord challenged, "Stand now with thine enchantments, and with the multitude of thy sorceries . . . Let now the astrologers, the stargazers, the monthly prognosticators, stand up, and save thee . . . Behold, they shall be as stubble; the fire shall burn them; they shall not deliver themselves from the power of the flame." Sorcery, which is connected with astrology in the O.T., is condemned as sin which will send its practitioners to hell (Gal. 5:19-21).

Astrology gradually enslaves the lives of those who are intrigued by it. Astrology de-emphasizes the Son (of God) and substitutes the sun, moon and stars (planets). Astrology supports a host of fakes, crooks and charlatans. Astrology is associated, both in the Bible and in practice, with the occult, sorcery, and various kinds of superstition. Those who respect the teaching of the Bible will have nothing but disdain for astrology.

Some suppose there is real power and reality behind modern sorcery, astrology, necromancy, palmistry, etc. If so, it is evil, for God has condemned these practices. Many say there is nothing to astrology, then read their "horoscopes" for mere amusement. But experience shows that what has often begun as an "innocent pastime" ends as a sinful obsession that has enslaved its victims.

Lorne Greene is confident 'Griff' will gain momentum

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lorne Greene's new television series, "Griff," has started the season as a flop.

For a star accustomed to being at the top of the ratings in "Bonanza," Greene is less shook up by the lowly estate of his new show than one might expect. After all, none of the new shows is in the golden circle.

The man who virtually became Ben Cartwright, father figure of the Ponderosa Ranch for 14 years, is confident "Griff" will gain momentum.

" 'Bonanza' started off the same way," Greene said at Universal Studios where the series is filmed. "We were cancelled before we went on the air. NBC saw the first few shows and decided it wouldn't work. But they gave it a try anyhow, and it took more than a year to catch on.

" 'Griff' is off to a slow start. The character of the show was changed from the ideas I agreed to in the beginning.

"Until recently the stories were a puzzle and I was the guy with the key. The producers wanted me to play a detective, and I wanted to play a human being. Gradually they're giving Griff some character traits.

"Bonanza's" stories always were secondary to the inter-relationships among Papa Cartwright and his sons Hoss and Little Joe.

As "Griff," Greene is a loner and must carry every episode.

The effects of the added burden show in the actor's face. He is working at least thrice as hard as he ever did on "Bonanza."

"I don't mind hard work," he said. "I want what I'm going to be first class and though provoking. I asked the writers what Griff does at night on his own time, and they didn't have an answer. To be successful, Griff must be made into a well-rounded man.

"George Bernard Shaw once said that you've got to tell the audience what the play is all about at least eight times during the performance so they will understand the story. He was right.

"I had expected Griff to be a family man and have things going for him aside from the plot. The Cartwrights were ranchers but who ever saw them ranching. Griff is a detective but I want him to have a private life."

Eight episodes of the new series have already been completed. Without exception, according to Greene, they have been mediocre.

"The ideal way to make a series is to film the first 13 segments and then throw them away and start from scratch," Greene said, only half kidding.

how to take the guesswork out of drink mixing

If you'd like to shine as mixologist for your Happy Hour crowd . . . but if you panic as the group grows or a guest asks for a drink you've never made before . . . here's help. Just save this special supplement. It takes the work — and the guesswork — out of mixing superb drinks. What's more, it shows how to get a giant astrology chart you can hang up to brighten party conversation . . . and it even suggests a special drink for each friend's Zodiac sign.

This guide contains some great mixing tips and secrets of the "pros," yet the recipes are simple and easy to follow. You'll enjoy offering friends famous cocktails mixed the way they're made at top spots across the nation. You'll be able to expertly mix drinks made with all the popular basic liquors: whiskey, Scotch, vodka, gin, rum, Southern Comfort. Try a few. You'll be amazed at how easy it is, and how much better your drinks are. One of the most valuable tips is right here on this page . . .

how to improve your favorite mixed drinks

What is SOUTHERN COMFORT?

Although it's used just like an ordinary whiskey, Southern Comfort tastes much different than any other basic liquor. It tastes good, right out of the bottle. And there's a reason. In the days of old New Orleans, a talented gentleman was disturbed by the taste of even the finest whiskeys of his day. So he combined rare and delicious ingredients to create a superb, unusually smooth, special kind of basic liquor. Thus Southern Comfort was born! Its formula is still a family secret — its delicious taste still unmatched by any other liquor. Try a bottle!

The taste of any mixed drink is controlled by the flavor of the liquor you use as a base. Therefore, you can improve many drinks simply by "switching" the basic liquor called for in a recipe — to one with a more satisfying taste. To understand why this improves your drinks . . .

MAKE THIS SIMPLE TASTE TEST

Pour a jigger of Bourbon or Scotch over cracked ice in a short glass. Sip it. Then do the same with Southern Comfort. Sip it . . . and you've found a completely different basic liquor, one that tastes good with nothing added.

No wonder many experts "switch" to Southern Comfort to improve many drink recipes. It adds a deliciousness no other basic liquor can. S.C. tastes great straight, like a "cocktail" right out of the bottle (many prefer it that way, or on-the-rocks). That's why it makes many mixed drinks taste better, too (even tall drinks like a Collins or Julep).

Prove it to yourself. Try any of the popular drinks shown at right. First make one the ordinary way; then make the same drink with Southern Comfort. Compare them. The improvement in taste will surprise you . . . and please you.

make both recipes for any of these drinks

Then compare them . . . you'll be convinced.

the Sour

the ordinary Sour

½ jigger fresh lemon juice

1 jigger (1½ oz.) Bourbon or rye

Shake with cracked ice; strain into glass. Add orange slice on rim of glass and a cherry. Now mix this drink using the Southern Comfort recipe at right. See how the simple switch in basic liquor greatly improves this famous drink.

the smoother Sour

⅓ jigger fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon sugar
1 jigger (1½ oz.) Southern Comfort

Mix just like the ordinary recipe. But you'll enjoy it much more. The liquor's delicious flavor makes it the smoothest sour ever.

COMFORT* COLLINS, eclipses Miami's moon at Hotel Fontainebleau, Miami Beach

Most heavenly drink under the sun, when it's time for a Happy Hour tall one.

illuminating Back-Bar Secrets from Star Mixologists

HIGHBALL: Easy to make—jigger of liquor, ice, soda or water. But easy to ruin—ice must be fresh; soda, dry or sweet, must be top quality and cold (it holds carbonation better). Bottled spring water is better than tap water. For a truly tremendous highball, try this one:

COMFORT* HIGHBALL
1 jigger (1½ oz.) Southern Comfort • sparkling water
Twist of lemon peel or juice of ¼ lime (optional)

Pour Southern Comfort over ice cubes; add lime or lemon. Fill with sparkling water and stir.

ON-THE-ROCKS: If you appreciate a fine liquor's taste, pour a jiggerful over ice cubes in a short glass. Hint: small cubes chill drink faster; twist of lemon peel adds piquancy. For variety, try this:

MIST: Fill short glass with crushed ice; add jigger of liquor, twist of lemon peel. This slight dilution frees more of the liquor's true flavor.

EASIEST WAY to enjoy Southern Comfort is in these simple drinks above. It's here that a fine liquor's real flavor comes through. So it's no wonder that so many Southern Comfort fans enjoy it this way best. Its natural flavor tastes so good by itself.

Never guess, measure, for best results. Basic measures are: jigger, 1½ oz.; pony, 1 oz.; dash, 4-6 drops.

When to shake, when to stir: In general, stir drinks made with clear liquors. Shake those made with hard-to-blend ingredients like fruit juice. For "frothy collar" on drinks like a Sour, add tbspn. egg white before shaking.

Which comes first? As a rule, add sugar, fruit juice and other ingredients first, then the liquor. But in carbonated drinks, add ice, liquor, then the mix.

Ice is important! Use fresh ice; change for each round, and don't skimp. For best results, buy packaged ice, free of chemicals, air bubbles and impurities. It's crystal clear, slower melting; makes drinks taste and look better!

How much liquor? Figure each guest for four 1-jigger drinks (total, 6 oz.); it will average out. See chart for how much you'll need. 1 pint = 16 oz.; 1 fifth = 25.6 oz.; 1 quart = 32 oz.

No. of Persons*	4	6	10	12
Total No. of Oz.	24	36	60	72
No. of Fifths	1	1½	2½	3
No. of Quarts	¾	1¼	2	2½

East of Eden

The horses were curious but cautious. They waited a while after we had left the helicopter in the field, then moved to it slowly. When it failed to react, they became bolder. Soon they were nuzzling the Plexiglas bubble with their soft mouths and testing the rotor like a bit in their teeth.

A quarter of a mile away from us, they did not make a sound to break the great silence. Beyond the horses, the afternoon sun threw a thousand glittering prisms on the surface the Pacific, also too far away to make a sound as it tried to fill the empty coves, failed and withdrew, then tried again.

Behind us the mute, stony face of the mountain.

We stood in shadow of the cool eucalypti near the ranch headquarters. A hundred feet above us the tops of the trees stirred in an unheard wind. Dick LaRue had been telling us of his plans to keep the Hollister Ranch unspoiled, but somehow his voice, too, had given way to the silence.

We stood and watched the horses, and listened to the silence echo from the mountain, and smelled the spicy, tomcat odor of the eucalyptus, and felt the huge oaks grow a little taller and the earth turn a little closer to the night.

Then Dick told the pilot, "You better shoo those horses away from the 'copter. I saw a couple of curious horses tear the roof off a convertible one time."

"Not much they can do to a helicopter," the pilot said.

For a hundred years the Hollister — 30 miles north of Santa Barbara — was a working cattle ranch. Now it is being turned into a sort of wild life refuge for endangered species; to wit, bear, deer, cougar, blue heron and millionaires. Well, maybe not just millionaires, but people with enough money to put out $100,000 to $400,000 for a 100-acre plot of land.

It was Dick LaRue's idea. Texas-born he has been in the ranching business all his life. One by one he has watched ranches give way to population growth and urbanization. He had a spread in Riverside County, and the bikers came and cut his fences and put their treadmarks all over his hills and beer cans in his canyons.

When the Hollister Ranch came up for sale he had this idea. Keep it as an entity by selling 100-acre parcels to people who loved the land for what it was. Put easements on it giving the owners the right to hike or ride on all of its 14,400 acres. But no motorbikes, no hunters, no Sunday picnickers with spray cans to immortalize their initials. No Sunday beachgoers with 10,000 transitor radios fertilizing the sand with potato chip crumbs.

There seems to be a market; the parcels are selling. Jim Arnett, TV's Matt Dillon, has built a house on his spread and is completing a barn. Horse and cattle breeding and nonoffensive types of agriculture are permitted. One owner is experimenting with raising wine grapes.

LaRue himself raises avocados and protea plants, natives of Africa that produces handsome but expensive cut flowers much fancied by floral arrangers.

"The parcel purchasers are younger than I thought they'd be," LaRue said, "Mostly in their 40s. Mostly professional people; we've got a lot of physicians. A lot of them bought places up in Tahoe, or in Hawaii, but they found they weren't really getting away from it all. People crowded in next to them and condominiums and highrises blocked their view. That'll never happen here."

He looks out into the great silence past the oak and eucalyptus where the sea horizon marks the empty beaches and thinks a moment.

"This isn't for everyone. You've got to love nature. You've got to be able to sometimes think like a deer or a tree. Most of all, you've got to be able to live within you're own skin, to live with yourself."

He smiles.

"I plan to spend the rest of my life here, but I suppose I'll have to adjust. I've never lived on a spread this small."

The pilot comes back from the helicopter.

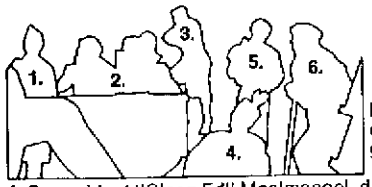

"Those horses scratched the Plexiglas with their teeth," he says, "What do you think of that?"

asked that!

By HY GARDNER

Q: Didn't Johnny Carson's wife appear in the Richard Burton-Liz Taylor TV specials, "Divorce His and Divorce Hers"? — Mrs. Imogene K., Sacramento, Calif.

A: Nay. It was Carrie Nye, Dick Cavett's wife. Carrie didn't care very much about working with Burton. Citing her first day of filming, she said, "My chore was to be introduced to Himself and launch without further ado into a long, loud and boring scene during which I was to be obstreperous, a general nuisance, 'drunk as a billy goat.' All went as anticipated except for one detail. The star had beaten me to the punch. Or, if you will, the stirrup cup. And so ended the first day. Also the second, third and fourth days, etc."

Q: Has any scientist invented a rechargeable pacemaker for those of us who use one? If so, to whom do I write? Also, how many cardiac patients now wear pacemakers? — James R. T., Cincinnati.

A: At least 250,000. And, yes, the successful use of new rechargeable implanted cardiac pacemakers was recently reported by scientists at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. Your heart doctor will give you the details. The new devices, recharged weekly through the intact skin, eliminate the need for repeated surgery to replace the batteries in conventional pacemakers.

Q: I've heard that, when Shirley Temple was a child star, she wasn't permitted to eat candy. Any truth to this? — Mrs. Priscilla Prichet, Tuscon, Ariz.

A: Yes. Instead of candy, her dessert was chocolate blancmange. Concocted with six tablespoons of arrowroot (instead of cornstarch), one quart of milk, one cup of sugar, a half teaspoon of salt and two squares of grated cheese.

Q: Unless my memory is playing tricks, didn't Mahatma Gandhi, the spiritual Indian leader, die of starvation during one of his prolonged protest fasts? — William K., Baltimore.

A: No. The saintly independence leader was shot fatally in New Delhi in 1948. He was 78. Though his Hindu assassin was seized almost immediately, riots in Bombay aroused fears of a new wave of violence throughout India.

Q: My children and I are taxing our brains trying to recall who were the members of the original cast of Mission Impossible. Is it possible for you to tell us? — Dros M. Andre, Cherokee, Iowa.

A: That is a possible mission. In 1967 Peter Graves succeeded Steven Hill as the leader of the group. Hill, after the first year, had relinquished the role because of "religious beliefs." (He had to work on Fridays.) Others in the original cast included Barbara Bain, Martin Landau, Greg Morris and Peter Lupus.

The Polish black market's no joke!

By TEDD THOMEY

Let's make a ridiculous assumption. Let's assume that while you're strolling along Pine Avenue in downtown Long Beach, a nervous stranger approaches and offers to give you a $10 bill for $5.

You do not have to be tapped on the skull with a mallet to realize that the day of such miracles has yet to dawn. Your reaction will be quick and logical. The anxious stranger is obviously a crook or a mental case.

Double your money for nothing? Oh, sure. And while you're at it, fella, how about turning lead into gold and glass into diamonds?

So you can see how flabbergasted I was recently when a nervous young man approached and actually offered me that miracle. Looking furtively over his shoulder, he offered to trade me the equivalent of $2 in cash for every $1 in my pocket.

Furthermore, I went for it — and actually did double my money. Lead into gold? Glass into diamonds? It happens to Southern Californians every day if they're fortunate enough to visit Poland.

It happened to me in downtown Warsaw. And the young man who traded with me had every reason to be nervous because he boldly offered me that law-breaking good deal in broad daylight at high noon near a busy boulevard, only a short distance from where a uniformed police officer had made an arrest 10 minutes previously.

Later I was to learn that such black market currency trading is commonplace in Communist Poland and that scores of traders are thrown into jail. I also caught hell from my redheaded wife who told me — with her usual good wisdom — that I was a fool to run the risk of being booted into a Communist cell.

Despite such hazards, thousands of zlotys in Polish money are traded for dollars every day. My subsequent investigation revealed that Poland's socialist economy is so topsy-turvy that part of the country operates — in secret — on dollars instead of zlotys.

This is an amazing reversal. The pitifully weakened dollar, shunned and scorned everywhere else in Europe, is sought by Poles like a rare jewel.

Now let me go back a bit and tell you the events which led up to that thrilling, totally unexpected scene in July when my wife, our teen-aged daughter and I met the first of three black market traders near the broad front entrance to our solid, respectable hotel, the Warszawa.

We had arrived in Poland the previous afternoon with our Gateway/Holidays bus tour group of about 40, mostly Southern Californians. Before being permitted to enter at the border from Russia, we were required to sign statements listing the exact amounts of U.S. and foreign currency that we were bringing into Poland.

That money count was a big thing, by far the most important event of the border crossing. But at the time, unaware of Poland's problems with the currency black market, we didn't understand why it was so necessary. We were instructed to count our money with the greatest accuracy and to make no attempt to conceal any, because our pockets and baggage might be subjected to spot checks.

We were warned that any one of us could be taken rudely off our bus and forced to count his money in front of the official border inspectors. If his money total didn't match the figures on his signed statement, all kinds of dreadful punishments might be meted out.

None of us argued. We meekly did what we were told. Crossing the border into a Communist country can be a lengthy process, filled with anxieties and tensions. The security is awesome. Soldiers are on duty everywhere, armed with pistols and machine guns. Everyone is grim-faced.

Our Southern California tour group was normally talkative and full of wisecracks and laughter. But during our crossing from the USSR into Poland we were all strangely quiet and serious. Each of us remembered very well an ugly incident which occurred the previous week when we crossed the Finnish-Russian border.

ZLOTYS

A Communist inspector discovered that one man in our group wore a supposedly secret — but obviously too fat — money belt, packed with U.S. currency. There was a terrible furor and much loud talk as the Russian inspector made the American remove the belt and count all the dollars.

Fortunately, the total matched that on the American's signed statement. The incident left our fellow passenger, a man in his 60s, white-faced and shaken, certain that he had come within an inch of being whisked to a lonely exile on the farthest, coldest side of Siberia.

On the second day of our stay in Warsaw, we went sightseeing in the morning, returning to our hotel about 11:45 a.m. While we were taking shots of the hotel's classic old Greco-Roman exterior, an accident occurred. While backing up to unload some coal, a heavy dump truck struck and damaged a traffic sign.

Within moments a police officer appeared. He berated the truck driver and fined him a certain number of zlotys. Then he collected the fine in cash from the driver, and gave him a receipt.

After watching all the action, we went into the hotel's lobby and visited its state-operated bank to exchange some of our traveler's checks into zlotys. The day's official rate was posted near the window — 30 zlotys for $1. Near that sign was another, in English as well as Polish. It warned us that trading for currency anywhere but at an official bank at the official rate was punishable by a fine, imprisonment or both.

By then it was noon and the bank was closed while its employes went to lunch. We turned away disappointed, but decided to go shopping anyway, hoping to find a bank open somewhere else.

As we went outside and walked along the hotel's portico, a young man approached. He was in his mid-20s and neatly dressed. He wore a small mustache and his hair was short and well-trimmed.

He came up to me and asked in perfect English, "Do you have any dollars? We will pay 60."

He was extremely nervous and kept glancing here and there. I wasn't sure that I had heard him right. So I said, "What did you say?"

"We will pay 60," he repeated. "Do you have any dollars?"

Until that moment, I hadn't dreamed that there was a black money market in Poland. During the next few seconds, my mind flopped around like a fish out of water. At first my buttondown Long Beach logic couldn't mesh with the Polish logic that was being presented to me.

Part of my brain realized that he was nervously offering me double the official exchange rate. Another part of my brain kept warning me to slow down, flashing this message in big red lights:

Be careful. This may be a trick. It is scientifically and economically impossible for one dollar to suddenly become two!

But I was terribly tempted. For years in novels and in the movies I had witnessed glamorous scenes of fortunes being made in the black market. Here was a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity for an ordinary journalist from ordinary Long Beach to make an extraordinary transaction and perhaps collect some facts for a magazine story.

I quickly realized that the only American cash I had was five $1 bills. The rest of the currency in my wallet was American Express travelers checks. So I said to myself, "What the heck. Be a shooter. All you can lose is $5." And in Europe in '73 that's a piddling amount of money.

My wife was practically shocked out of her socks when she heard her normally law-abiding husband tell the young man almost calmly, "All I've got is five. OK?"

He nodded and signaled to a man who had been standing nearby, just out of my sight. The second man was also in his mid-20s. He was a burly six-footer, broad-shouldered and massive, roughly dressed. He was the money carrier. He produced a tremendous, rolled-up bundle of zlotys.

The transaction was completed in a few seconds. I gave the first man my five $1 bills, and the big tough guy peeled off three colorful red-tinted bills that were 100 zlotys each. I noticed that they both glanced at the nearby busy intersection a couple of times, undoubtedly checking with an accomplice stationed at the corner who was there as a lookout to warn of approaching police.

As we walked briskly around the corner of the hotel, another neatly dressed young man stopped us and asked, in excellent English, if we had any dollars to trade for zlotys. By that time I was so nervous about being arrested that I gave him a loud NO! and began walking faster.

My wife didn't say a word until we were a couple of blocks from the hotel. Then she blew her top. My argument that I was a daring reporter working on an unusual story was shot down in flames as she told me what an idiot I was to break the law only a few steps from where that Polish policeman had cited the truck driver minutes before. Then she demanded, "And what about that statement you signed at the border? What will you do when your money total is greater than what you put down?"

My teen-aged daughter also let me have a few blasts, pointing out that any policeman could now arrest me and drag all three of us in for questioning — or worse — because the total in my wallet was an unlawful amount. They shook their heads angrily when I tried to point out that all I had to do was spend the illegal money and I would again be in the clear.

The money began to feel so hot in my pocket that I wanted to get rid of it as soon as possible. After a fairly long search, we found an excellent restaurant, the Odra on Marszalkowska Street, where — under the merciless gaze of my wife and daughter — I inspected the three 100 zloty bills to see if they were counterfeit. To my inexpert eye, they seemed to be all right.

We had delectable halibut luncheons served in a semi-luxurious atmosphere for the equivalent of 42 cents each, a startling contrast to luncheons in other European countries which were $4 and $5 each. As a restaurant columnist, I was delighted to find such a remarkably inexpensive meal. But as a wicked, lawless trader in the black market, I was distressed at Cooking, like love, is an art. You need the right equipment and the skill to use it.

Consider pots and pans.

If you know what to look for when you buy them, they can serve you well and long.

So here is what to look for when you buy them.

First look for durability. Nowadays, durability usually means stainless steel. But unfortunately, stainless steel isn't the best conductor of heat. So, ideally, what you want is a pot made of long-lasting stainless steel with a bottom made of aluminum to give you nice even heat distribution with no hot spots to burn what you're cooking.

Next, think about safety. Check the handle and make sure it's made of a material that won't retain heat and burn your fingers. Be sure to check the edges on the lip and cover of the pot. They should be rounded, not sharp, so they can't ever cut you.

Finally, look for good construction. If a pot's bottom is gently curved and slightly raised at the center, it's a sign of good construction. Because when the metal gets hot it expands, the center flattens down, and the bottom rests securely on the burner.

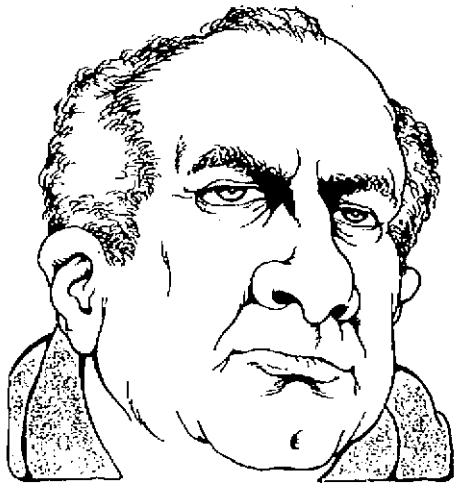

You can spend a lot of time looking for all these features and end up with pots and pans that cook well and last long.

Or you can spend a little time looking for our name on the bottom and end up with the same thing.

not being able to dump my hot money faster.

After luncheon, I unloaded the extra zlotys at a nearby department store, where nearly everything was quite inexpensive. Later we visited one of many state stores in Poland which are exclusively for tourists, offering good quality merchandise which can be purchased only with foreign currency, preferably dollars. No zlotys will be accepted at such stores, which offer an unusually high rate of exchange — about 50 zlotys per dollar. Such stores help the Polish government funnel much-needed dollars away from the black market.

Eventually I found an English-speaking clerk who was willing to talk about the currency black market in some detail. I also talked to a manager of another store whose analysis of Poland's unusual economy matched what the clerk and others told me. They made these points:

The tourist who trades in small amounts of dollars is not given heavy punishment when caught in a black market transaction. The police are after the big traders who arrive in Poland with amounts of perhaps $5,000, $10,000 or more which they plan to increase enormously in value. When caught, they receive long jail terms.

Dollars are prized by the Polish people because many important things which they need can be purchased only with dollars. The store manager told me, "I have finally acquired a nice new Fiat car. If I put Polish oil into the motor it will gum up and not run. Therefore, I must purchase Shell oil. But I can only buy Shell oil for dollars. The same is true of auto parts. I must pay dollars to get decent quality parts. It is the same with some medicines, certain cameras, watches and other highly desirable goods. I must buy them in the black market for dollars."

I learned that Californians who retire in Poland on their U.S. Social Security live like kings, converting their checks into thousands of extra zlotys. The cost of living is quite low and their zlotys purchase many extra comforts. Food, liquor, household articles, bicycles, toys, restaurant meals and many other items are quite cheap. Clothing and shoes, however, are very expensive.

An American who acquires a fortune in zlotys on the black market soon finds that he cannot use them to live like a king in France or Germany. Zlotys are worthless in all other countries, including the U.S.

The store manager also told me with a broad grin that I had been an amateur and a piker in the black market. "You should have bargained for more," he said. "You could have tripled your money. Sixty zlotys is the low rate. All over town they are paying 90 for a dollar."

TRIPLE instead of just double?

My mind began to calculate with all circuits wide open. Let's see. If I give them $10, they will hand over 900 zlotys. If I give them $20, they will . . .

Then I noticed that my wife was getting that furious look again. I thanked the store manager for his valuable information — and told him politely that I had decided to retain my amateur standing. □

Put a few extra cents into your leftovers, and they'll taste like a million dollars.

Leftovers don't have to taste left over. And they won't, when you cook them in a casserole with Angostura.

A few teaspoons of Angostura cost just a few cents. But what they can do for leftover turkey, chicken, ham, or beef, is invaluable.

Angostura's secret blend of exotic herbs and spices will unlock flavor you didn't know was left in your leftovers. It will harmonize the flavor of all your casserole ingredients. And it will give the dish a fresh, tantalizing aroma. Which is important when you consider the fact that the better food smells, the better it tastes.

So with Angostura, economical dishes won't taste like you economized on them. And that's important, too.

Because low-cost meals are no economy when your family doesn't want to eat them.

How to get what the U.S. Government owes YOU!

by Gary Halbert

Division of Master Psyche Inc.

Dear Taxpayer:

What do you get?

The "poor" get federal housing, food stamps, and other welfare benefits. The rich get oil depletion allowances, lower interest rate loans, and expense accounts.

What do you get?

The answer to that one is easy. YOU GET TO PAY TAXES! Isn't that nice? It is a bit depressing, isn't it? To work so hard for your money and then each year give Uncle Sam a bigger and bigger share of it.

What can you do about it?

Well, you could always cheat. Or move to another country.

But seriously, if you are already claiming all of the legitimate deductions you are entitled to, there is still something you should do. And that is...MAKE SURE THAT YOU ARE GETTING EVERY PENNY'S WORTH OF GOVERNMENT BENEFITS THAT YOUR HARD-EARNED DOLLARS ARE PAYING FOR!

For example:

- Did you know that the government will lend a United States citizen $5000 and more at below market interest rates? If.....the citizen knows how to apply for the loan!
- Or that the government is so eager to award scholarships and finance college educations that Uncle Sam pays good money just to locate deserving students.
- Need insurance? You can save hundreds of dollars in premium rates with low cost government policies.
- How would you like to have your own 5-acre vacation hideaway? Prices begin as low as $25 per acre!
- Did you know the advantages of collecting your social security benefits before you reach your sixties? Or that 1½ million children receive social security checks each month? Would you be interested in a complete foreign language course for only $2.00? How about exciting high profit insured investments? Or traveling in the U.S. and abroad at government expense?
- How much do you really know about your social security medicare or the NEW veterans benefits?

You know, a person could fill an entire report just listing little-known government benefits that are available to every U.S. citizen. I know, because with the help of a friend, I did. It's titled "HOW TO GET WHAT THE U.S. GOVERNMENT OWES YOU." It has 320 government benefits that most people have never heard of. But it doesn't just list them, mind you, it tells you how to get them! It tells you how to qualify, who to contact (including all necessary addresses) and what to say.

I am thinking about publishing the report in a hard cover edition selling for around $8.95. Perhaps I will. But this has been a labor of love for me. And right now I'd like the satisfaction of immediately getting the information into the hands of as many short-changed taxpayers as possible. So I've had a local printer reproduce the manuscript in report form and bind it with a soft cover. And I am offering it, personally, direct, by mail, for only $3.00.

If you are interested, please let me know right away as I have only ordered a small press run.

If you don't take advantage of these benefits, you are only cheating yourself; after all you have already paid for them.

In order to make sure that you get all of the government benefits you have coming to you, I am including at no extra cost two helpful supplements.

One is a directory that has the addresses of all local and regional U.S. government agencies. The other tells you how and who to complain to in the U.S. Government.

So order today and see for yourself the hundreds of FREE and inexpensive things the government has for you.

Consumerism:

By MAXINE TAYLOR

Now that they've lifted the freeze, a cold day last winter comes back like a scene from a Buster Keaton movie: a Wall Street luncheon gathering brought to its feet, spellbound, as two women rushed from the door to the rostrum and threw flour at the chairman of the Price Commission. Remember? The wrong man, maybe, but the right idea.

Today even economists are forsaking the financial pages for tea leaves. The only certainty in an uncertain world, it seems, is that Big Industry and Big Industry will sooner or later sit down together on the fate of the consumer.

Not that we haven't been warned.

The chairman of General Motors sent us word that the free enterprise economy is in our hands. The trouble is, he says, we don't know how it works. An official of the American Bankers Association similarly deplores our "grossly inadequate level of economic literacy."

The papers say there's a boom underway. Those who can hang on wonder how long. Those who can't grow desperate — the unemployed, the underemployed, the pensioners, the poor and the elderly.

Forty years ago in the Depression, when nobody could buy anything, economist Gardiner Means discovered that prices in highly concentrated industries stayed the same. Another economist, John Blair, compared figures over a period of years in the 50s to prove, if proof is needed, that big industries raised prices to insure constant returns during two recessions.

Since the powerful can do as they like — postpone price increases to an opportune time, or cut back on production (and employment) and raise prices to make up for it, market power could explain today's high prices in the presence of persistent unemployment and make a hollow laugh of "tight money" and spending curbs to fight inflation.

Those who go into the history of these things say no important action has been taken under the anti-trust laws since early in the century. None has even been tried against the structure of an industry rather than the practice of a firm. Some say the activity of the Federal Trade Commission is a token function intended to persuade us all that free enterprise is still free. Others say nothing happens because nobody knows, economics being a mystery best left to businessmen, bankers and campaign contributors.

But there are signs. Advertising, in due time, in any modern industry — if the industry grows — sooner or later replaces price competition. That's when the world described by Adam Smith in an earlier day recedes a little further into history. The consumer loses his leverage, the producer his need to consider the public welfare. He has no mandate to make a better product, or even the same product at a better price — only one that can be sold.

Somewhere here is the case for, if not anti-trust enforcement, then permanent controls on prices, wages and profits where price competition no longer obtains.

There was a time when the straight corn whisky in Holsum Tonic Bitters cured everything. Hard tack and plug tobacco came in a brown paper bag. In the beginning, American free enterprise, as Adam Smith predicted, worked perfectly. The consumer was "king," obviously. He could put a man out of business overnight by withholding his custom.

If things got a bit out of hand around the turn of the century, when a few industrial tycoons seemed to be running the country, there were, then as now, muckraking journalists to set things right. For a few brief years, even, "the common man" was celebrated by the Progressives. But at the end of the First World War an avalanche of factory-made products — and an army of supersalesmen assigned to keep the goods moving — brought a new era.

CALVIN COOLIDGE:

"Advertising is ennobling the commercial world."

Business became a religion in the 20s. The customer, the salesman with his foot in the door, the clergyman in the pulpit were all serving a higher purpose, saluting with hymns of thanksgiving every increase in the Gross National Product. Henry Ford, who had put the nation on wheels with his low-priced, black Model T capitulated, finally, to the color and style changes of the competition. That same year a bestselling book Your Money's Worth, by Stuart Chase and F. L. Schlink, brought news of wasted dollars and false advertising. 100,000 Guinea Pigs later became the first of several books debunking worthless drugs and cosmetics. But at the moment business could do no wrong.

"Advertising," observed Calvin Coolidge, "is inspiring and ennobling the commercial world. It's all part of the redemption and regeneration of mankind."

You know how it goes. The story has been told a thousand times. Redemption was postponed, of course, and the crash and the Depression that followed derailed millions.

Women's organizations, labor unions, economists called for more goods at lower prices. The pioneers struck at the marketing process itself. Grade labeling of canned food products, they said, would lower the cost of nationally advertised brands, as well as the "private labels" pegged to them. Large food processors were already turning out store brands along with their own, often off the same assembly line. In the trade press, "organized discontent" was attacking the heart of free enterprise.

Even before the Depression settled in, Consumers Research, Inc. was testing products for quality in terms of price. With a labor dispute in the mid-30s, Consumers Union, publishers of Consumer Reports, was founded on a pledge to better the lot of the working man and the impoverished. And, in fact, for more than a decade Consumers Union took a stand on political and economic issues that affect goods and services, as well as the ability to buy them, speaking out on marketing methods, anti-trust laws and tax policy. In the magazine and in recommendations to Congress, "CU" became the voice for a frequently inarticulate concern.

But as the years passed, Consumer Reports increasingly explored only that which can be measured. More and more hard goods and appliances filled the pages, compared and rated for the "rational" consumer or the economist who — mercifully unencumbered by human needs and motivations — delights in unraveling alternatives. If advertisers would distract this paragon from his single-minded pursuit, went the dictum, then CU would correct his course with objective information. The poor escaped the net.

Automobiles, cameras, appliances, each year more luxurious, endlessly passed in review. The "move-up" trend to fashion in all goods, including hard goods, sharply accelerated after World War II. Consumption had to keep pace with production, and the rate of production was exploding with new-found technology. Ironically, Consumer Reports, conceived as a protest against marketing excesses, ended as a showcase for an annual parade of new brands and style changes for those who know what they want and have the money to pay for it.

No one spelled out what the same money might buy spent another way on those things private industry can't or won't provide, such as universal health care, pensions or mass transportation — or the political context in which such a choice could be made — so that people themselves, presented with a full range of options, might decide how to use their money.

Other countries boast of trains that run, guaranteed incomes and pensions, subsidized health care, music and theater, but Americans see few exceptions to the law of free enterprise which says that everything — and everyone — must pay its way. We talk of taxes — never tax reform — strangely indifferent to a tax structure that not only keeps the poor in their place but forces them to pay for their own unemployed, disabled, and overaged by taxing the necessities with sales taxes on which they must spend all they have while tax-free, "discretionary" income of the well-to-do multiplies. (One doesn't forget the Nixons paid just $700 plus in federal income taxes last year.)

Obviously, the notion that consumer rights might include clean air and water, quiet and privacy — or the amenities for which no price tag has yet been devised — was on the other side of the technology explosion, decades away.

After the war, when the boom that lasted more than a decade began to falter, a rugged individualist did loom on the horizon, finally, complete with coonskin cap and Tennessee accent - the maverick Sen. Estes Kefauver. More than any other phenomenon in the late 50s, his hearings into the use and abuse of power in the auto, steel and drug industries set the climate for a rush of interest in the plight of the consumer — and the eventual appearance of that other loner, Ralph Nader.

In the late 60s Ralph Nader and his legions began to zero in on the end products of a market economy pulling away from the public interest. Business added "ism" to consumer to register a feeling of menace. Mysteriously, "protection" entered the lexicon. The consumer, visible at last, became a political expedient. consumer groups multiplied. State and local advocates appeared under government auspices.

High above the traffic in the lighted turrets along Madison Avenue they're working late and breathing heavily these days. To hear the admen tell it, the "creatives" who produce the TV commercials have more lawyers in tow than are now tied up by the luminaries in Watergate, and at least one agency executive has called for protection of the First Amendment. The drive is on for another "truth" — truth in advertising. Volumes of data in support of claims pile up in the office of the FTC.

Just possibly we should feel some sympathy for the adman who must incorporate what is legally true into a witches' brew older than science, older than religion, even. Those 30 seconds of drama set to music were never intended to tell the truth or even sell a product, which — flashed in view at the strategic instant — sells itself. Just possibly we only think we are neither looking or listening. The new, soft-sell commercial, time-released to trigger a purchase later on, sifts into the subconscious as an experience, a version of life.

The adman knows this and more. He knows that whatever the spell he weaves, we want to believe, and he trades on that. Someone should be screening TV commercials not for what they say about a product but what they imply about how we live and the truths we live by. As with Watergate, we need to separate the legal from the moral issue.

Before we decide it's just advertising, we should perhaps recall that back at the beginning we thought Watergate was just politics.

"This is not a rebellion against minor matters of fraud and misinformation," John

Kenneth Galbraith remarked in his presidential address to the American Economics Association. "It is a major reaction against a whole deployment of power by which the consumer is made the instrument of purposes that are not his own."

But just maybe the tide is turning.

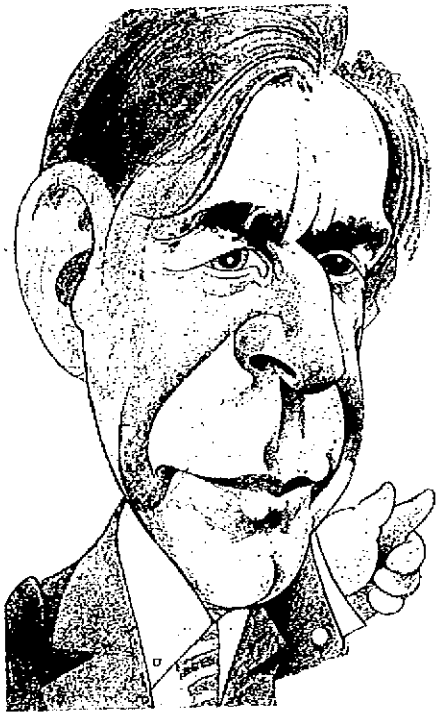

Does Watergate portend an open administration? Then why not, for starters, open access to all Congressional committee hearings, ready access to Economic Advisory Committee meetings, open hearings on all prices, interest rates and wage increases before the Cost of Living Council. Explanation of the CLC's decisions in writing for press and public would not be out of line either, not public participation in those negotiations that settle FTC complaints with consent agreements.

In the end, though, the future course of the consumer movement -- and the country -- could well depend on whether each of us, alone and unorganized, is this time, finally, wide awake and listening when we flip on the evening news and watch the parade go by.

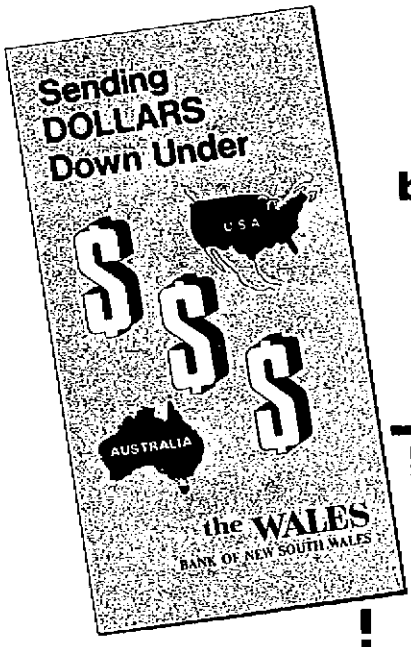

The issue, gentlemen and ladies, is ethics. Credibility. The freedom to be and the right to become.

A huge colored cloud drifts to earth

Balloonist Jim Knight waves to curious motorists below as he wafts along over San Joaquin Valley vineyards.

Southland goes aloft

By ROGER COAR

A few weeks ago Southland Editor Jim Leavy had blinked across his pile of manuscripts suggesting I go snap some pictures of hot air balloons.

No, he didn't know what time the balloon went up — but perhaps I could gather up some of the hot air I'd been generating about the office. Making a second mark, this time on his side of the scoreboard for smart remarks, I settled down with the Yellow Pages (I could see the billboard with its question and answer) and soon was talking with Don Piccard Balloons in Costa Mesa.

In the course of conversation I learned their Pilots without wings

By JANICE GARDNER

Scorpios are extremely conscientious people who get satisfaction out of a job well done. Scorpios are energetic and enjoy demanding tasks. Scorpios are adventurous and fearless, often at their best in adversity.

If any Scorpio ever lived up to his name, Fred Krieg of Scorpion Productions in Anaheim certainly can claim that distinction. Fred, a pilot for United Air Lines, and his beautiful Hungarian-born stewardess wife Hajnal (pronounced Hoynul), enjoy the hottest and fastest rising sport in the century, hot-air ballooning.

Fred's introduction to this unusual and fascinating pastime came during an interim plant was running a double shift to keep up with back orders ... at some $5,000 a copy, yet. It seemed a suitable figure for a sport of burgeoning popularity in these inflationary times. More important to me, though, was that we arranged for me to meet the Piccard group later on in the month when I might go along for a ride.

What time does the balloon go up? Early. And thus it was that the sun had not begun to rise over the San Joaquin Valley when I arrived at the outskirts of Delano on a Sunday morning last month.

The operations area of the small airport there was already springing to life with five groups of early risers busy spreading out thousands of yards of gay and bright multi-colored nylon on the aircraft parking ramp. There was a variety of containers in which the material had been carried, some with the appearance of outsized laundry baskets. But these early birds had not come to launder their loads of plastic on the airport ramp — they were balloonists, come to help the town of Delano celebrate its grape and harvest festival.

Crews scurried about and soon the huge patches of limp nylon were swelling up, presenting an incomparable scene as their shapes changed...once globs, then like rising loaves of bread and now near fully inflated, billowing into huge tear drop shaped globes.

Clambering over the side of a sturdy wicker basket, I joined Jim Knight who was busy running the propane burners overhead which continued to fill the canopy above with hot air. Ground crews outside steadied the basket as best they could as we began to rock about from the beginnings of a slight breeze.

My gaze was fixed through a camera viewfinder and it was several moments and hundreds of feet later that I realized we had left the ground. A sensationless departure, but when I finally looked down I was certainly glad I had no feeling of having forgotten something.

Other than occasional blasts of the burners to maintain the bag's volume, the immediate environment was one of complete silence. It seemed, though, that every sound from miles about on the valley floor was reaching up to us ... the roar of a train and the whish of freeway traffic far away mixed with the early morning crowing of roosters. As we wafted along, minibikers and motorists below would holler up asking "Where're ya goin'?" to which Knight or I could give little in answer but to point in the direction the wind was carrrying us.

We passed over a small farmhouse and the sound of the burners' blast set a huge shepherd dog running to cower in the cover of an adjacent vineyard.

With no further farmyard in sight, Knight, who is Piccard's production manager, made a gradual descent to the cottonfields now below us to acquaint himself with the craft's handling characteristics. He remarked that each different configuration varied in its handling and though he had not previously piloted a balloon of this type, his maneuvering seemed automatic and flawless as we skimmed along just inches above the cotton at perhaps eight miles an hour. We could have picked cotton! In fact we each did reach out and gather a tuft.

Next came acres of vineyards and the time to look for a suitable landing spot. The vineyards with their grape stakes certainly would not do; there might be damage to crops. Open plowed fields held scant esthetic appeal (the collapsed balloon would get dirty). Before long, a field of alfalfa appeared below along our line of flight and Knight brought us down for what I would judge a perfect landing, our skid-bottomed basket settling solidly to the ground after two ever so slight bounces.

The balloon was quickly collapsed and with the help of some enthusiasts who had followed below by auto, the multi-colored bag was gathered up and stuffed into the basket.

The group had come to Delano with its three balloons in one trailer; one had landed earlier a couple of miles behind us and another, which had gone to a higher altitude, had caught an opposite wind, going northeast while the rest of us went southwest. Now there were three balloons on the ground, scattered along a 12-mile line. It was at this juncture that one of the very real logistic considerations had to be dealt with — namely, how to get the once graceful balloon which was now a three hundred pound laden basket back to the airport.

The camper van which had followed us along from the airport had no cargo space, but among the curious who had stopped to watch our descent was one with a pick-up truck. Knight's first order of business, once the bag was collapsed, was to approach the driver and ask if he would take the basket back to the airport. He readily agreed, but first -- might his three year old daughter touch the balloon? Of course.

The child, holding tightly to her mother's hand, approached gingerly in a combination of awe and trepidation. What thoughts must have been racing through her young mind! A huge colored cloud had come to earth — and the limp nylon she now held — could it really and truly be what she had seen floating overhead only moments before? □ between the service and his commercial pilot training.

PILOTS

"I decided I needed as much experience in the air as possible," says Fred. "So I tried them all: small planes, helicopters, sailplanes. Finally someone suggested hot-air balloons. I tried it and I liked it."

The extreme popularity of this sport is not recent. The first hot-air balloon free flight was made by two daring Frenchmen, the Marquis d'Arlandes and Jean-Francois Pilatre de Rozier. Powered by burning straw and wool, the balloon wafted its way over Parisian skies. Soon hot-air balloons were rising all over

A touch of romance clings to the sport

Europe in spite of the dangerous aspects of the sport such as open flames and easily ignited material.

A speck of the romantic French still remains with the sport. Upon completion of a first solo flight, the new pilot is presented with a bottle of French champagne bedecked with ribbons matching the colors of his balloon.

Scorpion flying is normally headquartered at Perris Valley airport, approximately 10 miles south of Riverside. At 6:30 a.m. on any Saturday, the quiet little dirt-strip airport should resemble a ghost town. But already vans are lining up at the end of the field, preparing for a day of skydiving, sailplaning and hot-air ballooning. The ballooning takes place at the far end of the airstrip in a weed patch adjacent to the runway. In these wide open spaces, the hazards are limited to a vastly miscalculating paratrooper and socks full of sticky weeds.

The Fiberglas and aluminum gondolas arrive on the back of the Kriegs' 1959 Ranchero wagon. The envelopes or air bags are transported in the gondolas, folded into large canvas bags. Unrolled from their field pack, they are spread out flat on the ground. The top and the skirt (bottom) are attached with a gripping tape called Velcro.

"The purists inflate the envelopes by flapping them in the breeze," Fred remarks, "but the time and energy involved are devastating. We use a gasoline-engine driven air blower."

The envelopes are first inflated and the air inside then heated with propane gas burners until the balloon uprights itself and the gondola. From then on the balloon goes where the wind blows. The only control the pilot has is up and down motion. The trick is to pick the altitude with the desired wind direction.

Tethering the balloon to a parked car or other stationary object with a one or two-hundred foot rope is the method used in commercial promotions and the beginning phases of balloon pilot training.

Free flight, however, is a crosscountry affair with the balloonist landing at one or more locations, not necessarily by previous choice. Free flight is definitely more exciting for the ground crew. Following take-off, the crew jumps into the old Ranchero wagon and chases merrily down the country roads, gambling as to which route will lead to the balloon's final destination.

Even the ground crew works under hazardous conditions occasionally, crew member Marilyn Lieberg relates. "I remember one time hopping over row after row of knee-high sugar beets to reach a downed pilot. We were nearly to the end of the trail when the farmer turned on his irrigation sprinklers full blast, soaking the entire crew."

"Never wear sandals," she cautions further. "A newly cut stubble field can actually puncture your feet."

Pilots and passengers wear helmets, mostly to protect their heads from the heat of the overhead gas burners. Heavy duty boots protect their feet. Bright blue jumpsuits complete the uniform although the crew admits it sometimes gets a little warm. Temperatures in

Perris Valley can pass 120 degrees in the summertime.

Although a certain amount of risk is involved, the danger is minimal. There is probably more danger of being singed during inflation on the ground than there is in falling from the sky.

"Parachutes are not required and we don't wear them," Hajnal explains. "Since we have the largest parachute in the world, why leave it? Even the complete loss of all heat would result in the balloon descending at the same rate as a parachute; 90 feet per minute maximum after a 2,000-foot descent."

Compared to a hydrogen or helium-filled balloon, the hot-air balloon is quite safe as well as less expensive to operate. There is no danger of explosion, little of fire. The envelope is constructed of nylon and dacron fabric and is heat and tear resistant. Even if the material falls directly on the flame, it will melt rather than burn. A small hole or a tear of up to 12 inches is of no great consequence because more heat can be added to the balloon than is lost through the opening. Small holes can be repaired with special adhesive backed tape, larger ones with envelope repair fabric.

"Perhaps the greatest danger is from our 4-footed or feathered friends," says Fred. "An experienced balloonist will never leave his equipment unfurled in the field. Cows will explore anything alien, and a curious lick can turn into a nasty nip in no time."

"And stay away from turkey farms," he warns. "Turkeys panic at the sight and sound of any strange object. Huddling together defensively in the corner of the pen, they can soon smother. There has been more than one lawsuit from an aggravated turkey farmer."

The Scorpion crew is as enthusiastic as the Kriegs. Aspiring balloonist Larry Fuller, a Beverly Hills investment banker, has been with the crew for three years. "I was working as manager of a hotel in San Diego," Larry recalls: "when Scorpion Productions did a bank promotion across the street and was headquartered at the hotel. I returned from an evening out, still with date and dinner jacket, to discover a crew member had taken ill and the balloon team was extremely shorthanded. I began to assist with crowd control and soon I was crawling around in my formal attire helping get the balloon aloft. I have been hooked ever since."

Confirming a tendency to addiction in the sport are Gary and Marilyn Lieberg of Riverside. "We have been known to go ballooning every Saturday and Sunday for three or four months," says Marilyn. Gary, an Air Force pilot at March AFB, confirms Fred Krieg's statement that there is nothing that humbles a pilot like flying a hot-air balloon. The Liebergs' daughter Keri quite possibly holds the record as the youngest passenger ever to ride in a hot-air balloon, accomplishing this feat at the age of three months.

Echoing the Liebergs' opinion is another pilot, Capt. David Hooyer, USAF, now stationed in Thailand. He describes it this way. "It all started when some slightly crazy friends of mine introduced me to some slightly crazy friends of theirs and wanted to know if I would be interested in chasing a balloon. Little did I realize that they literally meant scurrying down the road and across the fields to catch this absolutely beautiful flying machine that wanders across the face of the earth at the whim of Mother Nature's air currents. But the real reward came when the owner-pilot asked if I'd like to go up. No self-respecting aviator can turn down an offer to slip the surly bonds of earth. Like all flying, it has its own special if transient release from all the demanding realities of life, giving you a few moments of peace with yourself and the world. Yet it is a type of flying that cannot be equated with any other, because it is done without hurry or rush."

A ride in a hot-air balloon is truly a different experience from a ride in any other aircraft. It is not as quiet as a glider because of the loud blast of noise when the propane burners are turned on. It is sometimes difficult to get a very small child to accept a ride because the noise frightens him. With the proper wind velocity in free flight, however, the burner is used much less frequently, giving a longer period of quiet floating.

The openess of the gondola is another factor unique to the hot-air balloon. Equipped to carry two or four passengers, the Fiberglas sides are only hip high. The overhead burners are controlled by a hanging cord an elbow's

I BET YOU DIDN'T KNOW

Do you know how many major college football teams in the last 40 years have been able to go through a season unbeaten, untied and UNSCORED ON? . . . Only three teams have done it in all this time . . . They were Colgate in 1932, Duke in 1938 and Tennessee in 1939, and no team has been able to do it since then.

Which are the largest football stadiums in America? . . . Well, there are only three which can seat more than 100,000 people . . . Can you name all three? . . . They are the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif. . . . The University of Michigan Stadium in Ann Arbor, Mich. . . . and, Municipal Stadium in Philadelphia where the Army-Navy game is played.

I bet you didn't know . . . MICHELIN makes the big difference — Steel Construction — Puncture Resistance — Smooth Ride — Gas Savings — Safe Braking. We have been selling & servicing MICHELIN TIRES for over 20 years. JUST GIVE US A TRY.

reach above the pilot's head, giving a full and unobstructed view of the countryside.

A small instrument panel is screwed to one corner of the gondola. All systems are equipped with a sensitive altimeter, standard rate of climb meter, compass and pyrometer. The pyrometer indicates the air temperature at the top of the envelope. The balloon flies as fast as the wind is blowing. Nine miles per hour on the ground or 12 miles per hour in flight would be above the maximum safe speed and be cause for grounding the balloon.

The Kriegs belong to the Balloon Federation of America, a division of the National Aeronautic Association, which is in turn a part of the Federation Aeronautics International of France. All of these are sanctioning and licensing agencies. The annual United States National Hot-Air Balloon Championships are traditionally held each August on the campus of Simpson College at Indianola, Iowa. Here, in addition to the serious business of qualifying for the first place berth on the U.S. team, the balloonists have invented a variety of entertaining diversions.

"It's fun and games," explains Hajnal.

Take for example the Hare and the Hound. The first balloon (the Hare) is released and takes off crosscountry. Two hours later the rest of the balloons (the Hounds) are released. Attempting to reach the destination of the Hare and get as close to it's landing spot as possible, it truly becomes a case of trying to catch the wind.

Another good game is Flour Bomb. Balloons attempt to reach a predetermined target from a five-mile radial starting point, dropping a flour bomb in the target circle. "You can drop it from as low as 10 feet," Fred explains. "The trick is finding the altitude with the wind velocity which will carry you to the target."

The first World Hot-Air Balloon Championships were held in February 1973 in Albuquerque, N.M. The Balloon Federation of America spent the week prior to the World Meet attempting to qualify three balloonists out of 93 contestants for the U.S. team. Qualification consisted of following a profile, engraved on a stainless steel band and sealed into the balloon upon release. The pilot lifts to a designated level and proceeds to make as many dips as possible in a certain number of minutes, a stylus recording every move he makes.

The nature of the profile was a closely guarded secret to assure an equal start. When officials called for the first volunteer, adventurous Scorpio Fred Krieg had the only raised hand. Following an uneventful ascent, the confident pilot stabilized and cut the burner for the first descent. All was well until the second firing. The balloon failed to respond, plummenting earthward with a resounding smack.

"Some observers say I bounced 80 feet. I think it was more like 40," Fred relates animatedly. "I had deflated the top of the balloon, and I could see myself drifting dangerously close to the power line adjacent to the field. A strong side wind assisted in carrying me over, and I ended up between a cyclone fence and the power pole. The deflated envelope finally flopped on the live lines, sending a shower of sparks skyward. I had kept my feet braced on the sides of the Fiberglas gondola, hands off the side rails, hanging on to only the red ripstrap. When I finally hit bottom, I bailed out and walked away."

After lengthy analysis the baffled pilot and crew finally realized the cause of the drastic descent. The change in altitude between Anaheim and Albuquerque froze the water vapor in the gas line to the burner, causing a power failure. The officials agreed to a second try, placing the Scorpion balloon in a tie for fifth place.

As in most sports, competition exists and there are records to be broken. Altitude, distance and duration are some of the goals. Scorpion pilot and crew have set their sights on a new altitude record. The present record is 32,949 feet; the Scorpion goal is somewhere between 33,000 and 35,000 feet. Special equipment will be needed for this feat, including oxygen and a parachute.

Scorpion Productions' commercial venture consists mainly of balloon promotions. Celebrating a grand opening, sale or anniversary, a firm can rent a balloon to be tethered at any pilot-approved location. Carrying an advertising logo, the balloon can be seen for miles. This medium is most effective, particularly at night when the balloon is illuminated from the inside with special lamps.

Balloons cost $4,000-$12,000

Sport balloons retail from $4,000 to $12,000 which includes a complete flying system of envelope, gondola, burners, fuel tanks and instruments. Promotional balloons can cost extra depending upon how decorative and complicated the equipment is. Standard colors for balloons are black, white, red, blue, yellow, green, purple and orange. Special decorations include eagles with six-foot wings, pennants and stars.

For a small fee, a customer can even have a unique design reservation, guaranteeing his color pattern and ornamentation will not be duplicated in another balloon. Each balloon bears a "license number" as well. Figures for Canadian balloons begin with C; those of the United States with an N. The remaining figures are chosen by the owner. The Kriegs small balloon bears the license number N69SP; 1969 being the year Fred and Hajnal were married; SP, of course, being for Scorpion Productions.

Operating costs of ballooning consist mainly of the propane gas used to heat the air. A large balloon powered by two 22-gallon tanks could run approximately four hours, depending entirely upon the outside air temperature and weight carried.

Presently set up to train pilots in a hot-air balloon school, the Kriegs are now in the process of forming a hot-air balloon club. For a reasonable fee, an enthusiast can buy an active or an associate membership. Active membership includes pilot privileges; associate membership gives ground crew and passenger privileges.

"Essentially I'm leasing a share in the balloon," says Fred. "Members can receive complete flight and ground training under the supervision of professional flight instructors, in equipment maintained by a factory authorized distributor. Club membership provides all the benefits of this unique and exhilarating sport without the necessity of investing in expensive equipment."

"Ballooning is a perfect family sport," he continues, "particularly for large families. They've got a built-in crew."

For clean wholesome entertainment that could help you get out of your armchair and your children off the streets and on a new and invigorating trip, you can't beat hot-air ballooning. □

By REX REED

Cybill Shepherd, looking more like a Memphis baton-twirler than an 1878 Henry James heroine, is nevertheless playing the title role of Daisy Miller in the crumbling ruins of Rome. She isn't the least bit terrified. Her boyfriend, Peter Bogdanovich, is directing and even though she has only appeared in two other movies (The Last Picture Show and Heartbreak Kid), the fact that he is guiding her through every scene has given her enough courage to look right at me with periwinkle blue eyes and say, "Henry James had me in mind when he wrote it."

There are similarities. Daisy was the epitome of irresistible American freshness and spirited innocence in an artificial world of European restraint. She flouted convention and died of malaria when she visited the Roman Coliseum at the time of a plague against everyone else's advice. It's a tragic love story with sumptuous sets and lavish costumes, and about as far removed from Cybill's real-life Pepsi Generation personality as the imagination can conceive. But Cybill is having a ball. "I always felt a desire not to fulfill what people expected of me or expected me to be. Daisy was unpredictable, too — a victim of her own innocent gaiety in a crumbling era of decadence."

Right now the "victim" is eating a tuna fish sandwich in her suite at the Hilton and listening to her new record album, Cybill Does It — To Cole Porter! It was produced by Peter Bogdanovich, who masterminds her far-from-liberated persona as well as her soaring movie career, and it is equipped with Cole Porter's sexy lyrics to his famous songs. ("The most refined ladybugs do it when a gentleman calls/moths in your rugs do it, what's the use of mothballs?") Peter sings on the album, too, and his unreserved excitement seems to embarrass Cybill. She takes her sandwich and heads for the bedroom. "I called Frank Yablans," says Peter, hardly noticing she has gone, "and said I'd like to do an album. He said, 'You sing?' I said 'No, of course not — it's for Cybill.' He said, 'She sing?' The whole thing was paid for by Paramount without any of them ever hearing one song. That's what happens when you have a couple of hit pictures."

The hardest thing about interviewing Cybill is getting her alone. Peter does most of her talking for her, and even when he's out of the room the things she says often sound like Peter. The Hollywood wags are calling him a Svengali to whom she plays a willing, sexy Trilby. One gossip even refers to them as Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. It's only half true. Cybill is bright, loquacious and fun, but it is very obvious that she adores Peter and considers what he has to say much more important than anything on her mind. So she just lets him do all the talking.

It's not that she's dumb. It's just that she's been through all these incredible changes. First, there was the all-American high-school-girl period — city champion basketball team in Memphis, president of her sorority, most attractive in the senior class, winner of the Miss Teen-age Memphis Pageant . Elvis Presley was her idol. Then there was the all-American model period, which is still not over — winner of the 1969 Model of the Year award, $500 a day as a magazine cover girl, TV commercials for everything from Coca-Cola to shampoo. (She still receives the highest fee ever paid for a 30-second commercial for Cover Girl makeup.) Peter spotted her on the cover of Glamour and signed her with no acting experience for the petulant, rich-girl jailbait called Jacy in The Last Picture Show. Peter says, "She was the only one of the actresses I saw who didn't want the part. She came in and sat on the floor. I said 'What do you like to do?' She said, 'Oh, I dunno, I read a lot.' I said, 'What have you read lately?' She said, 'Dostoievski'. I thought, 'Hmm.' So I said, 'Well, which one of his have you read?' Long pause. She played with a flower and sighed and finally said, 'I can't remember the title right now.' And I thought, 'that's the character.'" It started with a look. The look turned into love.

After The Last Picture Show, Cybill discovered literature and politics, and Svengali influence or no Svengali influence, under the tutelage of Bogdanovich she started giving out interviews about the Greek crisis, Camus, Sartre, sexual politics in advertising and The Magic Mountain. It began to sound like an Arthur Miller-Marilyn Monroe syndrome. The real Cybill Shepherd is more than that. She has her own identity, she is totally unimpressed by parties and glamor and publicity ("I was hysterical when I read in Suzy's column that we were causing more of a sensation in Rome than the Burtons or Sophia and Carlo Ponti. We haven't been out of our suite at the Hilton once. At home in Los Angeles we never go anywhere either. We lie around on the floor and watch old movies.")

She is also aware that a lot of people are expecting a lot in Daisy Miller and if she's lousy in it, they'll blame it all on Peter. "I'm very lucky. I know I wouldn't be in the movies if it hadn't been for him. Peter has always been there to look after me and that is a reality. But I look at girls like Katherine Ross, who are beautiful and talented, and I see how you can get sidetracked. I didn't become an actress because I needed the money. I had the Cover Girl commercials. The copy was bad but it was better than bad movies. Nobody reviews bad commercials. But I had to do something to keep my sanity. I was bored to death modeling and I never want to do it again. I've never taken acting lessons because I think choosing an acting coach is like choosing the right psychiatrist. The one who is right for one person can totally destroy another person. So I trust Peter totally."

Peter leaves the room so nobody will get the impression that he's Svengali, and she's on her own. "I guess people expect me to be dumb. But I really did read all those books. I went to school, taught myself, did all of it out of curiosity. I have a lot of energy and I have to channel it somewhere. I've always read a lot. I read Gone With The Wind in the sixth grade. I was a member of the Weekly Reader Book Club. It would be very sad if people thought I did all of this just to prove something." (Right now she's reading Isak Dinesen.) "All these articles that say I'm ambitious kill me because everyone who knows me knows I just walked into everything in my life by accident. The Cole Porter album was Peter's idea. I sang in a talent show at East High School in Memphis, but I was so professional they wouldn't give me the prize. Then after Last Picture Show I took singing lessons and sang opera with Eileen Brennan's vocal teacher. After you've sung opera, you can certainly sing Cole Porter."

She is very blase about acting and still suffers from the nude scene in Last Picture Show. She had done one previous screen test for Roger Vadim and it was such a painful experience she vowed she would never appear nude anywhere. "The night before I was to fly to California to begin rehearsals I was still trying to call Peter to tell him I couldn't do the movie if I had to do the nude scene. My ambition was to save enough money to go to the University of Florence and study art. But I couldn't reach him, so I went out to Hollywood anyway, and he convinced me it would be done in good taste. Even the nude scene in Heartbreak Kid was done by a stand-in. I just don't like nudity because it dissolves the mystery about people and I want to preserve as much mystery as possible.

"Then after all the worrying and almost not doing the movie, Playboy printed a grainy, blurred, pirated nude shot of me and the studio has no record of giving it to them. It wasn't even a photo — it's an enlargement of a frame from the screen that was cut out of the movie. They had been after me for years to pose as one of the sex stars of the 70s. I kept saying no. They even called my mother and offered her $10,000 if I'd pose nude. Now this stolen photo appears. I'm going to sue Hugh Hefner personally, and also Playboy Enterprises and Arthur Knight, who reprinted it in a book called Sex and the Cinema.

I tell her the people who saw the original nude will be miniscule compared to those who will read about the lawsuit. "You think so? I'll let Peter decide."

Peter re-enters and says he doesn't care what the lawsuit costs, it will keep other innocent girls from being victimized in the same way. The discussion is ended. She is myopic and nearsighted. I ask if she has any other physical defects. Peter says "That's a line from The Trial. Romy Schneider says it to Tony Perkins." I say that's nice but it doesn't answer the question. Cybill says, "I have a scar on my lip. I ran into a barbed-wire fence and had over 200 stitches in plastic surgery when I was six. Also, my feet are too small for my body." She's 5'8½" tall, big bones, 130 pounds (her father was a football player), and, except for her face, doesn't look like a model on close inspection. Peter laughs, "If you had feet the same size as your body, I wouldn't be around. I hate big feet."

Any girl who takes that kind of lip from her boyfriend is obviously not into Women's Lib. The question makes her squirm. She looks at Peter for help. "Well, I've read the three books on the subject, but the best is A Room Of One's Own by Virginia Woolf," she says proudly. Sometimes it's better when he does the talking.

Later that night, at the Roman Coliseum, Cybill sits in her portable trailer while the crew tries to make a 2,000-year-old ruin look older. She is eating a banana in a hoop skirt, drinking black coffee, and trying not to cry over a box of hair Audrey Hepburn's hairdresser has just clipped from her shining cover-girl head. "I guess I'm a star now. (I could have told her no, but I didn't have the nerve.) I just don't like to upset people. I don't even give orders to my cook. I can't cook anything but an egg, but we have a housekeeper who worked for John Garfield and you can't argue with anyone who cooked for John Garfield."

Women are flying at her with brushes, mirrors and curling irons and she has a pain in her stomach from the corset and the banana. "They did autopsies on Victorian women and discovered their hearts were pushed up into their chest cavities from these corsets. I used to think 1879 was very romantic, but now after this movie I think it was just uncomfortable."

She emerges looking like a marshmallow sundae. Peter props her against a rock where she gets malaria. "Now darling, I know this is going to be very difficult for you, but you have to stand up." "What do I say?" asks Cybill. "This is your Mamie Van Doren shot — you don't say anything." The camera rolls. Peter yells, "Cybill, take the chewing gum out of your mouth!" They start again, and she goes home to bed at 5 a.m. Oh, well. It beats jerking sodas back home in Memphis. □

A radio-controlled car strikes the Harbor Freeway test strip and continues almost to the end of the strip, then moves back toward the lane from which it started.

Safety's in the center

By JACKSON ELLIOTT

Sunday on the Harbor Freeway. Two children in the camper ahead, lying on the high bunk. They wave and laugh and hold up two fingers in the peace sign, wait for an answering signal from anyone who can see them. (A camper's bunk can be a children's haven, even in the fast traffic on the freeway, with parents a world away in the pick-up's front seat.) Then the left front tire blows, lurches toward the concrete wall at 65 miles an hour.

Tragedy? No, probably not. At least statistics say not. The camper hits the wall between the northbound and southbound traffic, hits it on an angle and rides up the wall a few inches, maybe even a foot, rides down again, hardly lessens its speed, moves safely back into the lefthand fast lane. The children are clinging to each other now, peace signs forgotten, as the driver cautiously maneuvers the camper to a stop to check on people and paint and tires.

Mark up another save for the Jersey Rail.

It's a median strip, a concrete wall kind of traffic separator which had its beginnings in a highway divider first used in New Jersey. These days, with a lot of new thinking built into it, it's stretching its length farther and farther along the freeways of California, providing the most comforting security blanket a driver has ever had.

Just north of Long Beach, on the Harbor Freeway, extending about eight miles between Manchester Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard, is one of the longest sections in the state. (The longest — nine miles — comes up from the Mexican - U.S. border on Route 5.) It's not likely that the remarkable divider will come any closer to downtown Long Beach, or downtown anyplace, because it's only being built where the traffic is freeway heavy and freeway fast. The Department of Transportation counted more cars each year and more miles per hour, and figured California had to have something like, but better than, the early version of concrete divider. After all, New Jersey traffic 20 years ago was a lot different from California traffic today.

So it sent out highway designers and builders and test drivers and radio-controlled cars

This is the result of a 65-mph crash into a wall at a sharp 25-degree angle. Although there was heavy damage to the vehicle because of the angle of attack, the car didn't jump the divider and damage to the wall was minor.

carrying plastic dummies called "anthropomorphic" which, in highly unscientific terms, means they act something like humans — as much as dummies can — except that they don't bleed, break or mind if they get smashed up in accidents.

The department built test stretches of concrete barriers, some following the dimensions of the Jersey barrier exactly, some higher, some with a different angle of slant from the bottom to the top, some with smaller curbs at the bottom.

Test drivers crashed small cars and large cars into the wall, even letting go of the wheel at the last second in an attempt to duplicate the conditions existing when a driver completely loses control of the car. And engineers in the radio-controlled cars staged crashes at the fastest freeway speeds. They measured the heights to which cars rose when they struck the walls, timed the return to the ground of the left-side wheels, documented the damage to the cars and to the barriers and, in all, amassed a set of statistics in which dull figures provided answers to the interesting question of what's new in how to stay alive on the freeway.

"The jumper is our greatest fear"

What California came up with was a solid barrier, two feet wide at the base, sloping in to about 10 inches wide when it gets to be a foot high. Then it narrows to six inches at the top. Mounted at the highest point on the concrete, is a nonglare screen, usually green or gray if the highway crews have gotten around to the finishing touches.

Jim Larson, district information officer for the department, calls it a "rock," and adds: "But it's a rock with enough long distance thinking and safety design in it to make it act as if it had taken hold of a swerving car and guided it back to the road without the perils some other dividers can bring. "Going off the road isn't the real trouble. It's what happens after you do. It's the short odds on getting back to the road before you get wrecked. A lot of things can happen."

For instance: A car can hit one kind of barrier and decelerate so quickly that the driver and passengers suffer critical, perhaps fatal injuries. Or if the barrier is solid and flat and makes contact with the side of the ar, it can let you bounce off right back into the lane you just left, or some other one, and let you get rear-ended by the traffic that was behind you a few seconds ago.

But, says Larson, "The jumper — a car that goes over or through any kind of divider and heads into oncoming traffic, is our greatest fear, and has been for years. It wasn't only recently that we began work on ending that kind of accident. We started on it many years ago. And we believe that our improvement on the earlier concrete barrier designs have developed the finest, safest road divider in the world."

What will it do for you?

Well, suppose you're driving along Route 5 or 10, or on any freeway with only a few feet separating traffic moving in one direction from that going the other way — no modern Jersey rail — and your left front tire blows, or another car nudges you over to the left, or you're overly tired and inadvertently you close your eyes for an instant and you swing left from the lefthand lane. What can happen?

Fortunately, not many drivers know from experience. But it's lots and none of it good.

First, it can give you the choice between either a bodywork and paint job and what the insurance people call "totalling out" your car.

Second, it can let you bounce off the conventional dividers too far and too fast, into traffic.

Third, the collision with the divider can shake you and your passengers up so much as to cause serious injuries, even if you can bring your car to a halt without a collision with another car.

And finally — and the one possibility that can cause the greatest tragedy — your car can cut through or climb over other types of dividers and speed you head-on into some safe-and-sane driver who has been heading the other way. Or you could be that other driver.

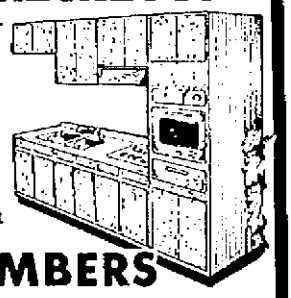

When the department began its program, the Harbor Freeway was the testing ground. In one early test where a metal beam barrier — one in which a solid horizontal metal beam is fixed to posts — was replaced with an early California version of the concrete barrier, there were two fatal accidents in the year before the metal beam barrier was replaced and no fatals in the year after. There were two median crossover accidents in the "before" period, none in the year afterward. There hasn't been a "jumper" yet.

The rebound accident is one of the more frequent invitations to danger. In two test areas, one with the metal beam and one with the new Jersey rail, there were 14 rebound collisions where there was a metal beam divider, three where the concrete barrier was the protector.

SAFETY

The other advantages get technical, particularly in the area of slowing up vehicles at a safe rate. But generally, when vehicles strike posts, the vehicles decelerate so fast that the driver and his passengers usually suffer grave injuries. The concrete barrier, erected in California's version of the Jersey rail, lets the colliding vehicle slow at a safe rate.

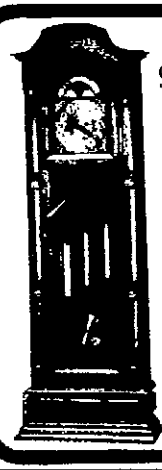

The greatest value it has — aside from deterring the car from going over the wall — is its ability to help the driver guide the car to safety. Or the wall guides it without the driver's help.

The unique feature of the design is the sloping lower face of the parapet which actually guides the colliding car up the wall slightly and then turns it down toward the horizontal plane of the road, without a sharp decrease in speed. The guidance also is inclined to send the car out on the road again.

The engineers write, "The effective redirection of an impacting vehicle by the barrier involves the dissipation or reduction of the kinetic energy with as little as possible absorbed by the vehicle."

What they mean is that the barrier should limit the bounce-back while saving the shock to the vehicle. When the car wheels touch the barrier, they begin to ride up the wall slightly and the shock absorbers and other suspension units compress before the body of the car touches the wall. This tensed-up suspension system helps spring the car back off the wall and send it back on to the road.

The side of the barrier is slanted so the wall just is not there where the body would touch it if it were a flat wall. A flat wall would wreck the car and send it bouncing back to the roadway, out of control.

The California tests were conducted in two modes, one with live drivers at the wheel of the test car and the other with dummies in the seats but with a technician following the test car and controlling it by radio.

In some tests, just as the car hit the wall, the technician would use his controls to suggest that the driver had lost control of the car completely — as a sleeping or intoxicated driver might — and still the car returned to the road safely.

The unique feature of this barrier design is the sloping lower face of the parapet. This provides for the absorption of a large portion of this energy by lifting the vehicle wheels on the sloping face and by compression of the vehicle suspension system prior to any contact with the barrier by the body or chassis. With low angle impacts, this application of initial resistance force at the wheel rather than at the body provides satisfactory vehicular redirection with little or no damage to the vehicle. When the vehicle weight, speed and impact angle are such that it's just too tough a problem for any car, the "remainder of the energy must be absorbed by deformation of the vehicle body and chassis." In other words, a garage bill.

The Jersey Rail safety index has so impressed thoughtful engineers that it's changed their driving habits. More than one has said that, on a fast freeway, if there's a section where the median strip is narrow, without a modern concrete barrier, they avoid the left-hand lane.

Not superstition, exactly — more like engineered thought. □

I love waitresses, because most of them — especially those in the better restaurants — are gracious, cheerful and seem to enjoy their work.

I must confess, however, that I prefer service by waiters. This is not because waiters give better service. Sometimes waitresses are more cooperative and efficient.

But there's no denying that service by a European-trained waiter in a tailored uniform adds an extra touch of class. That's one of the reasons my wife and I always enjoy our visits to Anderson's Tally Ho, an old-world-style dinner and luncheon house at 5829 Lakewood Blvd. just north of South Street in Lakewood.

Anderson's has a superlative staff of waiters directed by manager and host Bernie Moskalenko, who received his training in Europe. The restaurant's waiters have the bearing and manners of gentlemen. They also are gifted with intuition that enables them to sense what a guest needs and deliver it almost before the request is made.

Each waiter at Anderson's knows the menu in detail and can explain exactly what each entree consists of. Furthermore, they enjoy such chats and never take a superior attitude toward guests who may lack knowledge of certain continental terminology.

Long one of the most successful and beloved restaurants in this area, Anderson's has a large and varied menu, offering several dozen dinner entrees from $3.50 (splendid spaghetti and meatballs) to over $8 (for the glorious combination of filet mignon with lobster.) Each is served with a big bowl of iced relishes, steaming soup or chilled salad with croutons and chopped egg plus choice of dressing; fresh baked potato, hot cheese bread and beverage.

The grenadine of beef, veal Oskar and beef Stroganoff are served with scrumptious international sauces that make taste-buds vibrate with ecstasy. The prime rib is pampered beef, rich and juicy; so are the thick, elegant steaks. Other beauties include rack of lamb, filet of sole, tender halibut, stuffed abalone, roast Rockingham turkey, roast duckling a la orange and premium hickory-cured ham steak.

Open every day, Anderson's serves Sundays starting at 3 p.m. Upstairs banquet facilities accommodate groups from 12 to 55.

ONE OF MY FAVORITE young couples are Mike and Julianne Kyle. They own Mike's Munchies, a high quality submarine sandwich restaurant at 1034 Long Beach Blvd. across from Von's supermarket.

Back in July — when food prices were still rocketing toward the moon and hadn't dipped — Mike and Julianne took a courageous step which surprised and delighted their customers. In a prominent place, they posted this sign: "We at Mike's Munchies are fighting inflation. We insist on total quality in each of our products. We refuse to raise our prices on any of our sandwiches until May 11, 1974."

Julianne and Mike are people of integrity. No matter what happens, they won't take that sign down. And when next May rolls around they may continue postponing their price increases because their fight-inflation policy has brought them so many new customers.

MIKE KYLE
Beautiful submarines

CARICATURES BY BILL BUERGE

Closed Sundays, Mike's Munchies is open the rest of the time from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., creating long, beautiful submarine sandwiches filled with love and affection as well as prime beef, Farmer John ham, Kraft cheese, Farmer John salami, fresh tomatoes, onions, pickles, Italian peppers, Italian olives and the special house dressing. The restaurant's new microwave oven enables the submarines to be served hot if the customer wishes — and ready in a jiffy.

Those gourmet submarines come in two sizes, with most priced at $1 and $1.50. The large ham and beef submarine — an enormous serving rich with protein — is $2. Other creations include the fresh avocado submarine, the tuna submarine, the vegetarian (no meat) and the pepper steak submarine. Also known as munchies, the sandwiches are prepared on long, fresh, custom-baked rolls obtained from a special bakery.

During the rest of November, Mike's Munchies will offer a gourmet special every day for $1.25, a top value including a pepper steak submarine and a big 15-ounce glass of Busch Bavarian tap beer. Served hot, the pepper steak munchie includes chunks of prime beef sirloin with a mildly spicy sauce and other goodies.

Mike's Munchies also serves superb pickled eggs, potato salad, chef's salad, coffee and soft drinks.

Medicine & You

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

Doctors who perform hair transplants should plan them carefully, according to a new medical report. Otherwise the patient may wind up with a hairline like Dracula.

Two UCLA doctors, reporting in Archives of Otolaryngology, say that such an instance actually happened.

"Doctors are devising new hairlines seldom seen in nature," say Drs. Charles M. Monell and Walter E. Berman. "One was the creation of a dermatologist who conceived an inverted triangle coming to a sharp point low in the center of the forehead. The effect was tragic.

"After intense searching, we did find one man who had such a hairline. It was the creation of a make-up artist for Bela Lugosi as Count Dracula in a film called The White Zombie."

Citing several other examples of highly unnatural hairlines created by the transplants, the doctors say:

"The point is to plan carefully, taking nature as a model. Let us leave the creation of Draculas to the make-up man whose work can be erased with soap and water at the end of the day."

A simple cure for mild gout: Reduce body weight.

British doctors say that weight reduction usually leads to a fall in the blood level of uric acid. (Excessive uric acid in the blood sometimes leads to gout.)

So, the obese patient with mild elevations of uric acid and only infrequent attacks of gout may be able to manage his disease by weight reduction without resorting to the use of medications.

The report is that of Drs. Anne Nicholls and J. T. Scott of Charing Cross and West London Hospitals, London, England, and appears in the medical journal Lancet. A summary of their report also appears in Modern Medicine, a periodical for doctors.

The drug Hydergine is superior to papaverine in improving intellectual function and other mental factors in elderly persons, according to a new report.

Studied were 66 patients 72 to 99 years old with symptoms characterized as "complaints of the aged." Some of the symptoms were depression, confusion, fatigue and irritability.

In a 12-week trial, some patients got Hydergine, others papaverine, but the group taking Hydergine improved significantly more, reports the Journal of the American Geriatrics Society.

Mental alertness improved 72 per cent among those taking Hydergine. In the papaverine group, alertness improved in only 28 per cent.

Watch out if your window air-conditioning unit is used as a nesting place by birds.

A doctor warns that if the birds are infested with mites, the inhabitants of the house are subject to a condition called air-conditioner itch.

Dr. Sidney Brenner, in a report in the journal Consultant, says the mites can be blown into the house, to infest the patient when the air conditioner is turned on.

Cases, when they occur, are characterized by sudden onset of generalized itching and diffuse skin eruption. In some instances, more than one member of the same family will be affected at the same time.

Treatment is application of gamma benzene hexachloride lotion over the entire body at night, followed by a shower in the morning.

To prevent reinfestation, air conditioners should be cleaned completely. The whole house also should be fumigated by a professional exterminator.

The doctor says that once bird mites get into the furniture or rugs, they multiply rapidly and can be difficult to eradicate.

Vasectomy for contraceptive purposes may be irreversible if sperm antibodies should be formed, Texas researchers report.

Antibodies involved in the disposal of sperm appeared in males six weeks after vasectomy, according to a report in the journal Fertility and Sterility.

After an operation, vasovasostomy, to restore fertility, sperm-immobilizing antibodies may be transferred to the seminal fluid, say researchers at Brooke Army Medical Center.

Now there's a link between a husband's occupation and his wife's chance of contracting cancer of the cervix (neck of the womb).

Researchers in South Manchester, England, after a study of 300,000 women found the following evidence:

Women married to house painters and decorators had a much higher rate of cervical cancer than did the wives of clerical workers or men in the electrical or electronic fields.

Women with the lowest incidence of the disease had married artists, technical workers and professional men.

There was a high incidence in women who had husbands who were miners, quarrymen and laborers.

Details appear in Medical World News, a newsmagazine for doctors.

There is still no good evidence that the drug procaine has any effect on the basic aging process, says noted physician Alex Comfort in a letter to the journal Lancet. Some medical observers have claimed that procaine is a rejuvenation drug.

Q. Is Bob Hope the richest actor in show business? Did he contribute more to the Nixon 1972 campaign than any other show person?—Moses Albright, Cleveland, Ohio.

A. Republican Bob Hope, richest actor in show business—estimated wealth $300 million—contributed $50,000 to the Nixon campaign in 1972. Others in show business, not actors, contributed more. For example, Jack Warner, last of the Warner Bros., contributed $100,000 to Nixon. Ted Ashley, chairman of Warner Bros., contributed $137,056. Jules Stein, the eye-physician-turned-band-booker who founded MCA, contributed $117,822. Taft Schreiber, also of MCA, and once Ronald Reagan's agent, contributed $66,102. Jack Wrather, owner of the Lassie TV series, contributed $84,059. Producer Hal Wallis contributed $7500.

BOB HOPE AND WIFE DOLORES

Q. Bobby Darin, once married to Sandra Dee, lived with a beauty named Andrea Yeager for three years. Then they got married. Three months later they split. How come?—Natalie Anderson, Tucson, Ariz.

A. Marriage sometimes dissolves love affairs.

BOBBY DARIN AND ANDREA YEAGER

DAVID PARKER

DWIGHT CHAPIN

Q. Dwight Chapin who hired his college roommate, Donald Segretti, to play dirty tricks on the Democratic Presidential candidates, has left the White House for United Airlines. Who has replaced Chapin as President Nixon's appointments secretary?—L. Carter, Elk Grove Village, Ill.

A. Chapin was more than appointments secretary, but the appointments secretary job has now gone to his onetime assistant, David Parker, who works out of the Executive Office Building across from the White House. Parker, 33, from Detroit, is listed as special assistant to the President, earns $32,000 annually.

Q. Somerset Maugham, Robin Maugham, Virginia Woolf, John Maynard Keynes, Lytton Strachey, Emlyn Williams, Vita Sackville-West—were they in fact all sexual deviants, and why is that deviancy so characteristic of the British literati?—Ronald Bruce, Cambridge, Mass.

A. Homosexuality and bisexuality among British writers is in large part owing to the traditional segregation of the sexes in British schools, particularly in the boarding schools where over the years so many headmasters were themselves homosexuals. Two good books on the subject: A Portrait of a Marriage by Nigel Nicolson; Emlyn by Emlyn Williams.

Q. Is it true that Senators Ervin, Inouye and Talmadge voted to kill the Senate investigation of Bobby Baker? And is it true that as acting FBI director, Pat Gray, ordered the Chappaquiddick file on Senator Ted Kennedy destroyed?—P.D. Burkhalter, Deltona, Fla.

A. The Senators in question voted against S. Resolution 330 as regards Baker, but Baker was investigated, prosecuted, and sent to jail despite his friendship with Lyndon Johnson. Former acting director Pat Gray did not order the Chappaquiddick file on Sen. Ted Kennedy destroyed. He destroyed faked cables which White House agent Howard Hunt had fabricated concerning the assassination of South Vietnam's President Diem.

Q. Is there any man in his right mind who would want to become the sixth Mr. Elizabeth Taylor? Please list her previous husbands and tell what will happen to Richard Burton?—Eva Deno, Islip Terrace, N.Y.

A. Elizabeth Taylor has been married to Nicky Hilton, Michael Wilding, Mike Todd, Eddie Fisher, and Richard Burton. Two of her five husbands, Hilton and Todd, are dead. If Liz finds a sixth husband, he will probably be one of the world's most courageous or foolish men, or an ambitious, self-serving publicity-seeker. As for Burton, highly susceptible to the flesh and the bottle, he can continue indefinitely as a character actor, captivating in his private life girls of mediocre intelligence.

ELIZABETH TAYLOR AND RICHARD BURTON

NICKY HILTON

MICHAEL WILDING

Q. Nancy Sinatra, Frank's daughter—is she about to make him a grandfather?—Trish Haley, Eugene, Oreg.

Sen. Daniel Inouye: Watergate Changed His Life

by Lloyd Shearer

Sen. and Mrs. Daniel Ken Inouye, both 49, with their only child Daniel Ken Jr., 9, known as "Kenny." Mrs. Inouye, the former Margaret Awamura, received her Bachelor of Education degree from the University of Hawaii, her Master of Arts from Columbia in New York City. Holding a job as a secretary, she put her husband through law school. Now she does charity work, looks after the Senator and their son.

WASHINGTON, D.C., AND HONOLULU

This past summer when the Watergate hearings reached their apogee, a group of schoolboys ran up to Sen. Ted Kennedy and Dan Inouye.

"I stepped back," explains the diminutive (5-feet, 6-inch) Democratic Senator from Hawaii, "because I knew from experience that everybody wants Ted's autograph. But this time it was different. The kids didn't want his autograph. They wanted mine. I knew then that Watergate had changed my life."

Ironically, Inouye (pronounced—in-aw-way) vehemently refused to accept a place on the Watergate committee when it was first offered to him. "I tried every way I knew to get out of the assignment."

But the Democratic leadership insisted. They wanted someone with a Mr. Clean image to investigate the Republicans' dirty tricks, and Inouye has a spotless record in politics. Until Watergate, however, national limelight escaped him.

In 1959, when he arrived in Washington, a freshman Congressman to represent the new state of Hawaii, he was introduced to the venerable and veteran Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, then 77.

"It's a very great honor for me," acknowledged Inouye, "to meet the most famous, widely recognized member of the Congress."

Speaker Sam took optical inventory of Inouye. "Don't worry," the Texan assured him. "You'll soon be the second most widely recognized member in the Congress."

Inouye, 35, raised a quizzical eyebrow. "How do you figure that, Mr. Speaker?"

Rayburn replied quickly, "We don't have too many one-armed, Japanese Congressmen here."

Prophecy fulfilled

Today, 14 years later, after three years in the House of Representatives and almost two terms in the Senate, Daniel Inouye, has virtually fulfilled the prophecy of Speaker Sam Rayburn, who died in 1961. He has become one of the most widely recognized members of the U.S. Senate.

Owing to his ethnic background (Japanese), the loss of his right arm (in World War II) and his membership in the Senate Watergate Committee, Senator Inouye is instantaneously recognized these days.

Prior to Watergate, he was known mostly in the Senate and within the borders of his own state where he's always been exceedingly popular. (In 1968 he was reelected by a staggering 83.3 percent of the ballots.)

"Now," he says, "it's a different ball game. When I get off the plane in San Francisco, going to or coming from Honolulu, people come up to me and shake my hand. Perfect strangers. They've seen me on TV. I've appeared on all the networks. I'm constantly called for interviews and speeches. Before Watergate, my exposure quotient was almost zero, at least on the Mainland.

More mail, more work

"Watergate added five hours to my workday, every day. The mail load increased from 200 to 1000. The peak was something like 4000 a day.

"From a family standpoint," Inouye continues, "Watergate also made a difference. My home telephone numbers in both Washington and Hawaii are listed. My son, Dan, 9, used to enjoy answering the phone. But since Watergate I grab the phone, because although most of the phone calls are courteous, there are now some that are rather hateful. I don't want Danny picking up the receiver and getting barraged by obscenities. Until Watergate I never got obscene calls."

Before Watergate, however, Inouye was never considered a possible Democratic Vice Presidential candidate; now he is. There is no mentioned Democratic Presidential hopeful—Kennedy, Mondale, or Humphrey—who does not hold Inouye in a favorable running-mate light.

A war hero, a Methodist, a minority ethnic member, a superb campaigner who has never lost a race, a politician unsullied by the slightest stain of scandal, Inouye is regarded as a political plus. At 49 he is young, vigorous, growing, an exemplary U.S. Senator. The largest campaign contribution he ever received was donated by Mary Lasker, widow of the advertising tycoon, Albert Lasker.

"It was in 1959," Inouye narrates, "right after Hawaii was accorded statehood, and I announced my candidacy for the House of Representatives. One day I received a $5000 check from New York City from Mary Lasker. I had never met a woman named Mary Lasker.

"But there was her check and a one-line letter. It said, 'I wish you all the best.' That's all. I wrote a letter thanking her, but I never got a response. Three years later I finally met Mrs. Lasker, and I thanked her. 'Oh, don't mention it,' she said. Incidentally, she never asked me for a single favor."

'What I'd like...'

Inouye insists, "I do not want to be Vice President of the United States. I have never in my wildest dreams seen myself in that role, and I don't see it now. What I'd like are two more terms in the Senate. Nothing more. By that time I would be 62. My son would be 22, capable of earning his own living.

"I'd like then to go back to Hawaii with my wife Margaret, perhaps teach a seminar in political science, maybe write a book on government. I've seen a lot of books on government, but I've yet to see one that would give a real insight into what goes on around here. For example, just look at how I got appointed to the Watergate Committee."

Originally, Mike Mansfield, the Senate Democratic Leader, decided that no Democrat who was a lawyer should be assigned to the Watergate Committee. Immediately that eliminated half the Democrats in the Senate. His second restriction was that no senior Senator who chaired a committee, Fulbright of Foreign Relations, Eastland of Judiciary, McClellan of Appropriations, Jackson of Interior, should be assigned, because these Senators already carried too heavy a workload. A third restriction held that if any Democratic Senator had ever aspired to the Presidency or had been mentioned seriously for it, then he, too, was disqualified.

"It finally came down to four of us," Inouye says half jokingly, "myself, Montoya, Talmadge, and Sam Ervin. And even then, Mike Mansfield had to scrap the lawyer restriction, or he couldn't have gotten anybody."

All for the best

Inouye, of course, is now happy that he accepted the Watergate chore. It not only afforded him maximum TV exposure and new prestige during his start-up campaign for a third term, but, he says, "I believe what the committee disclosed will have a lasting effect on future Presidents and their advisers. It will help reform the campaign practices of the nation."

The Senator, who spent $60,000 in his first Senatorial race in 1962 and $70,000 in 1968, says that he personally has learned a great deal from the Watergate hearings.

"Having been in politics since 1954," he explains, "I wasn't particularly naive about big money, but I never dreamed that so much—$60 million of Republican funds and about $37 million of Democratic funds—was involved in the '72 campaign.

"I was also not aware of the dirty tricks, the espionage, the arm-twisting, the shady, scurvy, slimy tactics, the corruption of young men by older men who preached law and order. And this bugging of telephones! It's been shocking! And what a horrible commentary on our democracy!

"I'm sad to say," he asserts, "that many of us in the Senate just assume that our phones are tapped. I operate on that basis. You notice that the doors to my office are always open. If you come into my file room, you'll notice a whole bank of filing cabinets. They're all open. No one has to jimmy them. The only time we lock our doors is at night. In Honolulu, the same thing. My desk is set up in such a way that as soon as one opens the door they can see me. I make myself accessible, and if your discussion is unfit for my secretary's ears, I don't want to hear it.

Names and amounts

"I recently had a campaign fund-raising dinner in Honolulu. I released all the names and addresses of the contributors and the amount each had contributed, and I'm going to insist upon that procedure.

"At a time when the Vice President of the United States has resigned and the President himself is under fire and the whole political system is under a dark cloud of suspicion, I believe that legislators, politicians have to reassure the people that honesty and openness and decency are still the character ingredients of the men they elected."

Daniel Inouye, the first Nisei ever elected to the U.S. Senate, feels a very special obligation to the American way of life even though he has been a victim of its prejudices.

Pre-war Hawaii, run by the descendants of the American missionaries who had stolen, connived, and intermarried into Hawaiian property, was full of bias. It was only through the intervention of Franklin D. Roosevelt that the War Department after Pearl Harbor permitted 1500 Nisei volunteers to join the U.S. Army, form the 442nd Regiment combat team and die in Italy in horrendous numbers to prove their loyalty. Eventually some 33,000 Nisei saw action in Europe.

What price glory?

In 1946, Capt. Daniel Inouye was returning to Honolulu. Heavily decorated with rows of campaign ribbons, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Bronze Star, the Purple Heart—small compensation for the loss of his right arm in a gallant assault against a German machine-gun bunker in Italy—Inouye walked into a San Francisco barber shop, his empty right sleeve pinned to his tunic. He asked for a haircut.

"We don't serve Japs here," the owner snapped.

Twenty-seven years later, Inouye was again to hear the "Jap" racial slur; this time from John J. Wilson, the Watergate lawyer for President Nixon's two closest advisers, Bob Haldeman and John Ehrlichman, the latter now under indictment for perjury and conspiracy. Subsequently, attorney Wilson apologized, and Inouye generously accepted the apology, attributing the "Jap-crack" to the hot climate generated by the Watergate hearings, in which the Senator had muttered under his breath, after hearing Ehrlichman's testimony, "What a liar."

Of the seven on the Watergate committee, Dan Inouye (l.), shown with Sen. Joseph Montoya (D,N. Mex.), seemed to the public to be most fair questioning witnesses. Inouye is well liked by Senate colleagues, who call him "Danny."

Dan Inouye was born in Honolulu on Sept. 7, 1924, the son of poor Japanese immigrant parents. His mother was the orphaned daughter of a Hiroshima family whose members had signed up for contract labor on the sugar plantations of Hawaii. His father came to Hawaii from Japan with his parents at the age of 4.

Named after a Methodist minister, young Dan was raised in poverty. He attended Honolulu public schools, was graduated from McKinley High School, then named "Tokyo High," because most of its students were Japanese.

After Pearl Harbor

When Pearl Harbor erupted, Inouye was 17. At the outset of the war, all Americans of Japanese ancestry were discharged from National Guard units in Hawaii and rejected by the Selective Service system. Sometime later, President Roosevelt declared, "Americanism is a matter of the mind and heart; Americanism is not, and never was, a matter of race and ancestry." He ordered the War Department to accept a limited number of Americans of Japanese descent. Dan Inouye, 18, a freshman in pre-med studies at the University of Hawaii, was one of those. Sent to Italy where he won a battlefield commission as a second lieutenant "because I learned how to kill well," he was seriously wounded by a German rifle grenade at close range, spent 20 months in various Army hospitals after losing his right arm.

Meets future wife

Returning to Honolulu, he abandoned hopes of becoming a surgeon and entered the U. of Hawaii as a pre-law student. There he met Margaret "Maggie" Awamura, daughter of a Honolulu jeweler who had done her undergraduate work at Hawaii and had also taken a master's degree at Columbia University.

"I met him via a phone call," Mrs. Inouye says of her first date with her husband. "He called to say hello and asked me for a date, a dinner-dance at Fort Shafter with some of his veteran friends. I said yes, and on the second date he took me out to dinner and proposed. I said yes again.

"We got married in 1949 and went off to Washington, D.C., where I worked as a secretary in the Navy Department while Dan went to George Washington University Law School. Then we returned to Honolulu where Dan practiced law and went into politics. It was a very propitious time. For years the Republican Party had dominated politics in the islands, but after the war the Democratic Party opened its

Before World War II, Japanese-Americans in Hawaii had no political power, but after the war, veterans like Captain Inouye reached for political and social equality and achieved it. Today, they control the state legislature, and Hawaii's two U.S. Senators are Hiram Fong (Chinese-American) and Daniel Inouye (Japanese-American).

arms to the returning Nisei and other underprivileged groups, and Dan ran into them."

Inouye ran for the territorial House of Representatives in 1954, was elected majority leader at age 30, held the position until 1958 when he was elected to the Hawaii Senate.

A year later when Hawaii became a state he won election to the House of Representatives and then re-election to a full term in 1960. In 1962 he ran for the U.S. Senate against Benjamin Dillingham II, son of a prominent Hawaii family, and won by nearly 70 percent of the vote. In 1968 he won by an even greater margin. And in 1974 his third-term victory seems assured.

The Senator and his wife have only one child, 9-year-old son Danny, "who came late in our lives, when we both were 40," Inouye points out, "and I try to spend as much time with him as possible. We live in Bethesda, Md., and we feed tropical fish and look after squirrels, chipmunks and birds together.

Entertain little

"My wife and I don't entertain very much. In the eight years we've had our Bethesda house, we've had two receptions, both of them neighborhood receptions. I don't give parties for ambassadors or other Senators or visiting dignitaries. I need time to be alone with my family, to collect my thoughts, to think things through."

When asked how he would describe himself politically, the Senator says he's a moderate Democrat. He regrets having supported the Vietnamese war, attributes it in large part to his friendship with Lyndon Johnson "and the conditions of the times."

He used to wear an artificial arm "when I first got out of the hospital," and asks, "Did you know that Phil Hart [Democratic Senator from Michigan] and Bob Dole [Republican Senator from Kansas] and I were all in the same veterans hospital in Battle Creek, Mich., after the war? Prosthetics weren't very well developed back then. Wearing an artificial arm in tropical Hawaii was uncomfortable and sticky and smelly. And I didn't need it to practice law, so I took it off; and I just haven't worn one since."

Leads poll

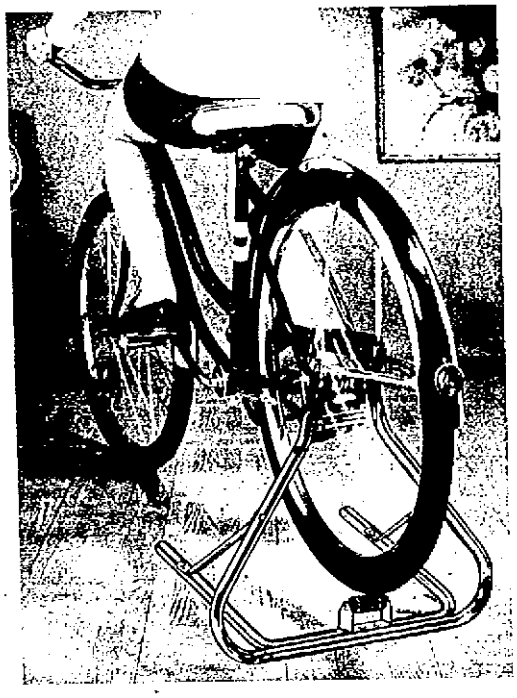

This past August, a survey by the Gallup Poll people revealed that all seven members of the Watergate committee were favorably regarded by a majority of Americans, with some achieving a nationwide name awareness.

In that same survey, the Gallup pollsters asked their subjects to rate the seven committee members on a 10-point attitude scale. Daniel Inouye came in first with a 64 percent favorable rating. Sam Ervin was second with 61 percent, Howard Baker third with 78.

Those statistics faithfully reflect the sensational popularity climb of Daniel Inouye in the past six months from island Senator to national celebrity.

Where he goes from here he declines to speculate. His reelection in 1974 seems a certainty. The Republicans in Hawaii may not even offer token opposition. Inouye maintains that U.S. Senator is as high an office as he cares to achieve. Certainly he has brought great honor to his native state by his Horatio Alger rise. But politics has an insidious way of infecting men with its ambition virus. And it would surprise few people if the Democratic National Convention in 1976 nominated him as its candidate for the Vice Presidency.

Should School Spankings Be Outlawed?

by Jeane Westin

Heidi 9, limped off the yellow school bus in front of her California home last spring. She was crying and clutching her leg. On her thigh was a hand-shaped bruise. "I couldn't believe my eyes," said Heidi's mother. Immediately, she confronted Heidi's teacher. "First he denied hitting her," she reported, "then admitted it. Later he resigned." Although the bruise eventually disappeared, Heidi's mother doesn't know whether her child suffered psychological damage from her encounter with a cruel teacher. Heidi can't communicate her feelings—she is mentally retarded.

In Indiana, 10-year-old Johnny telephoned his mother at home late one Friday afternoon. "Mom, I'm going to be late," he told her, voice trembling. "The principal is going to spank me with the paddle." Why? his mother asked. "Because I have three demerits this week," Johnny answered.

Arrived too late

Rushing across town, Johnny's mother arrived too late to stop the paddling which left large welts across her son's buttocks. What were the boy's transgressions? He had (1) turned in a messy paper, (2) chewed gum in class, and

(3) hung his coat on someone else's hook. Previously, a better-than-average student, after the whipping Johnny's grades dropped steadily until his parents obtained permission to send him to another school.

Thousands of American youngsters like Heidi and Johnny are still being painfully taught "to the tune of a hickory stick" in 47 out of our 50 states. Only Maryland, Massachusetts and New Jersey have outlawed corporal punishment in schools.

"The problem isn't just one of welted buttocks and swollen fingers," says Dr. Adah Maurer of Berkeley, Calif., a child psychologist and founder of the nationwide committee to End Violence Against the Next Generation (EVAN-G). "It's the emotional scars a youngster can carry through life—scars that even psychotherapy sometimes cannot erase."

Hate and hostility

Dr. Maurer describes, from a psychologist's viewpoint, a typical corporal punishment scene: "While the child bends to grasp his ankles, so the principal can apply the 'board of education,' the child isn't thinking, 'From now on I'm going to follow the rules and be a good kid.' No, he's full of hate, aggression and hostility. He's learning that might makes right."

For example, there's the case of 8-year-old Wayne, a patient of Dr. Maurer. The boy, despite a very high IQ of 153, is currently repeating the third grade. His previous third-grade teacher constantly sent the boy to the principal's office to be paddled for "smart talk and questioning authority."

Torturing the family cat

"This child paid an enormous price for the day-to-day physical punishment inflicted on him," says Dr. Maurer. "He became terrified of school and had horrible nightmares. When he began to torture the family cat, his parents brought him to me. Obviously he was only passing along violence that had been taught to him."

Some experts maintain that many school rules are rigid and unnecessary. Dr. Alan Button, psychologist and author of The Authentic Child, believes most corporal punishment in school can be avoided easily. "Sometimes kids are punished," says Dr. Button, "just for being kids, for talking or not standing in straight rows."

Educators who administer physical punishment may suffer bad effects, as well. Says Harvard's Dr. B.F. Skinner, the behavioral psychologist: "The effect of repeatedly and righteously inflicting physical pain is likely to be more detrimental to a teacher's mental health."

An ex-paddling principal agrees: "I became frightened by my own behavior," he said. "I recognized in myself an urge to become ever more violent, to hit harder and use a bigger paddle."

It's this tendency on the part of some educators to lose control that causes most concern among the anti-paddling forces.

"I couldn't believe what was going on when I began to teach in Pittsburgh schools," says Mrs. Carolyn Schumacher, a former resident of Chicago where there is no corporal punishment. "Regulation 12-inch paddles were manufactured to specification by the junior high boy's woodshop. The principal and vice-principal strutted up and down the halls swinging these weapons, and each day there was a 'swats' lineup after school.

'The paddles broke'

"They said it didn't hurt. But sometimes they'd hit the kids so hard, the paddles broke on them."

One particularly flagrant case caused a committee of 500 concerned citizens to demand the abolition of corporal punishment in Pittsburgh schools.

A 9-year-old boy sailed a paper airplane in class. His furious teacher gave him a choice of punishments: either eat the plane or submit to spanking. He decided to eat the paper. She angrily shoved the paper in the boy's mouth, and watched him swallow it—then spanked him anyway.

The incident, reported in the local newspaper, was instrumental in the movement to phase out physical punishment. The process was completed by the beginning of the 1973 term.

As a result of the Pittsburgh committee's work, the National Education Association came out squarely against corporal punishment in school in 1972. Why? Because, after a year-long study, they found physical punishment actually hinders learning. In their report, they quoted B. Othanel Smith, who writes in the Encyclopedia of Education Research: "A teacher's punitiveness distracts pupils from their school work."

But one of the NEA's most telling arguments against corporal punishment in the schools is that it simply doesn't work. Says Charles T. McElvaney, a supervisor of psychological service in Maryland schools: "It is not an effective discipline, but harmful to discipline. The same children are paddled,

Students in Glassboro, N. J., conduct "trials" of their peers accused of misdeeds. This self-policing helps teachers by taking them out of the "punishment business."

spanked, whipped, hit over and over again." He adds that physical abuse by teachers does not even reduce misbehavior. "Studies show schools using it have more behavior problems."

In many parts of the country, however, teachers and administrators are reluctant to give up their power to punish, partly because muggings, beatings and even homicides of teachers by students have made headlines, if not become commonplace. Violence of this sort, of course, occurs in the junior high or high school grades—seldom at the elementary level, where most of the teacher-to-student abuse occurs.

Self-defense is OK

Recognizing student violence as a serious problem, even the most militant anti-punishment groups advocate proper protection for teachers and school property. Most subscribe to the NEA's proposed model law which allows a teacher appropriate amounts of physical restraint to protect himself from physical injury; to obtain possession of a weapon, or to protect school property.

Just how do these reformists answer the teacher's cry: "What am I supposed to do with some of these unruly kids?"

The NEA, a teacher organization of 1.4 million members, Dr. Maurer and other psychologists propose a number of alternatives to the use of force in the classroom:

- Teacher aides, who take disruptive students aside, to listen, talk, counsel.
- Activity periods, designed to interrupt too-long hours of deskbound concentration.
- Class councils, in which students meet to discuss good and bad behavior and appropriate punishments.
- Teacher retraining, in which modern disciplinary techniques are introduced.
- Quiet rooms, a place where both students and teachers can go to deal with emotions.

Dr. Alan Button, explaining the "quiet room" approach, says, "I think every school should have a therapeutic rest area—a room for teachers as well as kids—a place to get away long enough to get hold of one's self, padded maybe, with pillows to throw and punch to get rid of anger and frustration."

Although the abolition of corporal punishment in schools isn't moving fast enough for its advocates, progress is being made. Force is already banned in Chicago, San Francisco, St. Paul, Pittsburgh, Washington, D.C., and in individual districts across the country.

In all, over 60 anti-corporal punishment groups, plus the NEA, are working to abolish authorized aggression in the nation's schools.

In the meantime, what should parents do if they suspect their child is being physically abused in school? Dr. Maurer advises: "Complain!"

"It is a myth that parents who complain to the teacher get their children into more trouble. Actually, complaining parents make trouble for a cruel teacher."

She adds: "I think we've forgotten that discipline does not mean punishment. Genuine discipline means cooperation, and cooperation is the only thing that will bring peace and order to our classrooms."

Veils on hats are making a comeback for glamorous evening wear. Shown here are a green satin cap with a brown cascading veil and green feather boa (ensemble by Frank Olive, $50) and a white, draped satin turban with nose veil (by Adolfo II, $25).

The Veiled Look

by Suzanne Curley

Another version of the veiled hat is a sporty yet dressy white felt fedora (by Frank Olive at $16) with a veil attached at the snap brim.

There's a new headliner in fashion these days—the veiled hat. While veils have had a certain place in fashion since Salome's famous dance, their current usage is both more practical and more refined. A bit of elegant netting, alluringly placed to barely brush the tip of the nose, can transform an ordinary hat into a beauty—and a just satisfactory outfit into a sensation. You'll find veils affixed to head-hugging caps that go with daytime suits or smart bulky sweaters, and on fedoras, with jaunty, dipping brims, to complement fur-collared coats. Even evening hats—those satiny turbans in dazzling colors—seductively veil a party-goer's face these days. But the happy quality that these diverse millinery wonders share is that they go to any head in style.

Is there Death After Life?

Paramahansa Yogananda, founder of Self-Realization Fellowship said, "Do not limit your thought to one brief life and one small earth. You are here for only a little while, then depart for a dissimilar and fascinating world. Remember the vastness of the Spirit that dwells within you. Try to realize you are a divine traveler."

The awakening of such a realization enables one's "Self" to discover its place in the cosmic scheme of things. This "Self-realization" is the key to health, happiness and a spiritual understanding of the continuity of life: that there is no death. Only change.

Self-Realization Fellowship teaches you how to apply meditation to find your key to the wisdom necessary for successful living in today's complicated world.

Fit for a Queen

PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Americans have borrowed much from the Dutch: Dutch treat, Dutch uncle, Dutch doors. But cuisine from the Netherlands has hardly touched these shores since New Amsterdam became New York. One such recipe is a Cheese Taart now featured at the New York Hilton as part of a celebration of the 25th anniversary of Dutch Queen Juliana's reign.

The hotel's Dutch Taveerne features the easy-to-fix cheese pie as a main dish with an unusual hearty flavor. Made of grated Edam or Gouda cheese combined with sliced tomatoes, mushrooms and bread crumbs, the tart bakes in only 20 minutes. This palate-pleaser from the kitchens of Holland may be served with tossed green salad as the perfect light lunch.

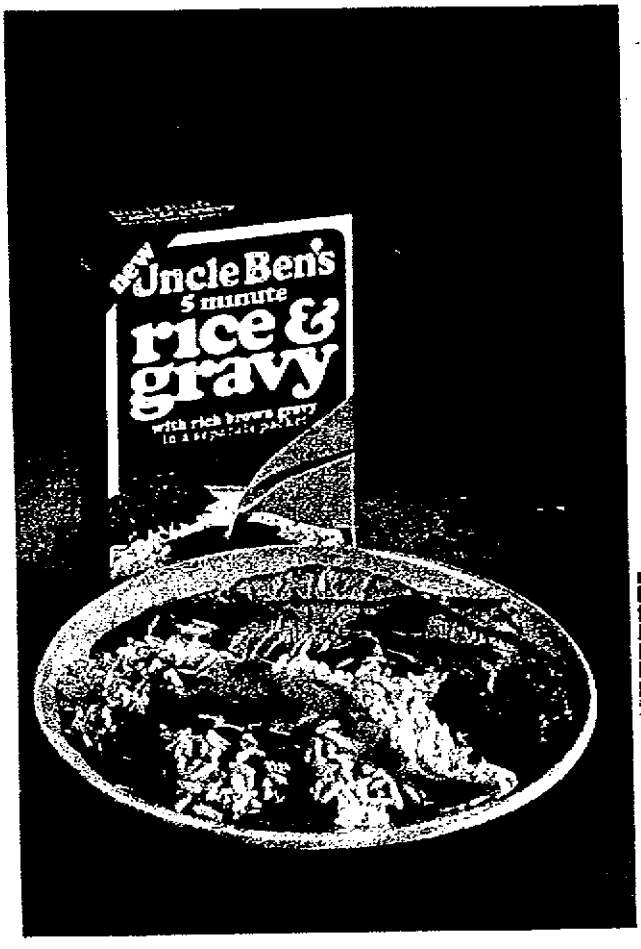

Dutch Cheese Taart

10 ounces Holland Edam or Gouda cheese, divided
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1 cup soft bread crumbs
3 medium tomatoes, sliced
6 to 8 small mushroom caps
1 tablespoon melted butter or margarine

Shred 4 ounces Edam or Gouda (should yield 1 cup). With a sharp knife, cut remaining cheese in thin slices. Blend shredded cheese, ¼ cup melted butter and bread crumbs. Press firmly on bottom and sides of well-greased 9-inch pie pan. Cover with a layer of sliced cheese and then a layer of tomato slices. Top with mushroom caps. Brush with remaining 1 tablespoon melted butter. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Makes six servings.

Note: The crumb crust may be made ahead of time if desired.

I gave up smoking and lost 68 pounds.

By Carlene Paulk — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

The day I took my last puff, it seemed like I blew away my will power. Because once the smoke cleared, that scale began to go up and up until I reached 196 pounds.

At first, you see, I was like everyone else who gives up cigarettes. When I stopped reaching for one, I started eating everything in sight. Why, my mouth was full all of the time.

I'll tell you, my appetite nearly ruined my life. And the whole congregation of King's Baptist Church in Vero Beach, Florida knows it. Why, more than once the pastor prayed with me — not about my fat, but my marriage.

As I gained, Billy (my husband) began calling me "Famous Hips." For good reason, too. I was 56 inches around, so I really earned the nickname. But how it hurt when I heard it. Yet instead of controlling what I ate, I kept loading up with more food and caring less. Even my son was ashamed to have me at school.

Still, I couldn't get hold of myself. I guess it was because I knew my husband was losing interest in me. If an invitation came for us, he'd refuse it, saying that he was getting too old to go out anymore. And imagine, he was only in his thirties!

Finally, we withdrew from one another, until all that was left of our marriage was the love we had for our children.

Understand, though I hated to hear about my problem, deep down it was gnawing at me. That's why I tried so many diets and pills. But they made me nervous, so I gave them up. When I did, my appetite doubled. I sometimes thought about going back to smoking, but I'd promised myself not to, so didn't.

Thank goodness, I'd been reading the stories of people who'd lost weight with the help of the Ayds plan. So I bought some vanilla caramel Ayds® at our local drug store. The label on the box said that Ayds contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs. And they certainly proved right for me, because I experienced no nervousness, no side effects, no sickness at all on the Ayds plan.

For breakfast, I'd have two Ayds with hot coffee about 20 minutes before a hard boiled egg. At lunch, two more Ayds with black coffee, a salad, lean meat and a vegetable. Then a mid-afternoon snack of Ayds and tea. And at supper, two Ayds and coffee, before baked or broiled meat or fish, a vegetable and a salad. Those Ayds really helped me cut down on food, yet I was completely satisfied.

By the second week, I'd lost three or four pounds on the Ayds plan. Soon, I began to lose more — sometimes five pounds in one week. After that, nothing could get me off the Ayds plan, even when we visited Billy's family in Georgia, where I was surrounded by good cooking. That was about three months after I'd been on the Ayds plan and I was down to 160 pounds. My weight loss made such an impression on my sister-in-law, she bought a box herself. Of course, she only needed to lose about 10 pounds, but the Ayds plan worked just as well for her.

You can see why my husband used to call me "Famous Hips." At 196 pounds, I was as big as our car fender.

Look at the difference in my thighs and knees now. And that's not all being 128 pounds has done for me.

Those Ayds candies were wonderful another way, too. I could carry them around as easy as a pack of cigarettes. And since Ayds contain only 26 calories apiece, I was soon in pretty good shape. Instead of reaching for a cigarette or a fattening sweet, I'd have an Ayds.

Now, thanks to the Ayds plan, I'm down to 128 pounds and compliments are coming my my way. I don't mind saying, the whole church is proud of me. Billy and I are real close again. What's more, my husband's talked so much about my experience, I think the whole South knows of it. If they don't, I guess they will after reading this. So I'd like to add one last thing.

I'm not trying to preach to anyone, or to say the Ayds plan will help everybody in the world with a weight problem. All I know is that the Ayds plan helped me where nothing else did. And I hope and pray that this story will help someone else be as happy as I am now.

Murder Ink

by Herbert Kupferberg

NEW YORK, N.Y.

"The detective story isn't dead or even dying," says Dylis Winn. "In fact, it's got plenty of blood left in it."

Miss Winn, a peppery, talkative 32-year-old advertising copywriter, should know. She's the founder and proprietor of an establishment called Murder Ink, which she says is the world's first book store devoted exclusively to mystery stories. Tucked away on a side street in Manhattan's Upper West Side, Murder Ink has become so successful in one year's operation that Miss Winn is getting ready to franchise it in other cities.

"There's no doubt that the detective story is changing, but it's changing with the times," says Miss Winn, who was born in Dublin and came to the U.S. as a child. "Murder mysteries always have been very much a part of the here and now. Today the detective story has come down out of the upper classes in its setting and gotten down into the lives of ordinary people. The big trend is toward what we call police procedurals, where the detectives are part of the official force, and the crimes are real-life, not some sort of an intellectual puzzle.

"Look at Maigret, George Simenon's hero. He works right out of the police precinct. Realism is the big thing. I don't know anything about pouring sherry in the afternoon, and I don't own a big country estate. What I do know about is getting mugged. So crime stories have not only come down to earth, they've gone into the streets. Nowadays, the poison isn't dropped into the sherry, it's put into the pizza."

Murder mysteries have changed not only in scene but in style, says Miss Winn.

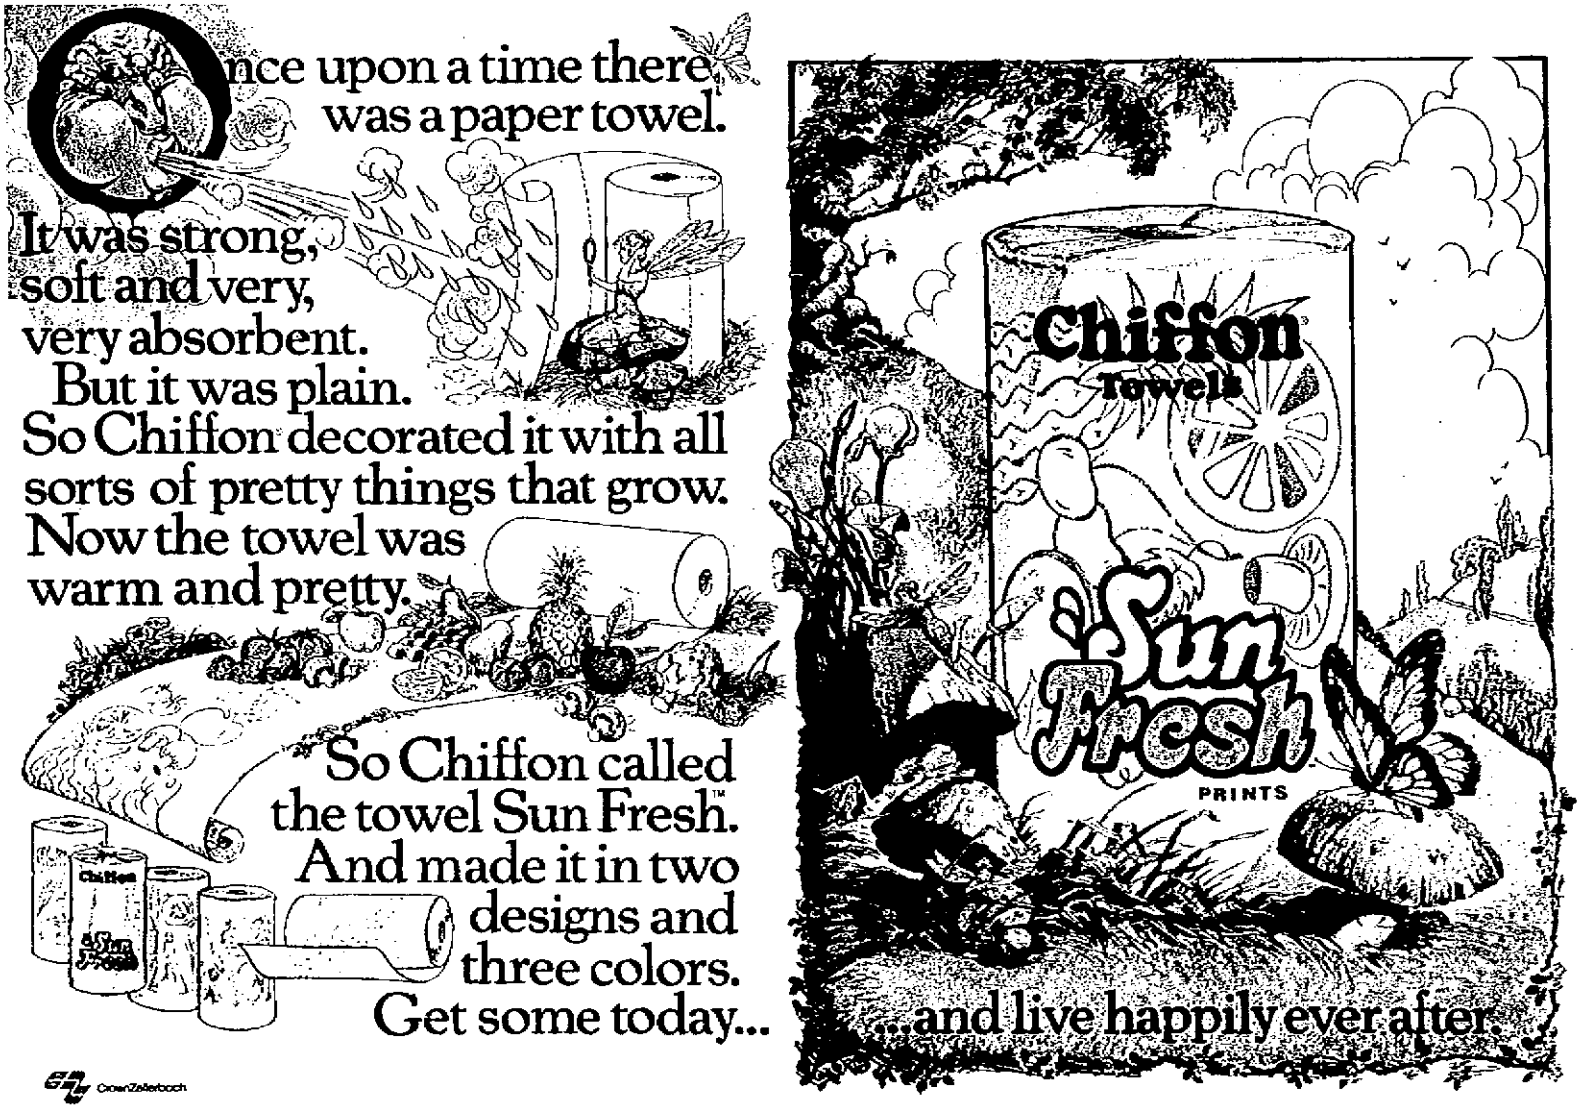

"Readers don't sit still any more for the type of book that slowly builds up a puzzle and then suddenly explains everything in the last 10 pages. They want action all along, with plenty of things happening. The detective story is moving toward sex and violence—pure excitement. In many cases it's becoming more of a spy or an adventure story, the James Bond type. I accept James Bond; he's terrific to read. But still, there is something of a loss in the movement away from the older kind of writing, which required the reader to use his head more."

More female detectives

Miss Winn also says she detects a trend toward female detectives, citing specifically Professor Kate Fansler, the creation of author Amanda Cross—a pseudonym for a real-life Columbia University English professor named Carolyn Heilbrun.

"Actually, there have been women detectives before," Miss Winn points out. "But they've usually been little old ladies like the kind Agatha Christie wrote about, or part of a husband-and-wife team. But now we're going to see more and more of the vital, contemporary woman cast as a detective."

Miss Winn also notes such spin-offs as detective story cookbooks, citing three examples: Murder on the Menu, which is a collection of recipes based on English mystery novels; The Mafia Cookbook, and The Nero Wolfe Cookbook. Actually, fictional detectives have traditionally been noted for their taste in food; the great Sherlock Holmes, for instance, laid out a dinner of oysters and a brace of grouse, together with "something a little choice in white wines," before setting out in a boat down the Thames to nab Jonathan Small, the one-legged diamond thief in The Sign of the Four.

Dylis Winn, advertising copywriter, is the proprietor of Murder Ink, a New York book shop devoted exclusively to detective stories.

Miss Winn got into the detective book business because she had long been a fan of murder mysteries and decided that she might as well sell them as read them. She stocks about 3500 titles, most of them current, but with a sprinkling of rare items, such as a first edition of The Hound of the Baskervilles for which she's asking $125. Part of her business is mail-order, and she says she does some detective work herself, tracking down out-of-print mysteries. Her staff consists of two assistants. Also, usually on the premises are her two pet cats.

"The store is becoming kind of a center for mystery fans," she says. "Detective story readers are usually terribly shy people. They love to meet other fans and talk about the stories—you know, 'Do you remember the one where she died in the swimming pool?' and that sort of thing. Nobody comes in here unless they love mysteries. We even get neighborhood cops dropping in."

Miss Winn says that while the name Murder Ink may have contributed to her shop's reputation, it also produces unexpected complications. Recently she received a phone call from a woman, and the conversation ran like this:

"Is this Murder Incorporated?"

"No, it's Murder Ink."

"Well, can you take care of something for me?"

"Do you realize that we're a book store?"

"Oh. Then you can't take care of something for me."

Bomb squad called

Another woman, in Scarsdale, N.Y., received a package from the store containing a gift copy of Murder on the Menu sent by a friend. "The recipient saw Murder Ink stamped on the package," says Miss Winn. "Instead of opening it, she called the Scarsdale Bomb Squad. They called us."

In addition to its name, the shop has one other peculiarity befitting a mystery store—it is open largely at night.

"Our hours are 4:30 p.m. to 11 p.m.," says Dylis. "The best market for mysteries is at night. Maybe the readers are insomniacs. Anyhow, they come in here evenings to chat or to browse. Sometimes they're surprised at what we have. I even keep Dostoievski's Crime and Punishment on the shelves. I look at it this way: if somebody gets killed, I'll carry the book."

THE $2 MILLION SETTLEMENT: ELVIS PRESLEY AND PRISCILLA BEAULIEU

ELVIS THE KIND Elvis Presley is without a doubt the most generous performer in show business. He not only has contributed millions to the Motion Picture Relief Fund and other charities, but in the past five years he has gifted friends with a dozen or so Rolls-Royces. If Elvis likes you, a Rolls is yours.

One of the most recent and typical examples of the 38-year-old singer's generosity is the financial settlement he arranged last month with his ex-wife, the former Priscilla Beaulieu. Elvis and Priscilla were married in Las Vegas in May, 1967, and agreed after five years of marriage and one child, Lisa, 5, to divorce in August, 1972.

At that time, Elvis agreed to give Priscilla "$100,000, a couple of cars and to support Lisa."

Back then it was no secret that marriage had failed to curb Elvis' extracurricular sexual appetite, and that Priscilla in turn had fallen in love with her Hawaiian karate instructor.

Anyway, last May 29, Priscilla changed her mind about the original financial settlement and said she would like to find out how much Elvis was really worth. She wanted the community property they had acquired in five years of marriage to be split down the middle. How much, roughly, had Elvis earned in royalties, residuals, profits, and salaries?

The lawyers got together and, with Elvis' concurrence, entered into a new deal. Priscilla, in addition to the original $100,000 in cash, got another $725,000 in cash, plus $720,000 to be paid to her in monthly installments of $6000 each.

Elvis also agreed to give her a 5 percent interest in two of his music companies, White Haven Music, Inc., and Elvis Presley Music, Inc., and 50 percent of the proceeds from the sale of their Bel Air mansion.

In addition, Elvis said he would pay $4000 a month for the support of Lisa until their daughter reaches 21 or marries.

For her part, Priscilla agreed to joint legal custody of Lisa, who will live with her mother, because Elvis gets around and performs so much.

The financial settlement will cost Elvis about $2 million in its entirety. But Elvis, according to his lawyers, couldn't be happier.

"I just don't want Priscilla to go away mad," he explained.

A MATTER OF PRINCIPALS Female public school principals have become a vanishing breed.

In the United States today, 80 percent of the principals in elementary schools and 99 percent of the principals in high schools are men.

How come the males have dominated the administration of American public schools in the past 25 years? Several reasons: (1) More than 50,000 rural schools once headed by women have been eliminated. (2) Women have been discriminated against. (3) Men have been entering education over the years in growing numbers -- in 1940 only 22 percent of teachers were men; today the proportion is close to 35 percent. (4) School boards are run by men who favor men principals on grounds that men have families to support, are more capable of providing discipline and represent the necessary father figure.

OLD AND BROKE The Department of Agriculture predicts that food prices by year's end will have jumped 20 percent. Meanwhile, wholesale prices have already reached their highest level in history.

Those hardest hit by inflation are the poor and the elderly who normally live off fixed incomes and spend 30 percent of their income on food.

Nearly 3 out of every 4 Americans over the age of 65 have annual incomes below $3000, including 2.5 million persons with no earned income.

Herewith is a 1970 Census Bureau chart showing income totals for persons over the age of 65.

HANDGUN LIBERALS Why is it that relatively more people are murdered in Southern cities of the United States than in other metropolitan areas?

FBI statistics show Atlanta leading the nation in 1972 with 23 killings per 100,000 population followed by Gainesville, Fla.; Little Rock, Ark.; Greenville, S.C.; Columbus, Ga.; Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Richmond, Va., and Savannah, Ga.

Of 53 metropolitan areas reporting 12 or more homicides per 100,000 population, 42 are located in 14 Southern and Border states.

Raleigh, Lubbock, Memphis, New Orleans, Jackson, Charlotte, Chattanooga, Jacksonville, Birmingham and Augusta all rank high in homicides.,

One reason, according to Dr. Eugene Czajkoski, chairman of the Criminology Department at Florida State University, is the general absence of, or less stringent, gun control legislation in Southern cities.

"Generally in the South," Dr. Czajkoski points out, "restrictions on gun ownership are rather loose. Northern cities have tighter controls."

As has been proven conclusively in Great Britain and other countries, the greater the restriction on handguns, the fewer the homicides.

BRAINS AND BOXING Should boxing be outlawed? Should the wearing of a helmet to prevent brain damage be made compulsory for all boxing matches?

In the most detailed scientific probe ever conducted, a British team of doctors has written an 11,000-word report on boxing and brain damage.

Published in the British Medical Association's journal "Psychological Medicine," the report reveals that suffering irreversible brain damage from head blows is a common fate among boxers.

Dr. Nicholas Corsellis, a neuropathologist at Runwell Hospital in Essex, headed a research team which examined under microscope the brains of 15 dead British fighters, 12 professionals and 3 amateurs. The brains were preserved by the hospital pathology departments with the consent of relatives.

Most of the 15 fighters at the end of their careers suffered from slowness of speech and loss of memory. They were, in fact, punch-drunk.

"The paramount reason for the insidious neurological and psychological deterioration of so many of the 15 men," writes Dr. Corsellis, "was the brain damage incurred while boxing."

British boxing authorities disagree. Says Dr. Adrian Whiteson, chief medical officer of the British Boxing Board of Control: "That report is out of date. The conditions it describes no longer occur. They happened years ago.

"Today," Dr. Whiteson contends, "referees protect the boxer. Once the referee stops a fight, the boxer must undergo a tough medical exam before we permit him to fight again. In the old days, boxers came from poor homes. They were badly fed. They had many more fights and less protection than they have today.

"Speaking for myself, I can say that I have never seen a punch-drunk fighter. People in other sports like football and rugby take more severe blows on the head."

In the United States, of course, professional boxing, as always, remains the traditional sport of the poor, the disadvantaged, and the minorities, the one way in which they can quickly acquire fame and fortune.

Joe Louis is a classic example of boxing and possible brain damage. Joe works as a glad-hander for Caesars Palace in Las Vegas.

ART BOOM IN JAPAN

Wherever one goes these days -- New York, London, Paris, Honolulu -- one finds the ubiquitous Japanese, usually in the process of buying -- not only land, lumber, fabrics, minerals, and buildings -- but art as well.

In the past year the Japanese have become the foremost buyers of art in the world.

Japanese businessmen are not particularly esthetic or cultured. In fact, many of them know little or nothing about art. They do know a lot, however, about speculation, and they are using their cheap 60-cent dollars for their purchases.

In order to meet the booming demand for paintings, Tokyo department stores and art galleries are on a buying spree. Their objective is to resell at a profit.

JAPANESE GET THE PICTURE: BUY, BUY, BUY.

For example, the Nichido Gallery on the Ginza, Tokyo's main street, recently offered for sale $10 million worth of French Impressionist paintings previously bought at a London auction.

In that auction, Japanese bought such famous paintings as Georges Braque's "Twilight" for $55,000; Auguste Renoir's "The Portrait of Jean Renoir" for $212,000; Picasso's "Red Skirt" for $155,000, and Modigliani's "Portrait of a Woman" for $50,000.

Each of these subsequently sold at a sizable markup, many of them going to Japanese business firms, which are also showing an increased interest in art.

The Japanese have so many dollars to spend that they are being catered to throughout the world -- not only by art agents, hotel managers, and tour directors -- but also by the ladies of the night.

In Rome, for instance, there is a brothel whose young women service Japanese males exclusively -- on the understandable grounds that "the Orientals pay the most, are the quickest, and cause the least trouble."

In the field of art they demonstrate the same qualities.

Back to the great old days of children making Christmas happen.

over 200 Christmas press on shapes - only $3.50

Was really something to watch my grandchildren with these.

They push these "stikees"—that's what they call 'em—out of a sheet of self-stick plastic. They're already pre-cut in forms of trees, santas, sleighs, letters, snow flakes, etc. They self-stick to a window, mirror, formica, tile. Peel right off, leave no mess, can be re-used next year.

My grandchildren made their own decorations. Made the whole house sparkle with their own fun and joy of Christmas. No glue or anything. Just press on these self-stick Christmas stikees-they stay on till you peel them off.

My package includes 4 sheets with more than 200 Christmas shapes and forms and letters. 2 white sheets—one red—one green sheet.

The whole thing—only $3.50.

Now then—if you buy this—use it this Christmas—peel 'em off—and if your children don't beg you to save them for next year—if they don't—then send them back, and I'll return all your money.

My wife says I'm crazy to make such a money back offer—but I'm not worried—your children will love it as much as mine.

"I found these for my grandchildren last Christmas. They had such a great time putting them on windows and mirrors— I decided to sell them this year."

Winston tastes good GOOD, like a cigarette should.

Do you feel the urge to emerge?

There's no denying that the world is a moral mess. Once again, man is finding out that he can't achieve justice and peace unless he works in partnership with God.

This requires first of all belief in God and, indeed, in a God who cares about what happens to man. This kind of belief demands a religious life of worship and service. Man can't work this out for himself. But God is constantly offering His help. Faith and its supporting graces are there for the taking. Yet, from all appearances, the world has few takers.

Where do you fit into this picture? Do you take religion seriously? Do you work at it? Or do you take a "leave it to the clergy" attitude? The time to come out of your shell is now. That urge to emerge and do something to bring men back to God is God's own call to you. "Why are you standing idle? Go into my vineyard." It's not just a message for the clergy but for all.

• To help you think about your God-given "urge to emerge," we are offering a free pamphlet, "The Lay Apostolate." Write for a copy today. No one will call.

One San Francisco hospital uses puppets to quiet fears of young patients. Here, student nurse Susan Dohrmann and puppet discuss anesthesia with patient Maggie Brown.

When Surgery Is Child's Play

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF.

Virtually everyone experiences a certain amount of fear when entering the hospital for surgery, and children, away from their parents in a strange environment, are likely to be especially frightened.

Mrs. Judy Hinrichs was perturbed by terrified youngsters she saw while she was working as a hospital volunteer in Chicago, and decided to do something about it. Working with bits and pieces of metal, glass, wood and plastic tubing, she put together a child's hospital "play world"—miniature replicas of hospital furniture and equipment, complete with batteries to reproduce the lights and the sounds a child patient might encounter in a ward or an operating room.

The Herbert C. Moffitt Hospital of the University of California in San Francisco invited Mrs. Hinrichs to set up her toys in the hospital for the use of its young patients in a "Puppet-Therapy Program."

"Since we began," says the program's director Betsey Pease, "we find that children are either not frightened at all any more, or at least are much less scared than was the case before."

At Moffitt, the project has been expanded to include puppets which resemble doctors, nurses, orderlies and patients. With the puppets and equipment, and under the supervision of hospital volunteers, child patients learn about listening to the heart, giving blood transfusions, preparing for operations and other medical procedures. Often the children themselves play the part of doctors, giving make-believe injections to the puppets. So successful has the system been that it's now being applied to all children who come into the hospital as patients—not merely the frightened ones.

Sums up Betsey Pease: "When a patient is calm and not scared because of the unknown, doctors can work better. And the patient usually recovers faster after the operation. We recommend this type of therapy to every hospital."

"Doctor" is there when anesthesia is applied.

SUING THE SCHOOL BOARD: SHARON BOLDMAN AND DAUGHTER

Virgins Only

Sharon Boldman, 17, a senior at Urbana (Ohio) High School, was ruled off the homecoming queen ballot this fall by school principal Fred Walters, who told her, "Only virgins can run for homecoming queen."

Sharon, mother of an infant daughter born out of wedlock last March 23, was also banned from becoming a cheerleader on the same grounds.

As a result of Walters' rulings, Sharon's parents have filed suit in the U.S. District Court in Dayton, asking that the election be voided.

They charge in their suit that the school's action "was taken without regard to any valid rule or regulation . . . and that the (action) merely seeks to punish (Sharon) for past conduct the defendants find offensive."

Some of Sharon's fellow students at Urbana High sought to boycott the homecoming queen election but failed to halt the ballot counting for 61 candidates.

Sharon's case is being conducted by lawyer Judy Leland, 30, Northwestern Law School Class of '67, who says, "We are suing for $30,000—$15,000 in actual damages and $15,000 in punitive damages, and I think we'll win the case. After all, we are not living in the 19th century. These are not the days of Nathaniel Hawthorne and The Scarlet Letter."

Big Business

College football is stained with professionalism and recruiting abuses. If something isn't done in various parts of the country to reform the system, then intercollegiate football might just as well relinquish all pretensions to amateurism and put players on salary.

Joe Paterno who coaches at Penn State, recently told an interviewer, "recruiting violations are the worst I've seen in my 23 years of coaching."

Frank Broyles, coach of the Arkansas Razorbacks, agrees. "If something's not done," he says, "the lid's going to blow off. There's going to be a real explosion in this conference."

These complaints are nothing new. In 1929 the Carnegie Foundation issued a study on American college athletics. Said the study: "the game of football looms large in any account of the growth of professionalism in college games . . . our study of the recruiting and subsidizing of college athletes affords much direct evidence that college athletics . . . have bred among athletes, coaches, directors, and even . . . among college administrative officers, equivocation and dishonesty. The impairment of moral stamina . . . is the darkest blot among American college athletics."

In 1938, Robert Hutchins, then president of the University of Chicago and now head of the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions in Santa Barbara, Calif., got so fed up with professionalism in the Big 10 that he simply took his football team out of the conference. Hutchins also ended the university's participation in all intercollegiate athletics.

Last year, more than 400 million Americans witnessed 2992 football games played by 620 collegiate teams, involving 50,000 players, coaches, and trainees. The football gate was estimated as somewhere between $150 and $200 million.

Intercollegiate football is big business in which anything goes. It is also the prime moral corrupter of higher education in America.

The President's Daughter

Of the 317 freshwomen at Princeton this year, the most publicized member of the entering class is Maria Marcos, daughter of Ferdinand Marcos, President-dictator of the Philippines.

Last spring when it was announced that Miss Marcos had been accepted by Princeton, several Asian-American students demonstrated against the security arrangements her mother insisted upon. The students contended that Filipino armed guards had no place on the Princeton campus, that they should not be allowed to reside in Miss Marcos' dormitory, and they should not be permitted to carry weapons on campus.

The situation has been peacefully resolved. Maria Marcos lives off campus, is driven to the university by a Filipino chauffeur, and is escorted to class unobtrusively by one armed bodyguard. So far so good.

My Favorite Jokes

by Henny Youngman & Al Steen

EDITOR'S NOTE: Despite his reputation as "King of the One-Liners," Henny Youngman can tell a long story or joke with verve. Here, the famed comedian teams with associate Al Steen (he's written comedy material for old-time radio stars like Jack Pearl on up through television comedians like Abbott and Costello, and Milton Berle) to create what they call "Fractured Facts":

Does a Flying Snake Exist? Despite reports to the contrary, scientists insist that no known species of snake actually flies. But a cousin of mine declares he has seen a flying snake. He claims one attacked him in New Rochelle, New York, and chased him up a lamppost while he was on his way to join the local chapter of Alcoholics Anonymous.

What Are the First Things to Turn Green in the Springtime? Principally, Christmas jewelry.

Is the Hen That Lays the Egg or the Hen That Hatches it the Real Mother of the Chick? This question has been asked almost since the beginning of time. It could be answered by the question: What's a home without a mother? And the answer is: an incubator. And yet an incubator chick is extremely devoted to its heated box. A chick frequently sends a high-powered heat lamp to its maternal incubator as a gift for Mother's Day.

How "Not Worth a Rap" Originated. This term is used to describe a worthless thing and goes back many centuries. When Mark Antony was wooing Cleopatra, she was very cool to him. He sent her a message, stating that if she would spend an evening with him, he would give her a gold-spangled cape. She replied that going out with him was "not worth a wrap." Later, historians dropped the "w" and Cleopatra dropped Mark Antony.

Requirements for Burial in Westminster Abbey: The deans of Westminster Abbey are the only ones who are authorized to decide which persons of distinction will be buried in the Abbey. While it is claimed there are no specific requirements for interment there, there is one positive requisite: The person must be dead.

Was Voltaire a Real Name or a Pen Name? Francois Marie Arouet, French philosopher and dramatist, was somewhat of a wit, but his barbs didn't please the Regent of France and he was tossed into the Bastille in 1717. While in prison, he changed his name to Voltaire so, naturally, it became his pen name.

Why Winter Is Colder Than Summer. The sun is actually 3 million miles farther from the Earth in the summer than it is in the winter. Astronomers claim the difference in temperature is due to the angle at which the sun's rays strike the Earth. But the real reason is that December, January and February always have been the coldest months. And nothing can be done about it.

Why Is a Pachyderm Called an Elephant? In the ninth century, when Alfred the Great saw a pachyderm for the first time, he called it an elephant. When asked why he gave it such a name, he said, "Well, it looks more like an elephant than any animal I've ever seen."

Did Diogenes Find an Honest Man? The legend is that Diogenes went out one night with a lantern looking for an honest man on the streets of Athens. But the stories about the event never disclosed whether he was successful in his quest. The truth is he found what he thought was an honest man, but had to grope his way home in the dark because the fellow stole his lantern.

What Is a Sardine? Actually a sardine is the cured and preserved infant of a species of pilchard. The name probably is derived from a Russian emperor who became the head of an overcrowded university. He was known as the czar dean and you can take it from there.

"OK now, just watch this sheep grow salad greens ...in just 10 days."

Don't try to embarrass me by asking how it works. All I know is that you put the seeds you get in water —mix into a paste. Put it on this terra cotta sheep. Put water in its head. And bang.

In 10 days, he grows a coat of herbs you can use in a salad or soup or such. You just shear off the coat of herbs as you need it. Then do it all over again. Again, and again. Plenty of seeds.

Has got to be the most intriguing thing to own or give since lump sugar.

Came from the Mayan Indians down there in Central America. Costs $11.95 with all the seeds.

Extraordinary gift—great pleasure for shut-ins to watch it grow—great talking piece for your kitchen —great pleaser for kids. Money back if you don't agree with all this.

THIS IS A VERY SPECIAL PERSON.

Francisco Lentini, who used his third leg for playing soccer, is just one of the many "mistakes of Nature" included in Frederick Drimmer's fascinating new book, VERY SPECIAL PEOPLE. What makes them very special is that they were all born "freaks" and they all lived unusual lives. Like Chang and Eng, the original Siamese twins, who were joined at the chest for life. They married sisters, set up separate homes, and fathered 22 children between them!

Then there was Grace McDaniel who was billed as the ugliest woman who ever lived (and her photo proves it). Believe it or not, Grace received several proposals of marriage before she accepted one from a handsome young man. They had a perfectly normal son who grew up to be his mother's manager!

Robert Merrick, the grossly deformed "Elephant Man", was deserted by his heartless manager. Befriended by a kindly doctor, Merrick became quite famous and was frequently visited by Royalty.

These are just a few glimpses of the dozens of true and fascinating stories contained in this hard covered, photo-packed volume. Also chapters on giants, dwarfs, circus fat ladies, hermaphrodites (half man, half woman) and numerous other human oddities.

This is not just a picture book of "freaks". The author treats these people with insight, compassion and the dignity one earns by being born different from everyone else. Only $5.95. MONEYBACK GUARANTEED!

Just in time for holiday giving...and getting!

The Terry Cloth Robe You'd Almost Wear to a Party

Oh, it's a Terry Cloth Robe, all right. Lushy. Plushy. Made of deep-as-velvet 100% cotton. And super-thirsty for after the bath.

So luxurious it cuddles you as it dries. So snuggly, it drapes you from nape to ankle. (Machine-washable, of course.)

And it does one thing more that most Terry Cloth Robes just can't do:

It looks simply sensational!
Yes, it looks almost like a cocktail gown. Because of the haut couture way we styled it. With daring, double-contrast stripes down the zip front and around the sleeves. And warm, bright colors that wrap you in streams of sun.

Result is you'll wear it after the bath... around the house... on a cruise... on vacation... even slip into it when guests are coming and wear it to entertain.

Priced so low you're sure to want two You'd expect to pay so much more for a Terry Cloth Robe that's so versatile. But all you pay is just $11.95. And it comes with an unconditional 30-day guarantee. At these prices you're sure to want two. And while you're at it, order an extra one as a gift.
